Big Turnout Expected for Primary

Tomorrow is primary election day in Sikeston with 13 candidates contesting for three city council positions.

The election will reduce the field to six, who will compete in the April 6 general election.

City Clerk John Vaughn said this morning that voting is expected to be heavier than previous primaries due to the large number of candidates. More than 1,500 are expected to cast votes Vaughn said.

A field of eight candidates are running for the one-year unexpired term vacated by Sam Harbin who resigned to devote more time to preparations to become superintendent of schools.

Six hopefuls will be eliminated by tomorrow's voting narrowing the field to two. Those two will face each other in the April election.

The eight candidates are Harold Depro, Mrs. Anita Hope, Mrs. Nadean Dickerson Glenn W. Milligan, Robert Jenkins, Kenneth Bridger, William "Webb" Edwards, and Vernon Morris.

Five candidates have filed for two three-year term positions on the council.

They are incumbents Taylor Noles and Chuck Grant and newcomers James S. Woods, Don Fulton, and Dr. Howard Johnson, a dentist.

One man will be eliminated from this race. The other four oppose each other in the general election.

Clear to partly cloudy weather is forecast for election day with high temperatures in the 40s. There is only a slight possibility of rain.

This will mark the first runoff in city council elections in three years.

The 13 filing candidates are the most to run since September of 1960 when 15 ran for five positions. This was the first election in the city manager form of government.

All absentee ballots must be submitted to the city clerk's office by 4 p.m. today to be eligible for the primary.

Absentee ballots for the general election may be obtained next Monday at the city clerk's office and must be returned to the clerk's office by 4 p.m. April 5.

Voting tomorrow from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. will be in eight precincts:

Ward one, precinct one police station; ward one, precinct two, Ethridge Tire Co.; ward two, precinct one, Presley Chevrolet Co.; ward two, precinct two, Lincoln school; ward three, precinct one, fire station one; ward three, precinct two, Lewis Furniture Co.; ward four, precinct one, Armory; ward four, precinct, two, Imperial Bowling Lanes.

There is no primary election for the five candidates, who have filed for the school boards. The two receiving the highest number of votes April 6 will be elected.

Tape recorder sales are expected to pass the $10-million mark this year.

A mirror weighing one ton is being installed in a telescope at the Palomar Mountain Observatory in California.

In Scott County

Court Approves Food Stamps

The county court this morning unanimously approved a food stamp program for Scott county to replace the commodities program.

Court officials said it will be a minimum of eight months before food stamps are begun.

Scott county will join Dunklin, Pemiscot, New Madrid and Mississippi counties in adopting the food stamp program.

Action came before the court last week when a group of grocers from Chaffee, Oran, Charleston, Sikeston and Scott City meet with the court urging the adoption of the program.

A formal written request will now go to Proctor Carter, director of the state office for the program.

The waiting list of counties requesting adoption of the stamps includes 12 to 14 counties. Each of these counties will be considered before Scott county.

The stamp program is a federally financed outlet designed for people on welfare, elderly people and persons who have inadequate funds to feed their families.

The existing commodities program has come under attack recently for its wastefulness. Presiding judge Les Lankford estimated last week that 30 per cent of the commodities are thrown away.

There are 1,941 families in Scott county that are eligible for the commodities program.

Under the food stamp program a family of four earning $360 a month could buy $106 worth of food stamps (redeemable at any store) for $82; a family of six earning $360 could buy $144 worth of stamps for $96; a family of seven could buy $162 for only $104; a family of eight could buy $180 worth of stamps for $106.

A complete chart outlining the food stamp program will be published later.

Senate Takes Up Remap Issue

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Congressional redistricting and pressing revenue problems highlight the Missouri legislative week starting today.

The Senate Apportionment Committee headed by Sen. Omer H. Avery D-Troy, was to start work this afternoon, 2 p.m. on the redistricting problem that is one of the 1971 session's "must" jobs.

Pending is a bill Avery introduced as a starter to keep Missouri's 10 districts in line with the U.S. Supreme Court's one man-one vote requirement.

It puts two Democrats — Rep. William Randall of Independence and Rep. Richard Bolling of Kansas City — in the same district.

It has also drawn opposition from supporters of Rep. William L. Clay, the 1st District Democrat who is Missouri's first Negro congressman. Many more white votes would be added to his district by including parts of northern St. Louis County.

The 2nd District of St. Louis County, now represented by Rep. James W. Symington, son of Sen. Stuart Symington, would lose some Democratic votes in the change.

The House has three Congressional redistricting bills pending but Speaker James E. Godfrey, D-St. Louis, has not yet appointed an apportionment committee.

The House starts discussing the state's revenue problems Tuesday at 10 a.m., when it takes up, as a special order of business, a bill to make the present one-year income tax rates permanent.

E. E. Grant

Grant Seeks Council

E. E. "Chuck" Grant has filed for re-election to the city council for a three-year term.

Grant is a life-long resident of the Sikeston area and is a graduate of Sikeston high school. He attended Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

He completed his military obligation after serving six years with the national guard, and received an honorable discharge in 1968.

Grant is assistant vice president of Security National Bank. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Breakfast Optimist club, where he has served on community projects. He is also chairman of the Sikeston Activity Center.

He and his wife, Joan, a teacher at Sikeston high school, have a five-year old son, Chip. They live at 501 Sikes Ave. and attend the Tanner Street Church of God.

After serving one year on he city council, Grant says he feels that he is well acquainted with the issues and hopes that the citizens will again place their confidence in him and elect him for the three-year term.

He says he believes that with the cooperation of the city council, Chamber of Commerce, and all of Sikeston's citizens "our fine city will grow and progress in an orderly fashion."

Thieves Take $1.5 Million Silver Display

MIAMI (AP) — Bandits tricked a guard at the Dade County Art Museum today and escaped with a silver collection worth an estimated $1.5 million, police said.

The pieces of silver, dating back to 1815, once belonged to Napoleon Bonaparte and his brother, Jerome of France, said R. K. Preston, business manager of the museum, Villa Vizcaya.

One youthful bandit pounded on the door of the museum and shouted: "Can you help me, I've got a boat broken down in the bay and I need a pair of pliers," said Harry Bjork, 62, a security guard.

Bjork said he left his basement office to accompany the youth to nearby Biscayne Bay when two others sprinted from the darkness and one stuck a pistol to his head.

The guard was bound and gagged in his office. Then the bandits loaded the loot in Bjork's van and vanished. The van, minus the silver, was found abandoned an hour later, police said.

Preston said the silver was owned by Samuel Kirk and Son, a Baltimore Jewely firm. It was on display at the museum since Feb. 23, under the sponsorship of Balogh Jewelers of Miami Beach.

The theft occurred hours before the collection was to be shipped back to Baltimore.

Wind Fans Grass Fires

High winds were blamed for grass fires this weekend.

Fire Chief Dolph Webb said that the fires were attributed to high winds and "people not paying special attention while burning their trash."

Firemen were called to 323 Alabama St. Saturday afternoon when a grass fire was reported. Almost an hour later firemen were called to the address again when the fire continued to threaten surrounding buildings.

Other grass fires were reported at 212 Alabama and 223 Felker.

Sunday night firemen were called to 217 South Kingshighway when a tree was reported on fire.

Webb said the fire resulted when debris from a trash barrel blew into a hollow elm tree.

First Wreck at Four-Way

The first traffic accident was recorded this weekend at a newly installed four-way stop sign at the intersection of Murray Lane and South Kingshighway.

A car driven by Oscar Cronk, 27, of 601 South West stopped at the four-way stop and proceeded to cross when it was struck by a vehicle driven by Cheryl Clark of Bell City, police reported. Miss Clark was charged with careless driving while running a stop sign.

A second weekend accident occurred yesterday when a car driven by Woodrow Glass Jr., 20, of Sikeston struck a car driven by Leo Schade of 205 West Wakefield.

The Glass car, according to police reports, was making a left turn off of Hunter Street and the Schade car was turning right from the El Capri parking lot. Apparently both cars started their turns at the same time and collided.

A two-car accident was reported at the corner of West Gladys and School Street.

A car driven by Elizie Pollard of 835 Tanner had stopped at the corner of West Gladys and School when it was struck in the rear by a car driven by Robert Morrow of 203 South Handy, police reported.

U.S. Planes Pound North Viet Sites

SAIGON (AP) —U.S. fighterbombers made heavy raids today on North Vietnam for the second successive day as more South Vietnamese forces retreated from Laos under heavy enemy attack.Saigon announced that 10,000 men had been pulled back across the border.

Informed sources indicated that scores of planes made the raids and that they were the heaviest against North Vietnam since last November.

The U.S. Command said the American pilots hit surface-toair missile—SAM—sites, antiaircraft gun positions and supply depots from the demilitarized zone at the 17th parallel to the 19th parallel, a distance of about 175 miles.

A South Vietnamese spokesman, Lt. Col. Tran Van An, said 12,000 government troops were still in Laos and that they nowhold three fire bases.

Field reports said the drive was nearing and end and that the strength actually was below 12,000 troops.

An said the westernmost South Vietnamese units in Laos are now eight miles from the Vietnamese border,more than 17 miles from their point of deepest penetration.

The Saigon command claimed that more than 12,000 Hanoi troops have been killed in the six-week-old drive to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail network. But the South Vietnamese admitted heavy losses themselves: 1,031 killed, 219 missing and 3,985 wounded, a total of 5,325 casualties, or about 25 per cent of the 22,000-man invasion force.

As the South Vietnamese returned to South Vietnam by U.S. helicopter or made their way overland, artillery duels raged across the border and U.S. warplanes exchanged missiles with batteries in North Vietnam.

Two South Vietnamese infantry battalions hurrying to the border ran into strong North Vietnamese forces south of Highway 9 and suffered 52 men killed and 80 wounded, field reports said. A South Vietnamese communique issued in Saigon claimed 245 North Vietnamese troops killed.

Low clouds fog and enemy artillery slowed down U.S. helicopters trying to lift South Vietnamese forces out of Laos.

There were still stragglers to be picked up south of Highway 9. Most of the South Vietnamese paratrooper division was pulled out along Route 9 but four battalions were moving eastward along the highway with an armored column and remnants of two other battalions.

Routes and Schedules Announced for Railpax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Railroad Passenger Corporation announced today its decision on routes and schedules between 21 pairs of cities for the new Railpax Passenger System, beginning May 1.

The corporation said that the route system would use the best of 1,500 out of 3,000 existing railroad passenger cars now operated by 22 different railroads.

David W. Kendall, chairman of the Board of Incorporators of the corporation said the 22 railroads now are losing more than $235 million annually and the initial objective will be to cut these losses by more than half.

The routes outlined include the following: Chicago to Cincinnati by way of Indianapolis and Lafayette, Ind., one train a day in each direction.

Chicago to Seattle by way of Milwaukee, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Willmar, Minn., Fargo, N.D., Grand Forks, N.D., Minot, N.D., Williston, N.D., Glacier Park, San Point, Idaho, Spokane, Pasco, and Yakima, Wash., one train a day in each direction with three additional trains each way between Chicago and Milwaukee.

Chicago to St. Louis by way of Bloomington and Springfield, Ill., two trains a day in each direction.

Chicago to Detroit by way of Jackson and Kalamazoo, Mich., two trains a day each way.

Chicago to New Orleans by way of Centralia and Carbondale, Ill., Memphis, Tenn. and Jackson, Miss., one train per day in each direction with an additional train between Chicago and Carbondale.

Chicago to Houston by way of Fort Madison, Kansas City, Wichita, Oklahoma City, Fort Worth and Temple, Tex. to be shifted to Dallas as soon as possible, one train a day each way.

Chicago to Miami, Tampa, and St. Petersburg, Fla., by way of Lafayette and Indianapolis, Ind., Louisville, Ky., Nashville, Birmingham, Montgomery, Bainbridge and Waycross, Ga., Jacksonville and Orlando. The train will split at Auburndale to serve both Miami and Tampa areas, one train a day in each direction.

Chicago to Los Angeles by way of Galesburg, Ill., Fort Madison, Iowa, Kansas City, Ottawa and Newton, Kan., Hutchinson, Kan., La Junta, Colo., Albuquerque and Flagstaff, one train per day in each direction.

New York to New Orleans by way of Washington, Lynchburg, Va., Charlotte, N.C., Atlanta, and Birmingham, daily between New York and Atlanta and continuing to New Orleans three times weekly.

Five Run For City Collector At Essex

Tavern Keeper Fires Six Times, Two Killed

NEW MADRID— Two persons are dead from a shooting that occurred at 11 p.m. Saturday at the Harlem Cafe, 601 Russell.

Shot were Charles Edward Triplett, 23, and Lorane Lane, 34, both from Malden.

Horace Cobb, proprietor of the cafe, was alleged to have shot Triplett after Triplett placed a knife against Cobb's thoat and threatened him.

Triplett was reported to have been causing a disturbance and had been called down by Cobb several times during the night. When Triplett advanced on Cobb with the knife, authorities said Cobb fired six shots with a .22 caliber revolver, five striking Triplett and one stray bullet hitting the woman.

Officer Billy Carter, who had been called to the scene, was outside radioing for assistance to Officers Gene Lyles and Russell Cobb when the shots were fired.

Triplett was pronounced dead on arrival at Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston. The Lane woman, who was with her husband, was first thought to have fainted. She was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti where it was disclosed she had been shot in the back. She was dead on arrival.

No charges have been filed against Cobb pending a coroner's inquest at 1 p.m. today.

NO EDITORIAL
COMMENT NEEDED

Some messages speak for themselves more elequently than any editorial comment we might offer. We do hope, however, that every teen ager within reach of this newspaper will read the message, search their own hearts and minds, and then reach their own conclusions.

STATEMENT TO THE STUDENT BODY — from Howard R. Bennetts, Assistant Principal Waterford-Kettering High School, Linton, Indiana:

Last Thursday, Rick Thornton got up to get ready for school. He kidded with his mother who was busily getting breakfast of bacon and eggs. When breakfast was being served, his best friend came in and sat at the table. Kidding with his mother, Rick said: "I don't feel like going to school today" His mother responded, "You had better go to school unless you are sick. Don't you feel well?" Rick laughed it off, and the two boys left for school.

When they reached school, they decided to skip school for the day. As they made their plans, Rick said he wanted to "take a trip." Rick went into the boys' lavatory in the main lobby and allegedly made a buy of LSD for $2.00. Soon afterward, he took the pill, turned to his best friend and said, "So long, friend. See you later."

The boys left the school and walked toward a house in a nearby subdivision. They sat around talking during the morning hours, but it was apparent that Rick was extremely ill. He thought the best thing to do was to go home and get his mother to take him to the hospital. Rick insisted on going home alone. Apparently, finding no one at home, Rick went up to his room and lay on the bed. About 12:30 he descended from his room, picked a .22 calibre rifle from his dad's gun case, went out on the back patio ....

Rick's death is not fully attributed to the fact that he pulled the trigger. His death was staged when he made a $2.00 purchase in our school. It was staged when some big-wheel supplier contacted students in our school.

Many of you know more of the story than I but are afraid. I plead with you now; tell us before others are also dead like Rick. Somewhere in this student body there must be those who have the courage to be heroes - and we need those heroes now. Let us not sit back under some fake code which tolerates and encourages the destruction of the lives of our friends. Let us not say Rick Thornton died for nothing.

GO-AROUND AGAIN
ON THE AIR BAGS

There may be sound engineering reasons why inflatable air bags, which the government is insisting be installed in the front compartments of new cars beginning in 1974, are impractical. But if there are, Detroit has been strangly reticent about publicizing them.

Instead, here are some of the arguments advanced by the automakers (along with counterarguments that come to mind):

1. The bags might either fail to inflate or inflate accidentally.

(According to federal safety experts, General Motors' own analysis shows that the chances of either happening are five times in every 100 million operations.)

2. An accidentally inflating bag could obscure a driver's vision and interfere with his control of the car, thus possibly causing a crash.

(The bags inflate with an inert gas and deflate automatically within hundredths of a second, just long enough to cushion a forward-moving body. The whole operation is over before the human brain has registered it. Also see answer above.)

3. The bags wouldn't give protection if a car rolls over or is hit from the side.

(Neither would they give protection from the cornice of a building falling on a car.)

(Seriously, the bags are a "passive restraint" system requiring no positive action by a driver or passenger. They are designed to help save the lives and health of those three out of four Americans who absolutely refuse to wear seat or shoulder belts. But belts would still be necessary in case of rollovers. As for side collisions — well, what do you propose, Detroit?)

4. The bags would inflate when one car strikes a second car, but if the first car bounced into a third car, no further protection would be available.

(That's another reason why belts would still be necessary.)

5. A passenger could still be thrown into a windshild during the panic braking that precedes a crash and before bag inflation is triggered.

6. The force of an inflating bag could pop out car windows or spring door latches.

(So could the force of a collision. Also see answers to 4 and 5.)

7. Occupants could "submarine" under a bag and thus not be protected by it.

(See answers to 4, 5 and 6.)

8. Children sitting or standing on the car floor might be injured when the bag pops out at close range.

(Would this injury be greater than the injury they might receive by being thrown against or under a dashboard? Anyway, parents should not permit their children to sit or stand on the floor, expecially in the front compartment.)

What the antiinflation bag arguments seem to boil down to is that this safety device would not guarantee perfect safety in every conceivable contingency.

Unfortunately, perfection is not to be had this side of heaven, which is where 55,000 motorists last year found themselves, permanently.

The cadmium sulphite unit looks like a pane of black glass with attached wires. It is designed to absorb solar energy by day and release electrical power at night. Already in use on the Tel Aviv-Jerusalem highway powering a flashing amber light, the device will also be used to feed electricity to a lighthouse in the Titan Strait on the Red Sea.

SPEAKING OF JUSTICE

The professional hand - wringers are at it again.

Discussing the skyrocketing crime rate and the need for law and order at a press conference the other day, J. Edgar Hoover was asked about justice by one of the reporters. The FBI chief suggested that justice was incidental.

Whatever amount of carping may be made about the observation will not provide justice for those who are murdered, raped or robbed and denied the protection they have paid for through taxation and to which they are entitled. Is it justice that statutory punishemnt is jullified through legalistic legerdemain? Is it justice that a man who admits his crime should escape its penalty?

We have heard a great deal in recent years about poverty being responsible for crime. Some ofthe chief exponents of that theory have wrapped themselves in a cloak of alleged humanitarianism and urged that they be given access to the public treasury with the assurance that they could buy the bandits off. They haven't put it quite that bluntly, but it is the burden of their appeal.

The record, however, doesn't seem to confirm their representations. During a period when steadily increasing amounts of public money have been devoted to alleviation of poverty — and that in a period hailed as one of great prosperity — the rate of crime has accelerated beyond belief.

Great Britain has had a similar experience, according to Lord Justice John Passmore Widgery, of that nation.s Court of Appeals. Addressing the American Bar Association, in Philadelphia, he admitted he had accepted the view that, with the welfare state established in his country, crime would taper off. Somewhat ruefully, he conceded that, in spite of all that had been done to eliminate slums and wipe out poverty, the evidence revealed that crime is continuing to rise in Britain about as fast as it is here.

And when another speaker suggested that we must rely more on public housing and more handouts to combat crime, Judge Widgery commented: "anyone here who believes that relief of poverty will bring a decrease in crime is in for some kind of disappointment."

We've known a lot of poor people; and they weren't criminals. But no one encouraged them to believe that they could get — or take — something for nothing.

HUNTER SAFETY

Nineteen years ago, the state of New York passed a law requiring previously unlicensed hunters under the age of 16 to take a course in safe gun handling before getting a hunting license. But, no instructors or standardized course in safety existed at that time. At the request of the state, the National Rifle Association, using information from its newly - established Uniform Hunter Casualty Report as a means of analyzing the causes of hunting accidents, created a basic course in safe hunting practices. The NRA prepared an instructor's guide, developed a method of certifying instructors in the course and was designated to administer the program to young hunters in the state of New York.

Today, 40 states and 7 Canadian Provinces administer Hunter Safety Training Programs. One - fourth of some 15 million licensed hunters in this country are graduates of the NRA Hunter Safety course. The results have been dramatic, with official figures showing a drop of 15 per cent in U.S. hunting fatalities during the period from 1950 to 1965. The purpose of the program has been described as not to turn out sharpshooters but rather "... to instill in the beginner a fundamental knowledge of guns and ammunition, proper gun handling under field conditions, a grasp of the hunter.s responsibilities to landowners and other hunters, and attitude that makes him put his knowledge into practice."

Some 52,000 dedicated individuals throughout the 50 states, as instructors in Hunter Safety, are devoting their time and energy to getting this message across. In the interests of preserving and bettering the enjoyment and experience of hunting for present and future generations of Americans, every hunter should participate in this program. It deserves the commendation and support of every one of us, hunter and nonhunter alike.

THE GREAT ALASKA QUAKE

The Good Friday earthquake that rocked Alaska in 1964 was quickly classified as the strongest ever recorded in North America, but scientists are still learning just how massive it was.

The U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey has published a third volume on the earthquake, reporting the latest findings. A few of them:

. The Chugach and Kenai Mountains, about 80 miles from Anchorage, apparently shifted to the south a distance of approximately 50 feet. Other mountains sank 10 feet into the earth.

. Three islands in Shelikof Strait shifted to the east and south.

. Montabue Island at the edge of Prince William sound southeast of Anchorage, where the earthquake was centered, was lifted more than 30 feet. The unpopulated island, which about 50 miles long and 10 miles wide, tilted, with one side rising more than 10 feet above the other.

. The ocean floor between Kodiak and Montague Islands rose approximately 50 feet, the greatest uplift ever recorded.

Only because it occurred in an area of low population density does th Alaskan earthquake not rank as one of the greatest human and financial, as well, as well as geological, catastrophes of all time.

EUNUCHS EUCHERED

The Indian government's intense efforts to encourage family planning have run into an unusual kind of opposition. It's reported that eunuchs inthe state of Uttar Pradesh are campaigning against birth control.

With so few harems to guard these days, it seems that eunuchs in India earn their living by singing and dancing at weddings and at the births of children. The government, of course, is trying to cut down on the frequency of the latter.

"We cannot tolerate it," says a eunuch leader. "Singing and dancing to mark the birth of boy babies is our main source of oncome. We have launched our campaign atainst family planning to protect our very existence."

Officials complain that, in at least two areas, eunuchs have been singing antisterilization songs.

The consternation of family planning authorities is understandable. Who could have foreseen that eunuchs would contribute to the population problem?

NEED FEDERAL LAW
FOR INTERSTATE TAXES

There ought to be a law setting federal standards for taxation of companies which do business in several states, according to the National Association of Manufacturers. The Association says one firm in Maryland with neither assets nor employees outside its Maryland location, but wishing to make an effective selling effort to customers in Alabama, is called on to file, in addition to required state returns, more than 110 separate local sales tax and use tax forms.

"And thank your wife, Sam—she was great," said the passenger, as the train began pulling out. "I really enjoyed sleeping with her."

Our friend was rather taken aback by this exchange and he turned to his fellow passenger and said: "Pardon me, sir, but I couldn't help overhearing your conversation. Did I understand you to say that you enjoyed sleeping with your friend's wife?"

"Well," said the fellow passenger, "I didn't really enjoy it. But Sam is a hell of a nice guy."

STRANGE ACTIONS BY SENATOR FULBRIGHT

Last November, Senator Fulbright sent two staff members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, James Lowenstein and Richard Moose, to Cambodia to report on U.S. Military assistance to its government. In view of Fulbright's anti-war position, most observers expected a report which would corroborate these ideas.

But the opposite occured. The report states that the North Vietnamese launched an "unprovoked invasion" and that U.S. assistance has prevented a Communist takeover.

According to the report, the Cambodian government welcomes U.S. support: "They point out that they are asking not for troops and advisers, but for material assistance, and that this help is needed not to fight a guerrilla war but to meet an unprovoked invasion by foreign forces, which are occupying parts of their country and are attempting to subjugate others."

The report concludes that U.S. support of Cambodia is essential if Vietnamization is to succeed: "As a practical matter, Vietnamization is now tied to the survival of the (Cambodian) government."

In view of the significance of this support, it deserved wide publicity. But Senator Fulbright, to whom the report was delivered, apparently made every effort to prevent even committee members from seeing it. When he finally did release the report, it was not through the usual means of publication. Instead he quiely inserted it in the Congressional Record amid statements condemning the action in Cambodia.

Whether Senator Fulbright likes it or not, the citizens of this country are entitled to know the results of this report, which supports U.S. military assistance to the Cambodians as they defend themselves against Communist aggression. H.L.H

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The bee is nature's hardest working philanthropist. It has to visit 2,000 flowers to make a single tablespoonful of honey.

Who was the world's most prolific inventor? Probably Thomas A. Edison rates this honor. He has 1,093 patents credited to his name.

Education, like almost everything else, is getting more expensive. The expenditure per pupil in America has more than tripled in less than 20 years. It rose from a national average of $209 in 1949-50 to $659 in 1967-68.

Does it shock you to learn that some 60,000 persons a year are bitten by rats in the United States? One of the reasons it is so difficult to reduce the rat population—estimated at 100 million—is that a female can also eat or destroy from $5 to $10 worth of food in its brief lifetime.

When it came to giving euqal rights to women, New Jersey was something of an Indian giver. It gave women the right to vote in 1776, but about 30 years later passed laws taking it away again.

Quotable notables: "Tradition does not mean that the living are dead but that the dead are alive."—G.K. Chesterton.

Wonder how Edward Gibbon would feel at the overnight success of some present day authors? It took Gibbon, an 18th century historian, 15 laborious years to write his famous work, "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire."

Great shakes: The first recorded U.S. earthquake occurred at Plymouth, Mass., on June 1,1638.

Lighs on: We may or may not be the brightest people on earth, but we are certainly the most lit up. We consume more than 1.443 trillion kilowatt hours of electricity annually— and that's more than a third of the world's production.

Worth remembering: "Many a marriage turns into a triangle because someone didn't know where to draw the line."

Our affluent young: Almost 75 per cent of America's college students now have charge accounts or credit cards in their own name. That would appear to refute the generalization that the younger generation is one not to be trusted.

It was Marcus Aurelius who advised, "Adapt yourself to the things among which your lot has been cast, and love sincerely the fellow creatures with whom destiny has ordained that you shall live."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Our negotiators in Paris have been restricted to the most routine intelligence about the war they are supposed to be settling. This has led to some grumping inside the delegation over the difficulty of negotiating in the dark.

The Paris delegation receives only a routine intelligence digest dealing with the Vietnam War. The top-secret stuff-battle plans, position papers, contingency plans and policymaking documents--aren't sent to Paris.

The air strikes at missile sites, anti-aircraft emplacements and other tactical targets in North Vietnam in late November, for example, caught Ambassador David K.E. Bruce completely by surprise. He received his first word of the attacks from the North Vietnamese.

This left him poorly prepared to handle the North Vietnamese delegation's protests in Paris. The communist negotiators let loose a propaganda blast, threatening to stonewall the talks.

Ambassador Bruce asked urgently for more details about the raids. He needed the background information to help him respond to the communist charges. His request was forwarded by his military liaison man, Lieut. Gen. Julian Ewell, in a "Flash" message to the Pentagon.

Admiral Thomas Moorer, the Joint Chiefs chairman, sent back a detailed account of the raids from the Washington Post. The reply was regarded in Paris as an insulting message to Bruce that he should be satisfied with what he reads in the newspapers.

POET'S NEW QUEST

Beat poet Allen Ginsberg, the unhappy hippie, has embarked upon the new role of investigative reporter in pursuit of evidence that the Central Intelligence Agency is supporting the opium racket in Laos.

Ginsberg, sandalled and balding, his long beard streaked with white hairs, has even managed to interview the seclusive CIA director, Richard Helms, about the CIA's suspected opium smuggling.

Helms vigorously denied his agents are flying opium out of Laos. But Ginsberg has collected a thick packet of contrary evidence from ex-CIA men, State Department informants and classified UN documents.

The poet's theory is that the CIA has been compelled to help the opium farmers in the mountains of northern Laos in order to keep them fighting the communists. The CIA has raised a 10,000-man army from these Meo tribesmen. Without their opium trade, they might require massive U.S. economic aid.

Informants have told Ginsberg that the renegade Chinese Nationalists in northern Laos and Thailand also make their living from opium The CIA would like to keep these Chinese active, too, against the communists.

Ginberg prophesied his own startling switch from poet to protagonist more than a decade ago. In his collection, "Reality Sandwiches" he wrote: "I know I am a poet--in this universe--but what does that do..... There is an interior image of divinity beckoning me out to pilgrimmage.....How painful to be born again wearing a fine beard, reentering the world a bitter wreck of a sage."

POET'S TRANSFORMATION

We discovered Ginsberg's transformation from poet to muckraker when he came to our office, clad in his hippie garb, seeking proof of his opium story. To our surprise, his detailed files and probing questions were thoroughly professional.

He asked us for a copy of a letter that has disappeared from the files of a Senate Government Operations Subcomittee. The letter, written by a former CIA employee named S.M. Mustard, charges that South Vietnam's Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky once flew opium out of Laos.

The New York Times and Ramparts magazine, which are also working on the opium story, had called us about the letter. But Ginsberg came to our office and pressed in person for the missing evidence.

We dug a photostat of the letter, addressed to former Sen. Ernest Cruening, D-Alaska, out of our files. It told how Ky, during his missions as an Air Force colonel, "took advantage of this situation to fly opium from Laos to Saigon."

My associate, Les Whitten, verified several details in the letter but could come up with no additional evidence that Ky engaged in opium smuggling. The colorful South Vietnamese Vice President also denied the charge.

But the ragged, bearded Ginsberg tucked acopy of the letter into his impressive portfolio and strode off for an interview with Walter Pincus, a former Senate Foreign Relations investigator with inside information on Indochina.

MID EAST PEACE?

The Big Four were all set to issue a communique approving Egypt's offer to negotiate a Middle East settlement and calling upon Israel to respond by agreeing to a pullback.

But Egypt's President Sadat, under pressure from some of his fiery generals, went to Moscow and argued that it was impossible politically for him to extend the cease-fire. The Russians reluctantly agreed to support Egypt's refusal to continue the cease-fire agreement. This, of course, killed the Big Four communique and set back the Middle East peace effort.

There still is flickering hope, however, for peace in the Middle East. The battlefront is still relatively quite. The new Egyptian leaders seem genuinely anxious to turn their attention to internal problems. Israel also can't afford the drain of continued fighting. The hot-head Palestinian guerrillas are in disarray. And the Russians would like to open the Suez Canal and link up their naval forces in the Arabian waters.

Apparently everyone wants peace--if the way could be found to overcome the distrust that divides the Arabs and Israelis.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

EXCLUSIVE: Special Justice Dept. Strike Force Created To X-Ray Organized Crime by Tracing Lansky's Millions:

WASHINGTON: -- There is no more agile artful dodger than Meyer Lansky, reputedly the underworld's investment counselor; allegedly the financial consort of old Murder, Inc.; reportedly the "connection" between the combine, of which the late Vito Genovese was boss of bosses, and the man who bankroll the "other" mobs.

There have been reputable estimates that Meyer Lansky is worth the equal of the Kennedy family fortune -- about $400 to $500 million But the specialists scoff.They say he's a poorer multimillionaire -- about $35 million. What does he do with his money? Where did he make it? Why did he know virtually all the gory characters of a grim underworld? Is he really their financial wizard? Is he truly the combination's specialist in infiltrating legitimate business?

Is this gentle, 68-year-old, grandfatherly "little man," who hasn't touched a gun in 40 years, if ever, the nearest thing to an untouchable, a national Mr. Big? Or is he just a real estate operator, an angle guy, a New York businessman who retired to Florida and hit some lucky jackpots?

That's all uncertain. But there is one very definite thing about Meyer Lansky -- he is the first man, to my knowlege, ever to rate a full-fledged, special Justice Dept. coordinated anti-crime strike force all to himself.

There are 17 federal strike forces. The first began in Buffalo, N.Y. The last one set up shop some weeks ago in Kansas City, Mo. They are geographic. The Lansky strike force is subject-oriented. It operates out of Washington. It is headed by a razor-sharp special attorney. And it has its full complement of Internal Revenue agents -- for it is digging deeply into Mr.Lansky's financial empire.

This strike force operation is a phantom force. Its operatives don't report to any one city at any one time. They are, for example, watching the Miami Grand Jury which had Lansky subpended in Tel Aviv about two weeks ago. He was requested to show at 9:30 a.m. in Miami on March 11.

Of course he didn't. He rarely does. And why should he? He's a tourist now, some 8,000 miles distant. But that grand jury is only one of the strike force's tools. It also is seeking his connections and possible monies "earned" from the old Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas.

However, that's just a probe into alleged skimming. The phantom strike force here wants to unravel Lansky's intricate books; his holdings, his hotels, his real estate developments; his connections with Wall Street operations, with some labor leaders and with the units of organized crime.

If this can be done, if his holdings -- in trucking; in transportation, even of old; in mines; in factories; in the juke box business; the television set production and distribution field, just to name a few endeavors -- can be traced to the beginning, the Justice Dept. may, for the first time, get to the hard core of "the organization."

It's a very daring concept. Certainly there are few others as diversified as Lansky. Or as capable of producing millions of dollars instantaneously. Not too long ago he was negotiating with a French firm for rights to a jukebox-TV combination.

The French businessmen said, fine, but really can you produce, what about putting up $5 million as a guarantee? Lansky left quietly. The next day he tossed a banker's check for $5 million on the table. It was drawn on a Swiss bank. Hundreds of millions of dollars could be at his fingertips.

If he wants money he does not need to call conferences as would some others of the combine to parcel out pieces of the action. He has it. And he is the one who can go to a politico, be it in Nassau, B.W.I., or any major American City, and say this is what you will get, this is your cut -- and the money will come.

Across his quite path have come men such as Carlos Marcello of Louisiana, allegedly a member of the crime combine's National Commission, old Frankie Costello, the late "Dandy" Phil Kastel, and mobsters so powerful that they've been able to keep their anonymity through the years.

Lansky, who has been in everything from coal mining to electronics and lush gambling houses, has worked in tandem with the 66-year-old Vincent (Jimmy Blue Eyes) Also of a posh Manhattan, West Side street just off Fifth Ave. Jimmy Blue Eyes is in the combine once headed by Vito Genovese. Which means that there is deep influence in some unions, much business, considerable politics and heavy investments.

The word from the wise is that if you want to make a connection with the Mafia combines you get to Lansky to get to Jimmy Blue Eyes. If you want to make it from the other side you get to Alo and he sits down with Lansky and the meet is made. It could be in an East 41st St. spot in New York or somewhere in San Francisco or Geneva, Switzerland.

Vincent Alo (According to such dedicated probers as New York State Senator John Hughes, head of the Joint Legislative Committee on Crime) took over from Frankie Costello as the reported "coordinator" of the national syndicate.

So the anti-crime strike force, devoting itself to just one man and his millions, may yet hit pay dirt. And we may yet understand the nature, in depth of that crawling thing called organized crime.

MISSOURI'S 1971 HOMEMAKER OF TOMORROW is Lucy Lair Tompkin of Smith-Cotton high school, Sedalia. She will receive a $1,500 scholarship on the basis of her performance in the annual Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow educational program. A total of 16,006 senior girls in 488 of the state's high schools were enrolled in this year's search.

Sedalia Girl is Betty Crocker Winner

MINNEAPOLIS--Missouri's Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow for 1971 is Lucy Lair Tompkin of Smith-Cotton high school, Sedalia. She will receive a $1,500 college scholarship and is eligible for national honors.

Named runner-up for Missouri, and a recipient of a $500 educational grant, was Deborah Gail Skinner of Marshfield high school.

Scholarship and honorable mention winners took their first step toward state honors by scoring highest in their schools on a written knowledge and attitude examination administered across the nation on December 1, 1970. This examination provided the springboard for their move through state-level judging.

From April 18-23, Miss Tompkin, accompanied by a school advisor, will tour Washington, D.C., and Colonial Williamsburg, Va., with Homemakers of Tomorrow and advisors from each of the other states and the District of Columbia.

The tour will culminate with the naming of the 1971 All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow. To be chosen through personal observation and interviews during the tour, the national winner will have her scholarship increased to $5,000. Three runner-ups will be awarded scholarships increased to $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000. All judging and selection of Homemakers of Tomorrow in the program is conducted by Science Research Associates, Chicago, which constructed and scored the original written examination.

A total of 650,000 young women were enrolled in this year's Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow, the 17th in the program's history. The only national scholarship program exclusively for high school senior girls, the search has enrolled almost seven and three-quarters million girls since its inception. Scholarship awards, with the 1971 grants, will total more than $1¾ million. Each year, schools of state Homemakers of Tomorrow receive a complete set of Encyclopaedias.

Lucy Lair is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Tompking, Sedalia. She has been a member of the National Honor Society for three years, a semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition, and recipient of a certificate of recognition from the Missouri School-College Relations Commission.

World War I Veterans Meet

The Veterans of World War I met last Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Heritage House with 12 present. A potluck dinner was served at 6 p.m.

John W. Murphy, commander, presided over the meeting. C. L. Campbell, N. G. Kindred and Hugh Garrison were elected delegates to the state convention in Sikeston in May. L. I. Fluelling, Harvey Ward, and Edward Lee are alternate delegates.

The committee on registration and ticket sales will be Fred M. Forbis, Hugh Garrison and C. L. Campbell. The committee on advertising and publicity consists of John W. Murphy, N. B. Kindred, Garrison, Sam Wilcox and Lee.

The reception committee is composed of Carl Wilkerson, Tanner C. Dye, Harry E. Blanton, Charles Blanton, John W. Murphy, W. U. Myers, and Paul H. Slinkerd.

In Defense of Women

THE TRANSVALUATION OF VALUES

The gradual emancipation of women that has been going on for the last century has still a long way to proceed before they are wholly delivered from their traditional burdens and so stand clear of the oppressions of men. But already, it must be plain, they have made enormous progress — perhaps more than they made in the ten thousand years preceding. The rise of the industrial system, which has borne so harshly upon the race in general, has brought them certain unmistakable benefits. Their economic dependence, though still sufficient to make marriage highly attractive to them, is nevertheless so far broken down that large classes of women are now almost free agents, and quite independent of the favour of men. Most of these women, responding to ideas that are still powerful, are yet intrigued, of course, by marriage, and prefer it to the autonomy that is coming in, but the fact remains that they now have a free choice in the matter, and that dire necessity no longer controls them. After all, they needn't marry if they don't want to; it is possible to get their bread by their own labour in the workshops of the world. Their grandmothers were in a far more difficult position. Failing marriage,they not only suffered a cruel ignominy, but in many cases faced the menace of actual starvation. There was simply no respectable place in the economy of those times for the free woman. She either had to enter a nunnery or accept a disdainful patronage that was as galling as charity.

Nothing could be plainer than the effect that the increasing economic security of women is having upon their whole habit of lifeand mind. The diminishing marriage rate and the even more rapidly diminishing birth rate show which way the wind is blowing. It is common for male statisticians, which characteristic imbecility, to ascribe the fall in the marriage rate to a growing disinclination on the male side. This growing disinclination is actually on the female side. Even though no considerable body of women has yet reached the definite doctrine that marriage is less desirable than freedom, it must be plain that large numbers of them now approach the business with far greater fastidiousness than their grandmothers or even their mothers exhibited. They are harder to please, and hence pleased less often. The woman of a century ago could imagine nothing more favourable to her than marriage; even marriage with a fifth-rate man was better than no marriage at all. This notion is gradually feeling the opposition of a contrary notion. Women in general may still prefer marriage to work, but there is an increasing minority which begins to realize that work may offer the greater contentment, particularly if it be mellowed by a certain amount of philandering.

There already appears in the world, indeed, a class of women, who, while still not genuinely averse to marriage, are yet free from any theory that it is necessary, or even invariably desirable. Among these women are a good many somewhat vociferous propagandists, almost male in their violent earnestness; they range from the man-eating suffragettes to such preachers of free motherhood as Ellen Key and such professional shockers of the bourgeoisie as the American prophetess of birth-control, Margaret Sanger. But among them are many more who wake the world with no such noisy eloquence, but content themselves with carrying out their ideas in a quiet and respectable manner. The number of such women is much larger than is generally imagined, and that number tends to increase steadily. They are women who, with their economic independence assured, either by inheritance or by their own efforts, chiefly in the arts and professions, do exactly as they please, and make no pother about it. Naturally enough, their superiority to convention and the common frenzy makes them extremely attractive to the better sort of men, and so it is not uncommon for one of them to find herself voluntarily sought in marriage, without any preliminary scheming by herself —surely an experience that very few ordinary women ever enjoy, save perhaps in dreams or delirium.

The old order changeth and giveth place to the new. Among the women's clubs and in the women's colleges, I have no doubt, there is still much debate of the old and silly question: Are platonic relations possible between the sexes? In other words, is friendship possible without sex? Many a woman of the new order dismisses the problem with another question: Why without sex? With the decay of the ancient concept of women as property there must come inevitably a reconsideration of the whole sex question, and out of that reconsideration there must come a revision of the mediaeval penalties which now punish the slightest frivolity in the female. The notion that honor in women is exclusively a physical matter, that a single aberrance may convert a woman of the highest merits into a woman of none at all, that the sole valuable thing a woman can bring to marriage is virginity — this notion is so preposterous that no intelligent person, male or female, actually cherishes it. It survives as one of the hollow conventions of Christianity; nay, of the levantien barbarism that preceded Christianity. As women throw off the other conventions which now bind them they will throw off this one, too, and so their virute, grounded upon fastidiousness and self-respect instead of upon mere fear and conformity, will become a far more laudable thing than it ever can be under the present system. And for its absence, if they see fit to dispose of it, they will no more apologize than a man apologizes today.

The winner will receive a $250 scholarship, plus an all expense paid trip for her and her chaperone to Mexico, Mo., to the Miss Missouri finals. First runner-up will receive a $100 savings bond and second runner-up a $50 savings bond.

Contestants will compete in talent, bathing suit competition, and evening gown presentation. Contestants must be 18 by September, and no older than 28, single, never married.

Entries are being accepted by the Malden Jaycees. Write to Dr. Larry Webster, 110 West Main, Malden, Mo., 63863 or call 276-3893.

Deadline date for entries is May 10.

Grant Dambach

Dambach Outstanding Sophomore

LILBOURN — Grant Dambach, son of Mayor and Mrs. Jimmy Dambach, has been chosen for the sophomore pilgrimage from Lilbourn high school.

Each year an outstanding sophomore is sponsored by the Civic Improvement Club for this honor. He is chosen by the faculty from the upper one-fourth of the class scholastically.

Dambach has been an honor student. He is a member of the basketball and baseball teams, the band, and a member of the student council.

He is an Eagle Scout and a member of the United Methodist church, church choir, Youth Fellowship, and holds the God and Country Scouting award.

The trip to the state capitol in Jefferson City will be April 12-13.

Student Makes Honor Roll

SPRINGFIELD--One student from Scott County was on the fall semester honor roll at Southwest Missouri State College.

She is Jane K. Miller from Chaffee with a 3.60 grade point.

The honor roll was announced by Lyle B. Leisenring, director of admissions and records. To be listed on the honor roll, a student must compile a grade point of 3.50 to a possible 4.

Mrs. Hearnes To Sing in Charleston

Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes, a member of the Charleston Junior Study Club, will appear as a soloist in the 23rd spring show presented by the club. "MISS-ouri, Her History (a hysterial Pageant)" is the title.

One hundred fifty years of women's liberation, will be its theme, featuring famous women in Missouri's history, including pioneer women, Belle Starr, Calamity Jane, heroines of the Civil War, suffragettes, and Rosie the Riveter from World War II. Even Sally Rand is scheduled for an appearance.

The curtain rises at 8 p.m., Thursday and Friday in the Junior high school auditorium. General admission tickets will be available at the door. Reserved seat tickets are available in advance from Study club members.

Meetings and Things

The executive meeting of the junior high school PTA will be next Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

Camp Latonka open house is scheduled Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Leaders not familiar with Latonka and interested mothers are invited to bring a sack lunch and tour the camp.

Fire Truck Takes Expectant Mother To Hospital

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — When Jesse Ybarra telephoned Friday for an ambulance to take his expectant wife to a hospital, the city dispatched a fire engine.

Officials explained that a 10-inch snow fall had made streets too hazardous for anything smaller than a truck during an emergency run.

Mrs. Ybarra rode in the cab to the hospital, where she gave birth to a 7-pound, 6-ounce boy.

Her husband, who said he was "kind of shocked" when the fire engine pulled up at his door, rode the truck's cold, wind-swept rear deck.

Ann Landers

Widow Doesn't Perform

Dear Ann Landers: My husband passed away after a long illness. He suffered a great deal. Since he was a private person who disliked public displays of emotion, I was determined to control myself at the funeral. With difficulty I managed to keep my head up and my eyes dry. Perhaps I had done so much weaping in my pillow during his illness there were no tears left when he died.

Dozens of callers gathered at my home after the funeral and I accidently overheard two women talking in the kitchen. They were saying how strange it was that I didn't seem at all shaken by my husband's death. One woman said, "This is the first time I've ever seen a widow who didn't go to pieces."

Did I do my husband an injustice by concealing my emotions? Would it have been better to have displayed my broken heart to the world? The women in the kitchen were not trying to hurt my feelings. They had no idea I was behind the door listening to every word. Tell me please. ------A Single Rose

Dear Rose: Your husband would have been proud of you. But you certainly disappointed the town busybodies by depriving them of the show they had come to see. They will not forgive you easily. My condolences to you and heartiest congratulations for your non-performance.

Dear Ann Landers: Occasionally you print material by others. I hope you will do so again. Here's a poem by Veda Ponikvar of Chisolm, Minn. It's one of my favorites. ----L.A. of Wash, D.C.

Saints And Sinners

"When some fellow yields to temptation
And breaks a conventional law,
We look for no good in his makeup,
But, Lord, how we look for the flaw.
No one asks, "Who did the tempting?"
Nor allows for the battles he's fought.
His name becomes food for the jackals,
The saints who have never been caught.
I'm a sinner, O Lord and I know it.
I am weak, and I blunder and fail.
I am tossed on life's stormy ocean
Like a ship that is caught in a gale.
I am willing to trust in thy mercy,
To keep the commandments thou'st taught,
But deliver me, Lord, from the judgment
Of the saints who have never been caught."

Dear Ann Landers: My husband hired a new assistant several weeks ago. Last week the man's family moved here. His wife is a pleasant person, attractive and sweet, but she makes me uncomfortable because she laughs all the time -- at nothing. At the end of every sentence she gives out this little "ha ha ha ha." I had an aunt who did the same thing. We called her "The Hyena." Why do certain people have such and odd sense of humor? ---New Mexico

Dear N.M.: This type of laughter has nothing to do with humor. It is a mechanism for releasing tension. Let's hope that when the woman becomes more comfortable in her new surroundings she will do less ha ha ha-ing.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents... if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gourmet Corner:

Practice and Precise Timing Can Make a Feathery Souffle

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

Everyone who likes to cook dreams of making the perfect souffle, but many hesitate for fear of winding up with a fallen failure.

The irony of it is you don't need to know too much about the culinary art to learn how to make a fine, fluffy souffle.

The secret lies in precise timing when the souffle is cooking and in serving at once when the dish is ready.

The egg whites which make the souffle puff up are beaten to incorporate as much air as possible, before they are blended into the rest of the souffle mix. The oven heat makes the air globules expand and gives the souffle its feathery texture.

There are two general categories of souffle: one made from meat, fish, cheese or vegetables which often serves as the main course of the meal. And the dessert souffle: made from pureed fruits or nuts or with liqueur.

There are a few basic rules to follow in making a souffle which should guide you past the pitfalls.

The souffle dish can be the classic French one with fluted sides, but a glass, over-proof casserole will do nicely. Just make sure you chill the receptacle in the refrigerator first and rub the inside well with butter.

A souffle should be cooked in a preheated oven set at 375 degrees F., and certainly no more than 400 degrees.

Most French cooks prefer their souffles with the inside almost liquid so that it will serve as a sauce for the firmer outer edges. But Americans prefer theirs cooked evenly through.

For a French souffle cooked American-style, try this recipe, made with pureed chestnuts and chocolate.

SOUFFLE AUX MARRONS

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 cup pureed chestnuts unsweetened
½ cup sugar
2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
4 egg yolks
4 egg whites
1 tablespoon vanilla extract

Melt butter in saucepan. Stir in flour. With a rotary beater, beat milk with chestnut puree and sugar until smooth and well blended. Slowly combine chestnut mixture with melted butter and flour to make a sauce. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Melt chocolate and stir into chestnut sauce. Beat egg yolks. Gradually stir hot sauce into egg yolks. Cool, beat egg whites until stiff. Fold egg whites and vanilla into chestnut mixture. Pour mixture into a heavily buttered 1½ quart souffle dish sprinkled with granulated sugar. Place souffle dish in a pan of hot water. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for about 40 minutes. Serve immediately. Serves 6 to 8 persons.

Women Need to Be Held

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A Vanderbilt University psychiatrist says "Women have a wish, or a need, to be held."

Dr. Marc Hollender told the Dallas Southern Clinical Society, "Some women will barter sex interest for the purpose of being held."

Men, he said, don't feel the cuddling urge quite as strongly and usually interpret such advances as a desire for sex

Misinterpeting a woman's desire to be held -- and held only -- often creates friction in a relationship, he said, which can cause serious marital discord.

44 Graduate from Licensed Practical Nursing Program

HAYTI--Jack W. Tipton, administrator of the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital, addressed the eighth graduating class of Licensed Practical Nurses in the gymnasium.

To the 41 women and three men graduates, Tipton said:

"This is only the beginning in their education, and from here on you should keep abreast of the times, and knowledge in today's rapidly changing world of medicine. The methods you once learned may quickly become obsolete."

The welcome address was given by Sam Wallace, Hayti school superintendent. Diplomas were awarded by Clem Beal, president of the Sikeston board of education. The course was given at Missouri Delta Hospital in Sikeston.

Clare Eisenbach, registered nurse, supervisor, of the class, presented school pins.

Bruce Gobbell offered the invocation and the Rev. Carl Brandt gave the benediction

Woman Seeks Mayor's Job At Chaffee

CHAFFEE — Women's lib has struck Chaffee's political life with the entry of the first woman candidate for mayor in the city's history. So far her candidacy has drawn no opposition.

Mrs. W. H. Wehmeyer is among nine candidates who have filed today for offices in the city election April 6. Since most present office holders have not filed for reelection, Chaffee stands to have nearly a new group of city hall personnel.

"I've always been interested in government," said Mrs. Wehmeyer, who has served on the city council for four years.

Asked what she thinks her chances are of becoming Chaffee's first lady, she said: "I really can't say because I'm new at this. I guess you would say I'm a housewife, but I'm one of those who helps out when needed."

The two-term councilwoman and her husband, an osteopath, have lived here since 1963.

Mrs. Wehmeyer is the only mayoral condidate to date. Mayor Robert H. Capshaw said he will not seek reelection.

Priest Named To Council

JEFFERSON CITY — The Rev. Fr. Wally Ellinger, New Madrid rectory, was one of 11 appointed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to the governor's advisory council for comprehensive health planning.

The council consists of 31 members who meet once each month to aid in finding solutions and defining priorities in the problem areas of accessibility to health services, emergency pollution abatement laws and the need for a Missouri Center for health statistics.

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico Secretary of State Mrs. Betty Fiorina said an analysis indicates there are 99,395 New Mexico citizens in the 16-20 year age group.

She said these people could become qualified to vote for national officials for the first time in the 1972 elections.

The present New Mexico voter registration of nearly 406,000 could be increased by nearly 25 per cent if most of the 16-20 age group registers.

Mrs. Fiorina said the analysis was prepared by the University of New Mexico Bureau of Business Research.

Parts Manager Wins Award

J. R. Hei Jr., 704 Mimosa, manager of the Sikeston Motor Company's parts department was named a sliver medallion award winner, and has received a trip to Nassau.

The medallion manager program is sponsored by the Autolite- Ford parts division in Atlanta, for outstanding customer service and sales and management ability.

He was among 540 service managers to receive a gold or silver award.

Hei is now eligible to be named a gold medallion manager, the program's top honor, next year.

J. R. HEI, JR., Sikeston Motor Company parts manager, holds silver medallion award he won for service and sales.

Dear Charlie:

Thank you very much for sending me a copy of your Progress edition. It is a beautiful job and all those ads really make my mouth water.

I was sorry that you did not manage to make that European trip last summer. If you had, you would have enjoyed it. As it was all the hell-raising was left to Max Thomas and myself--and that is too much of a chore for just the two of us--especially as our wives were along.

Congratulations on the excellent reproduction you are getting. Most commendable and I hope that people of your community appreciate the fine product you are producing. Take care of yourself so we can get together one of these days and solve some of the world's problems -- no one else seems to have the answers.

best regards

Dear Ken:

Today's acceptance of eighty-six (86) Pots and Superstructures in 1A and 1B Potrooms has brought us much closer to our goal. These include Pots and Superstructures No. 2 through No. 44 in 1A Potroom and No. 2 through No. 44 in 1B Potroom.

It is a credit to the Kaiser Engineer Testing Teams that all post were accepted with no exceptions noted. We were very impressed with the Pipe Fitter teams which repaired and adjusted air lines and valves while the systems were being tested. We wish to express our appreciation to all those involved in today's fine work.

Dear Editor:

NOTE: A reader of the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH wrote in a letter to the editor that "the MASSACRE OF A NATION" should be framed and hung on the wall of every home in America! Since I subscribe to the daily but not to the Sunday edition, I wrote asking for a tear sheet. It arrived promptly. To my surprise, I discoverd that the author, Stephen Ambrose, is Eisenhower Professor of War and Peace at Kansas State University. As has been by wont for the past six years, I'm making mimeographed copies to pass on to others. SHOULD A READER wish to have copies made to pass on in turn, thus working toward the goal of a copy in every American home--the stencils are at the A-1 Steno Service, 508 West 8th, Topeka, Kansas. This could prove a chain letter of genuine worth!

Slowdown Cited In Price Climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today what the White House called "encouraging news" for consumers, a two-tenths increase in the cost of living last month.

It follows January's increase of one-tenth of one per cent, and remains below the monthly increases of from three-tenths to six-tenths of one per cent that prevailed for all but one month of last year. Last August the increase also was twotenths of one per cent.

"This is good news," Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson said at the White House. "This is encouraging news," White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

"We still think we've got the economy headed in the right direction," Hodgson said, predicting further improvements later in the year.

The two-month increase of three-tenths of one per cent was the smallest since February and March of 1967, when prices rose by one-tenth and two-tenths of one per cent respectively.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, issuing the monthly report, attributed the February increase to higher food prices and increases in cost of apparel and most consumer services. These were moderated by declines in mortgage interest rates and prices of used cars and gasoline.

The February increase means it cost $119.40 to buy what $100 did in 1967.

February's cost of living was 4.8 per cent higher than a year earlier, for the smallest 12month rise since February 1969. The February rise, on a seasonally adjusted basis, also was two-tenths of one per cent.

In a departure from past practice, the cost of living figures were released without the customary briefing by BLS officials.

The department, in a 10-line statement on the departure, said it wimit earlier release of the data and "avoid the awkwardness of subjecting the professional staff of the Bureau of Labor Statistics to policy implications."

Children To Exhibit Art Work

CAPE GIRARDEAU--An exhibit of art works by children in grades 1-6 will be on display March 25-31 in the Art-Home Economics Building at Southeast Missouri State College.

The opening of the exhibit, which will be on the first and second floors of the building, coincides with the first day of the 95th meeting of the Southeast Missouri Teachers Association.

Five elementary teachers are responsible for the exhibit, which will show how elementary pupils progress in the field of art during their first six years of schooling, according to Roy Schoenborn, associate professor of art at Southeast Missouri State.

Schoenborn said the show will consist of a variety of media including graphics,paintings, drawings, and possibly collages.

Teachers arranging the exhibit are Mrs. Charlotte Slinkard and Mrs. Marion Weiss, both of the Cape Girardeau school system; Miss Pat Heath and Miss Susan Hoffman, both of Jackson school system; and Mrs. Joyce Miller of the Sikeston school system.

The exhibit may be viewed by the public from 8 a.m. 5 p.m. weekdays.s

OAKLAND CITY, Ind. — Philip J. Ponder, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Ponder Jr., formerly of Sikeston and now of Charleston, is director of the student news service office at Oakland City College, Robert Poinsett, dean of students, announces.

Ponder is majoring in American History and his minor is in journalism. Upon his graduation he plans to teach American history and sponsor a school newspaper. He is a member of the school's newspaper and yearbook staffs.

Youth Shot By School Crossing Guard

CARUTHERSVILLE The Caruthersville City Council took under advisement the matter of whether or not Mrs. Bessie Mae Whitfield, a school crossing guard, should be retained with the same privileges at a meeting last night here.

A spokesman for the city hall today said Mayor Bill Inman was planning to call representative groups from the council members to probe the matter, "and give her an opportunity to explain why she did what she did" the spokesman said. The meeting is expected to be held within the next few days

Mrs. Whitfield, who is employed by the school as a crossing guard, was sworn by the city in recent months "giving her the same privileges to perform the same law duties as any officer" the spokesman said.

Mrs. Whitifield's specific duties were questioned last week when she shot a 16-year-old youth she reported seeing steal some soft drinks from a truck. The shooting occurred in midafternoon Thursday on Best Avenue, and left Corzet Wiley with a gunshot wound in the hip.

State Students To Take Break

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Southeast Missouri State College students take a break from the books next week, and for once spring vacation actually coincides with the beginning of spring.

Spring officially arrives on Sunday while the college's spring break begins after classes on Friday. Classes will resume at 8 a.m. March 29.

The 95th annual meeting of the Southeast Missouri Teachers Association will be held on the campus March 24-25.

This marks the second year for the spring vacation at Southeast Missouri State to fall at the mid-point in the semester rather than at Easter.

The changes was approved by the board of regents with the provision that if the break did not come at Easter students would still get a holidy on Good Friday. Good Friday this year is on April 9.

Previously spring break was built around Easter and students were given holidays on the dates of the annual teachers' meeting.

Nixon Wants to Remove Radio Taint

By Editorial Research Reports

LONDON -- Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty were created to broadcast the truth to the people of the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. However, these stations were themselves based on the fiction that they were non - governmental organizations supported entirely by private contributions. In fact, these twin services were funded by the C.I.A. to the tune of about $30 million a year. Now President Nixon has ordered a study of alternative methods of financing these stations to remove the taint of an undercover operation.

Few Americans realize how invaluable a source of information these two services are. When Poles talk about "The Radio," they mean R.F.E. To many Czechs, R.F.E. represents their only means of learning what is happening inside Czechoslovakia. As one writer told Editorial Research Reports in Prague last summer: "R.F.E. is far better than the Voice of America." While the propaganda content of the Voice annoys the Czechs, he said, R.F.E. "tells us things about our own leaders which we cannot hear elsewhere."

When the Polish riots broke out in the port cities of Gdansk and Gdynia last December, it was the pressure of the broadcasts by R.F.E. and other western news media which forced the Gomulka government to admit that police fired on the workers. Where the Polish regime tried to suppress the truth, R.F.E. objectively attempted to reconstruct events. Similarly, when the 24th Soviet Party Congress convenes on March 30, Radio Liberty will be broadcasting more news about the meeting than the Russian people will obtain by newspapers or television.

The idea of using radio to penetrate the iron curtain with news from the West grew out of discussions held in 1948 between former Ambassador to Moscow George F. Kennan and State Department officials. R.F.E. began broadcasting on July 4, 1950, and Radio Liberty went on the air in March 1953.

In the early days of the cold war, the effort was widely hailed. But with the Hungarian uprising in 1956, R.F.E. was accused of leading thousands of Hungarian patriots to their death by inciting them to stand up to Russian tanks. It was purported that R.F.E. raised false hopes that the West might intervene.

Radio Free Europe now broadcasts 20 hours a day to Czechoslovakia, 19 hours each to Poland and Hungary, 12 hours to Romania, and 7 ½ hours to Albania. Radio Liberty, on the other hand, broadcasts 24 hours a day in the 17 principal languages of the Soviet Union. Most of the programming is news and political commentary leavened by lighter fare such as rock and pop music directed at the younger generation.

In an effort to live down R.F.E.'s reputation, Nathan Kingsley, the news director, points out that objectivity is stressed to such a degree that the news is "overly bland and even sterile by Western standards." Kingsley makes sure no fact is reported unless it can be attributed to a specific source. In most cases, no story is used on the air unless it can be cross-checked with another source.

The regimes in Eastern Europe, as well as the Kremlin, have for a long time been campaigning to see R.F.E. and Radio Liberty closed down. An estimated 31 million people regularly listen to the broadcasts in Eastern Europe, and perhaps as many tune in in the Soviet Union. Radio Liberty has already been forced to reduce its visibility, and the Kremlin is applying pressure to move R.F.E. out of Munich. The continued jamming, harassment and denigration of these two stations by Communist regimes are themselves the best testimonial to their worth.

Teachers Want to Keep Assistant Principal

MALDEN— A petition was circulated this week among teachers in the Malden junior high school asking the Board of Education to reconsider it's recent action whereby it demoted Assistant High School Principal Bill Pogue to the status of a classroom teacher effective at the end of the current school year.

A meeting of teachers with the Board of Education scheduled for Monday afternoon was concelled and it is not known whether or not it will be rescheduled.

The uproar among the teachers came after a recent action by the Board of Education whereby they abolished the position of assistant high school principal and established the position of junior high school principal for the 1971-72 school year. Pogue, who had been serving in the position, but in reality had been in charge of the junior high department was not offered the position of junior high principal. He has been offered a position as a full time math teacher.

Some of the teachers became more upset when it was rumored that the Board was considering employing a junior high principal from another school whom they do not like.

Wilbur Thornton, president of the Malden Board of Education, said that the Board had decided not to retain Mr. Pogue in an administrative position for several reasons. Among these reasons was that Mr. Pogue had been called before the Board twice for allegedly using a paddle too severely on a couple of students. However, Thornton said that this was only part of the reason.

It was learned that Mr. Pogue expressed his opinion to members of the Board in regard to a recent candidate being considered for the position of superintendent of schools. He is alleged to have stated that if that particular person was employed as superintendent that he would resign. The Board took this as a threat and resented it.

Teachers, who have voiced their opinion on the matter, say that Mr. Pogue is an excellent administrator and is respected by teachers and students.

Members of the Board of Education in addition to Thornton are James Darnell, James McConnell, Otto Green, Raymond Santie and Dr. Wayne Croom.

COLLEGE REOPENS

CANTERBURY, England (AP) — St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, which closed as the central college of the Anglican Communion in 1967, has now reopened as a theological college for students in their fourth year at King's College, London. The wives and families of married students can be accommodated and there will also be a small group of Roman Catholic Franciscans living at the college.

Hurley on Comeback Trail

It is a slow comeback for Bobby Dale Hurley, 18, following long hospitalization after a highway accident Easter Sunday.

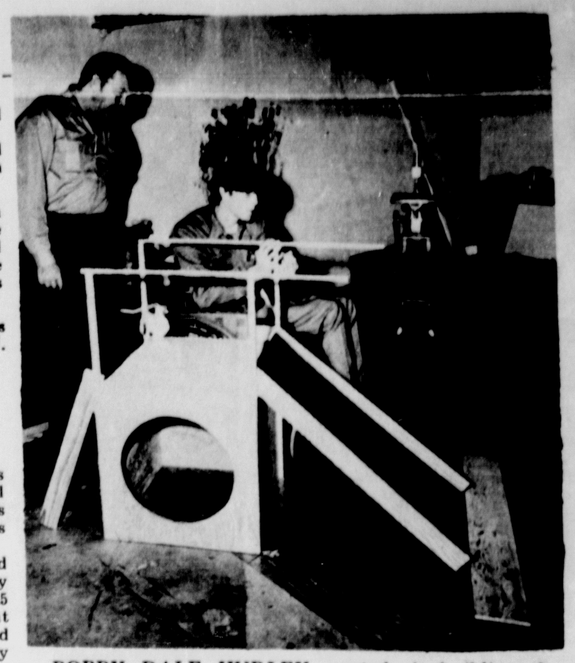
It was late in the afternoon and Hurley was returning from Charleston. Near Bertrand a car was driven onto the highway and to avoid striking it Hurley turned his vehicle quickly, lost control, went off the road and struck a tree and was pinned in the car.

He had three broken vertebrae and a bruised spinal cord.

He was in a Memphis hospital and then entered the Jewish hospital in St. Louis.

Hurley has shown improvement. He will continue visits to hospitals for physical therapy treatments and home assistance from the Easter Seals program.

He and his family live with his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sisk, 813 Pine.



BOBBY DALE HURLEY, seated, is building the sliding board and playbox in the foreground for his 15-month -old daughter, Wendy Kyle. He suffered a spine injury in an automobile accident last Easter. Buford Baber, who assisted in the project, stands behind him.

Ozark Meeting Site Moved

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—The March 18 meeting of the Ozarks Regional Commission, originally scheduled to be held in Little Rock, Ark., has been re-scheduled for Springfield, Mo., Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said Monday.

Hearnes, state co-chairman of the commission, said the federal co-chairman, E. L. Stewart, and Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers and Oklahoma Gov. David Hall are expected to attend. Kansas Gov. Robert Docking has reported he cannot attend.

Among projects to be voted on are a $450,000 grant to the city of Springfield toward its $1.5 million airport improvement plan and $200,000 toward expansion of the Phelps County Memorial Hospital at Rolla.

Cuba Adopts Strict Anti-Loafing Law

MIAMI (AP)-Cuba passed Friday a new law imposing strict penalties on working-age people without jobs or chronically absent from work or school, Havana radio reported.

The "anti-loafing law" has been under discussion for six months and is believed aimed primarily at dissident youths who Prime Minister Fidel Castro says "have failed to find a place in our revolution."

It goes into effect April 1.

The new law decrees that all males between the ages of 17 and 60 and all females between 17 and 55 have a "sovial duty" to work. It labels malingerers and bums as "parasites" of the revolution and provides penalties ranging from six months to two years of forced labor in "rehabilitation centers."

Bedridden Man Soon Will Have Two-Way Radio

A two-way radio will soon be a reality for Luther Murphy, 39, 114 Northwest St., who has been bed-ridden 22 years from rheumatoid arthritis.

"Big Ed" Schuerenberg of Kewanee today reported area radio enthusiasts have collected $70 in a drive to obtain a radio for Murphy, less than a week after Murphy's desire for one was mentioned in a story in the Daily Standard.

"We would like to get Luther a good radio," Schuerenberg said, "and more donations are needed." An antenna has been donated.

Persons, who would like to contribute to the Luther Murphy radio fund, may do so by mail or by contacting Schuerenberg at Kewanee.

Installation of the radio and antenna at Murphy.s home will be made by radio friends, Schuerenberg said.

Property Tax Relief Urged For Elderly

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Mayor A.J. Cervantes announced his endorsement Monday of a bill that would give elderly home owners and renters relief from property taxes.

The House Ways and Means Committee will hold a public hearing in Jefferson City today on the "circuit breaker" measure submitted by Reps. Jack Schramm, D-University City, and Joseph W. Hill, R-Kansas City.

"The reason I feel this is so important," Cervantes said, "is that so many elderly people who are on set incomes no longer can afford additional property taxes."

The legislation would give cash rebates or income credits to persons over 65 who either own or rent their homes.

Under the pending bill, 25 per cent of gross rent would be considered the equivalent of property taxes.

Morris Reveals Revenue Operation Speedup Plan

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Lt. Gov. William S. Morris has revealed a plan to speed up operations of the Department of Revenue by contracting with private industry for a data processing system.

He said the specifications could be drafted by Aug. 1, bids received by Oct. 1 and a contract awarded by Dec. 1.

Morris, asked by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to investigate methods of speeding up departmental operations, said the plan was patterned after one in operation in Indiana.

He said there were eight bidders in Indiana and the successful one save the state money on the data processing procedure.

"If this plan is inaugurated with the support of the Legislature," Morris said in a statement, "and works here as it has in Indiana, then next year we will not have the kind of problems which were experienced in the past and which to some extent we will have to endure again this year.

"At either the same or reduced costs, this plan will offer to Missourians a smoothly functioning system of computerized records for driver's license, motor vehicle titles and licenses, sales and income tax records and the numerous other documents handled by the Department of Revenue."

Required from the Legislature would be a change that would allow the appropriation for the department's present data processing system to be transferred for contractual costs.

Under the proposed system, the firm making the successful bid would bring in its own computers and other equipment and use its own employes to process records. Present data processing operation amounts to little more than a training ground for key punch operators, programmers and others in the data processing field. As soon as they become proficient they go to private industry where better salaries are paid.

The lieutenant governor said it has been proposed that outside experts would be employed to examine the bids and recommend a contract for the best bidder.

Seismograph Records Any Quiver at Hayti

HAYTI—The lead guitar of a rock group known as "The White Light" was throbbing its way through a "Soul" song at a talent contest at Hayti high school, and the youngsters in the gymnasium were screaming and stomping their approval.

Down the hallway in the physics lab, the needle on the school's newest piece of scientific equipment was doing a wiggly dance as it picked up the vibrations from the rock session.

Physics teacher Charles W. Guarr looked at the crooked line the nervous needle was etching on the seismograph.

"This machine is so sensitive that if an earthquake registering 6.5 on the Richter Scale occurred anywhere in the world, we would pick it up," he said.

The seismograph, Guarr said, is on loan to the school from the University of Mississippi and was installed about three weeks ago, "shortly after the California earthquake."

The university, for some time, according to Guarr, had been wanting to install a seismograph at a site near what geologists call the New Madrid fault.

The fault was formed by the giant 1811 and 1812 earthquakes near New Madrid, that created Reelfoot Lake in Western Tennessee.

Seismologists expect that within the next 10 years an earthquake "of major proportions" is going to occur along the New Madrid fault, Guarr said, "and the university wanted to set up a seismometer as close to the fault as they could, to monitor any acitivity going on.

"And Hayti," he said, "is the geological center of the fault. We're directly in the middle of it."

While he hasn't recorded any major activity, "We did have some very minor activity on March 9 at 7:10 a.m. and 7:49 a.m.," he said, studying a sheaf of red-inked graphs.

Each Friday Guarr sends a week's worth of the graphs to Dr. Fred E. Followill, head of Ole Miss' Seismological Observatory, where the data on he sheets is studied and then recorded.

If a major quake occured in the area, Guarr said, the seismograph at Hayti would join with machines set up at the university, at Rolla, MO., and at Knoxville, Tenn., to pinpoint the epicenter of the quake.

On a day-to-day basis, however, he said, the highly sensitive device is being put to practical use in the Hayti High physics lab.

Motioning to a particularly heavy set of markings that the seismograph had scratched three days before, Guarr said the device is being used to illustrate the "Doppler effect of sound waves."

"Have you ever noticed that you can hear a freight train approaching a much longer time than you can hear it after it has passed you?" he asked.

"Well, that's due to the Doppler effect of sound."

Turning to the graphs again, he pointed to seperate sets of squiggles, one longer than the other.

"The shorter line indicates that the train was traveling very fast," he said. "The longer line here shows that this train was going very slowly."

Using the graduations on the graph, the physics instructor said, "I can show the students how to calculate when the train came through the city, and another effect on the exactly how fast it was going." students that Guarr teaches. Not

The seismograph has had only is their attention more rapt, he said, "but several of them said that their parents went out and bought earthqauke insurance when they heard we had a seismometer in town."

Scientists Says SSTs May Hike Skin Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three scientists said Wednesday that supersonic jetliners could increase skin cancer. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., charged that the White House gagged a fourth.

The three experts agreed at a news conference called by Proxmire that scientific evidence supports the possibility that SST's could increase U.S. skin cancer cases by 10,000 a year, although there is no proof.

Proxmire charged that Dr. Gio Gori of the National Cancer Institute —who said the increase would range from 23,000 to 103,000 skin cancer cases in the United States alone—was prevented by White houintervention from appearing at the news conference.

Proxmire said the three who appeared were among 24 scientists who supported the theory of Dr. James E. McDonald, a member of the National Academy of Scientists, that 500 SSTs could reduce the stratosphere's ozone shield against ultraviolet radiation and increase skin cancer cases.

Dr. Thomas Fitzpatrick, chief of dermatology at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, said there is no question that increased radition would increase skin cancer cases.

Selective Service Board Locations Reduced to 26

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- Jack Merrick, director of Selective Service, announced Friday the number of locations of Selective Service boards will be reduced from 121 to 26.

These locations are:

St. Louis city, Kansas City, Springfield, Joplin, Crystal City, Sikeston, St. Joseph, St. Charles, Columbia, Hannibal, West Plains, Jefferson City, Cape Girardeau, Sedalia, Farmington, Carrollton Trenton, Lebanon, Union Kennett, Osceola, Kirksville, Mexico, Poplar Bluff, Rolla and Maryville.

The consolidation is part of a national economy move by the Selective Service administration.

Southeast Will Add Hospital Beds

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Trustees of Southeast Missour Hospital here have announced plans for a $1,600,000 addition to add from 60 to 64 beds to the present 209.

Architects and mechanical and structural engineers have been retained for the addition, which will wrap around the existing building, integrating and connecting with each of the present four floors.

Francis F. Lewis, president of the trustees, said the expansion is principally dictated by the need for additional maternity beds. There presently are 18 in the hospital and these will be increased to 30.

Southeast Hospital for several years has handled the majority of births in the Cape Girardeau area since St. Francis Hospital converted its maternity section to general hospital use. Other area hospitals, while continuing to take obstetric cases, have de - emphasized maternity care.

Armed Forces

SOUTH RUISLIP, England—Air Force M/Sgt. Gerald W. Watkins, son of Mrs. Alma Watkins of Bell City, Mo., has arrived for duty at South Ruislip Air Station.

Sergeant Watkins, a medical services technician, is assigned to the 7520th USAF hospital. He previously served at Udorn Royal Thai AFB, Thailand.

The sergeant is a 1945 graduate of Vandozen, Mo., high school. His wife is the former Iva L. Schlegih.

U.S. Army, Taiwan (AHTNC) March 11 -- Stanley H. Skelton, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Imogine Caldwell, route 2, East Prairie, Mo., was promoted to Army Specialist Four while serving as a supply specialist in the U.S. Army strategic communications command near Taiwan.

Chu Lai, Vietnam -- Army Specialist Four Gary Craft, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Opal Borders, 515 Ruth St., Sikeston, Mo., received the Army Commendation Medal while serving with the Americal Division near Chu Lai, Vietnam.

The medal was awarded for Meritorious service. Such service can be over an extended period of time or for outstanding achievement in a single situation. In either case, the recipient must have demonstrated skills and dedication far above the average.

Specialist Craft received the award while assigned as a driver in headquarters company, 1st Battalion, 6th infantry of the Divison's 198th Infantry Brigade.

The soldier's father, Virgil Craft, lives in St. Charles, Ill.

BLYTHEVILLE, AFB, ARK., ---- Among the 97th Bomb wing laurels now stands 97th Avionics Maintenance Squadron which was selected the Best in Second Air Force of all units rated in January.

Some of the reasons for the honor included the Outstanding Resources Conservations record accumulated by 97th AMS. The squadron's established goal was $43,000. Of this goal, $63,000 was validated for 146 per cent.

Outstanding Avionics system aboard the B-52 Stratofortress aided in the successful launch of the "Old Rover" missile in January.

When the 97th Bomb Wing was evaluated during the Operational Readiness Inspection last year, the bomb reliability of the squadron was rated outstanding along with the Electronic Countermeasures Branch. Target defense run reliability was rated outstanding, fire control reliability an excellent and Precision Measurement Lab received an excellent rating.

Six squadron personnel were selected Wing Maintenance Man of the Month in the last 12 months. Due to no reportable incidents in the last three quarters, 97th AMS received a Ground Safety Trophy. Wing Squadron Management League honored the maintenance squadron with the Squadron of the Quarter award, first quarter, 1970.

Leroy's Case Heard Twice

Leroy's fate couldn't have looked more dismal had he been a cat in a dog pound. Standing trial for having committed a serious crime, the testimony against him made him slink in his seat. But then, his chances suddenly became brighter when someone just happened to realize that no one had taken the trouble to swear in the jury.

"Hey! That's right," beamed Leroy's attorney as he jumped to his feet. "They haven't been sworn in. And, "he added gleefully, "since my client can't be tried twice, for the same crime, I demand his immediate release."

"Not so fast," responded the district attorney. I"Acturally, if the jury wasn't summoned nothing's been ventured and nothing's been gained. Therefore, there's no reason why we shouldn't simply be allowed to start all over again with a new jury. That would be the fair thing to do."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you let hopeful Leroy off the hook because the jury hadn't been properly sworn?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that in criminal cases the failure to swear in the jury renders the trial fatally defective; that, consequently, since Leroy's trial was not a legal trial, he can be tried anew.

Based upon a 1960 New York County Court Decision.

Travel Ban Lifted to Red China

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department lifted Monday 20year-old restrictions on the travel of American citizens to Communist China.

Following up earlier measures which loosened restraints, Secretary of State William P. Rogers ordered that passports would no longer carry a stamp stating they could not be used for travel to the Chinese mainland.

Such a restriction is being continued, however, on travel by Americans to North Vietnam, North Korea, and Cuba.

State Department officials said past experience indicates that authorizing use of passports in the case of mainland China will make little or no difference in actual travel by Americans there because the Chinese Communist regime has allowed very few Americans to enter the country.

The move is in line, however, with President Nixon's pledge last month to see what more might be done "to create broader opportunities for contacts between the Chinese and American peoples."

IT DOESN'T TAKE MUCH to attract attention in a city—or does it? In this case, the street scene is in London where four generous-hearted volunteers from a night-club parade King's Road in fashionable Chelsea for a good cause, raising funds for charity and also the eyebrow of a passing lady.

National Kite Flying Contest Set April 10

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution is inviting cities of the nation to send someone to Washington to go fly a kite.

The venerable institution, along with National Capital Parks, announced Wednesday a national kite flying contest on the grounds of the Washington Monument April 10.

Washington has had its own contest for years, but it had to be held with special permit or outside the city because of an 1882 law against kite flying. Now that law has been repealed, and the Smithsonian figured it calls for a celebration.

Smithsonian Associates have written chambers of commerce across the country informing them of the great kite flying fling and also to groups who they know hold such local contests.

As in the local contest, to be held March 27, kites will be scored on the basis of design, craftsmanship, decoration and performance.

Fund Shortage Delays Exams For Physicians

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A shortage of funds has forced a two-month delay in scheduling examinations for physicians, the State Board of Healing Arts reported Monday.

John A. Hailey, executive secretary of the state board, said it had been planned to hold examinations April 1 and 2 for an estimated 175 applicants, most of them foreign educated. But because the emergency appropriation bill is still tied up in House-Senate conference the examination dates have been pushed back to May 28-29.

By that time, Hailey said, it is expected that more than 700 applicants will be ready for the examinations. The emergency appropriation bill carries $27,000 for the board's operations the rest of this fiscal year.

You can't live on love forever.

Okay, you're young. You've got all the love in the world and you're doing your best to live on it. Retirement? That's for when you're old, right?

It's for when you're old if you can afford it.

The kind of retirement you're after isn't the typical rocking-away-on-the-front-porch variety. You probably picture yourself taking extended vacations, pursuing hobbies, or buying that forty acres and living off the land. Pipe dreams? Not if you prepare now.

There's an easy, painless way to make your retirement dreams a reality. Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. That way, an amount you specify will be set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's an easy way to save.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Now is the time to start saving. Money's a nice thing to have while you're living on love forever.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Gourmet Corner:

Belgium: The Land Where Beer Gives Meat a Third Dimension

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

My one and only stay in Belgium came at a time when that picturesque country, squeezed between Germany and France, was still recovering from the ravages of World War II, but even then its cuisine was memorable.

Belgian cooking is a marriage between the culinary arts of the Flemish and the Walloons, the two peoples who make up the bulk of the country's population.

These French and Flemish-speaking lingual groups have been at bitter odds for decades over the two-language problem which became so acute a couple of years back that it brought down a national government.

But Belgian cooking has survived the national strife and blended into a thing of harmony and beauty.

We especially recall the Belgian custom of simmering meat in beer, garlic and spices until it is reduced to a toothsome delight. Until that time, we had thought of beer as something to quaff from a goblet or use with caution and forebearance in a Welsh Rarebit. Since then, we have encountered beer and ale in everything from soup to savory sausage, but that was years later.

Beer stew is said to be a contribution of the Flemish half of Belgium's population, although it seems uncertain whether they actually invented it or got it from some other source.

The national drink in Belgium is beer in many shades, varieties and strengths. People are so fond of the creamy brew that they like it in their food as well as their goblets, whether partaking of lunch or dinner. In fact they even cook with beer at breakfast time, making a hearty eyeopener known as Gaufres Bruxelloises, or Brussels Beer Waffles.

The steady diet of Brussels Sprouts that filled the mess kits of U.S. troops in Europe during World War II did little to enshrine Belgian cookery in many American minds. But after the war, that much maligned vegetable faded from memory, as Americans became acquainted with dainty Belgian asparagus, lush Belgian endives and other bits of greenery. In fact once they sampled a dish of Brussels sprouts that hadn't been worked over by a G.I. cook, many Americans found it pretty good.

Meat has always ranked high on the Belgian menu, from the pungent smoked hams associated with the Ardennes to the chicken stewed in cream and duck stuffed with sweetbreads, bacon and mushrooms for which the country is noted. Not to mention the rich variety of fish and other types of seafood, such as eel, mussels and oysters.

But beer and meat make up the classic combination; to wit the pork flammande and the beer carbonnade which grace tables in Ghent and all through Flanders. Here is a recipe for the pork dish.

PORK FLAMANDE

3 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 pounds pork tenderloin cut into 2-inch cubes
salt and pepper
one pint beer
four oz. boiling water
1 teaspoon rosemary
2 onions sliced
2 leeks cut up
1 pint beef bouillon (chicken if preferred)
2 cups cooked sliced potatoes
2 cups cooked sliced carrots
1/4 cup flour
one oz. water

Heat oil in large kettle and brown pork cubes therein. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add beer, and boiling water and rosemary and simmer covered for one hour. Add onions and leeks and cook another 20 minutes. Stir in bouillon and simmer a couple of minutes. Add potatoes and carrots. Blend flour with one oz. water and fold into pork mixture stirring until thickened.

Serves about 6 people. Good with a cold rose wine.

Educator Wants Technology Given Place in Higher Learning

By RICHARD ZAHLER
Associated Press Writer

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Most people probably think of a college president as one with a string of graduate degrees and a reputation for achievement in at least one academic field. But that image doesn't fit Edward B. Lindaman, the new president of Whitworth College, a small liberal arts institution in Spokane.

EDWARD B. LINDAMAN — The newest president of Whitworth College in Spokane, Wash. is Edward B. Lindaman, a former aerospace executive who thinks modern technology must be given an integral place in the curricula of higher education.

Lindaman doesn't have the usual academic credentials. His highest earned degree is an associate of arts from a Minnesota junior college. And his field is a combination of electronics, mechanics and technological management.

Less than a year ago he was in his 27th year with North American Rockwell Corp., as a high-ranking executive in management planning, working in the space program.

Lindaman believes the transition from his former field to the academic one is both natural, because the respective jobs demand allied skills, and necessary to the future of education because of the overwhelming importance technology has assumed in modern society.

Because of what he reluctantly called the "closed" nature of academic communities, Lindaman says the movement of non-academicians into education will be slow, but his own experience at Whitworth leads him to believe it will become more accepted.

"Mankind is literally making his own world — not creating — but putting together that which is already created," Lindaman says. "Technology is a product of man, but either he uses it for the benefit of humanity or he lets it run away from him. Education must be on the forefront of this interface, teaching man to befriend technology, to ride with it rather than on it."

He believes a college education should impart knowledge consisting of equal and interrelated parts of the traditional liberal arts, advancing science and technology and some sort of spiritual framework.

"There is a need in college education to emphasize the technological element in relationship to the other two, as opposed to a simple emphasis on science," Lindaman says. "Someone coming from my field has a stronger grasp of that element, and part of my task is to bring it into combination with the other two."

Lindaman is quick to point out that he is not a scientist but a technologist, a man who "combines and recombines the discoveries of science into novel groupings." His view of the task facing education is, not surprisingly therefore, that of a technologist.

"Education has rightfully divided the world into pieces, into the academic disciplines," he says. "The time has come to put these pieces together again in novel regroupings which will be more relevant to our world."

If education can bring space age science into the traditional curricula Lindaman feels the resulting combination may offer mankind the "mid-course correction" it needs in learning to live beneficially with its snowballing technology.

Educational leadership, he says, calls upon the same abilities to marshal men and materials that are needed in industrial and technological production, the same abilities to forsee needs and consequences that are required in the space program.

State Seeks to Stop Orton Re-election Bid

JEFFERSON CITY — Attorney General John C. Danforth is moving to prevent oustied Pemiscot County Sheriff Clyde Orton from seeking re - election.

Orton said last week he would be a candidate in a special election since the Missouri Supreme Court ordered him removed from office.

Danforth is asking the court to amend its order by adding a provision that Orton can not legally seek re-election during the current term, Orton's lawyer said.

The supreme court ousted Orton March 8 because of "willful misconduct and neglect of duty" and "willful oppression and abuse of authority."

The court ruled the sheriff had not enforced certain gambling and liquor laws, and had threatened state liquor control agents from Mississippi.

Orton's attorney told a reporter he will file a motion for a rehearing of the case.

That motion, he said, would stay the court order removing Orton from office.

The motion will be filed with the Supreme Court here Monday or Tuesday, Reeves said.

A mandate, or final order, in the case normally would be issued by the court Wednesday — 15 days after the ruling was made.

That mandate would make the ouster final and would be the basis for the county court to call a special election.

Reeves also disclosed he will file a motion opposing Danforth's request.

Orton was re - elected in November 1968 and the term expires Dec. 31, 1972.

Reeves said Danforth had learned from the news media that Orton announced he would be a candidate in a special election "and is asking the court to forbid him from running."

The attorney general's office informed Reeves by mail Thursday of the latest step, he said.

A check with Danforth's office showed that a motion in the Orton case has been prepared, but it is not to be filed with the court until Friday pending final approval.

Craftsmen To Exhibit Products

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Two hundred craftsmen from Southeast Missouri and Southern Illinois, and from as far away as Tennessee, will be in Cape Girardeau Saturday and Sunday to exhibit their products. The Christian Arts Council of Cape Girardeau will host craftsmen representing 16 different craft areas at its first regional crafts fair at the arena building.

Exhibiting craftsmen include both youngsters and adults. Those exhibiting have a wide range of expertise. The dabbler, serious hobbyist and professional will all be represented.

The fair, to be established on an annual basis, provides craftsmen with an opportunity to exhibit their work for the enjoyment of others and to meet other craftsmen with whom they have common interests.

Demonstrations by some of the exhibitors are also planned, such as paper tearing, rock cutting and polishing, and candle making. The craftsmen will also display the raw materials used in their crafts, as well as tools and reference books used by them.

The craft areas represented include traditional favorites such as pottery, woodworking and metalworking, as well as more modern or unusual crafts such as photography, tin can art, and gem cutting.

The products of all the craftsmen will be exhibited by craft categories, in order to facilitate viewing by the public.

The exhibits will be open to the public Saturday from 1 p.m.—9:00 p.m. and Sunday, 1 p.m.—5:00 p.m. An admission will be charged.

Two Environment Proposals Criticized

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Senate Public Health, Welfare and Environment Committee took a somewhat critical view of two proposals Tuesday night which could improve environment.

One measure would authorize the Division of Health to set rules and regulations for a state solid waste management program.

The other would allow the Missouri Public Service Commission to add environmental measures to its rules and regulations for building public utility facilities.

No action was taken on either measure.

Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, chairman of the committee, said a bill sponsored by Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St Ann, would make strip mining impossible as it now reads.

The proposal is similar to a measure approved by the House Committee on Environment. The House bill is one of five known as the "Schramm ecology package," sponsored by Rep. Jack J. Schramm, D-University City.

The proposal is based on a study of solid waste disposal made by Robert M. Robinson, sanitary engineer of the Division of Health.

Robinson told the Senate committee the bill would, among other things, allow small cities which cannot afford to operate expensive sanitary land fills to establish cooperative land fills.

Sen. Maurice Schechter, DCreve Cœur, said the proposal, sponsored by Cason, to add environmental regulations to the Missouri Public Service Commission's duties was a duplication of regulation since the Water Pollution Board and Air Conservation Commission already has such authority.

The utilities supporting the bill said it would make it a "one stop" action for them since they already must come to the PSC for the okay on construction of new plants.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—How many of our presidents died on July 4?

A—Three — John Adams and Thomas Jefferson in 1826, and James Monroe in 1831

Q—In symbolism, what does the bluebird stand for?

A—Happiness

Q—What is distinctive about the Hawaiian language?

A—The alphabet has only 12 letters. Every Hawaiian word and syllable ends with a vowel

We're raising the curtain on a new symbol.

Here's what it symbolizes to you!

The dictionary defines a symbol as "a sign by which one infers something."

So what's inferred and what's so great about the Bank of Sikeston's new symbol?

Well we could get rather pompous and say . . . "Oh, our new symbol stands for a modern interpretation of 75 years of financial safety, security, stability and service to the folks and businesses of Sikeston!" And perhaps a lot of other nice sounding words beginning with the letter s.

But we'd rather you look at it as simply a new and visual sign of our promise . . . "Come to where the answer is."

It's sort of what we stand for.

Key Clashes at Houston

UCLA, the No. 1 team in college basketball, plays at the Astrodome in Houston Thursday night for the first time in three years. That could be a bad omen for the Bruins in their bid for a fifth straight national championship.

It was at the Astrodome on Jan. 20, 1968 that the Bruins' 47-game winning streak was snapped by the Houston Cougars 71-69 before an all-time paid basketball crowd of 52,693.

It was UCLA's only defeat that season and it kept the Bruins from breaking San Francisco's all-time collegiate winning streak of 60 in a row since they won 41 straight after that.

The occasion for UCLA's return to the Astrodome is the semifinals of the NCAA championship tourney. The Bruins play the Kansas Jayhawks and the Villanova Wildcats take on the Hilltoppers of Western Kentucky.

UCLA, Kansas and Western Kentucky had to rally to win their quarter-final games last Saturday. Villanova, to the surprise of virtually everyone, enjoyed a 90-47 romp over presviously unbeaten Penn, which had won 28 straight.

UCLA wiped out an 11-point deficit in the second half to beat Long Beach State 57-55 on four free throws by Sidney Wicks in the last 25 seconds.

Kansas, also down by 11 at one point, rallied to defeat Drake 73-71 and Western Kentucky came from 14 points back to trip Ohio State 71-68 in overtime.

Dave Robisch, 6-foot-11 Kansas star who may be paired against the 6-8 Wicks, sparked the Jayhawks against Drake with 27 points, including the goahead basket at 63-61.

The 7-foot Jim McDaniels scored 31 points for Western Kentucky, but it was Rex Bailey who saved the Hilltoppers from defeat by Ohio State in regulation time. He sank a 15footer with 12 seconds left for a 69-69 tie.

The Ohio Valley Conference champs won in the overtime on Clarence Glover's four points and three vital rebounds in the last 59 seconds.

Villanova opened a 25-point lead early and hit a blazing 62 per cent from the field in its romp over Penn. Howard Porter led the attack with 35 points.

"We did nothing right," lamented Penn Coach Dick Harter.

The NCAA championship final at the Astrodome will be played Saturday at 4 p.m. EST, between Thursday's winners and will be nationally televised by NBC.

Marquette, Fordham, Houston and Pacific won the four NCAA regional consolations while North Carolina, Providence, Duke, Tennessee and Georgia Tech won the vive first-round games that marked the opening Saturday of the National Invitation Tourney in New York.

Marquette trimmed Kentucky 91-74, Fordham downed South Carolina 100-90, Houston whipped Notre Dame 119-106 and Pacific shaded Brigham Young 84-81.

North Carolina overwhelmed Massachusetts 9-49, Providence beat Louisville 64-58, Duke overcame Dayton 68-60, Georgia Tech held off LaSalle 70-67 and Tennessee shaded St. John's of New York in overtime 84-83.

Two more first round games in the NIT were played Sunday with Michigan beating Syracuse 82-76 and St. Bonaventure downing Purdue 94-79.

The NIT continues with a tripleheader tonight, a doubleheader Wednesday and the semifinals Thursday. The final Saturday at 1 p.m. EST, will be nationally televised by CBS.

Former Cardinal Having Problems

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alex Johnson, former St. Louis Cardinal, and the American League batting king last season, is off to a bad start this spring and it has nothing to do with his hitting.

Rather it is Johnson's hustle that presents the problem, and it already reportedly has cost the morose outfielder $100.

Johnson, who has had runs ins with newsmen and teammates before during his career at Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati and now the California Angels, lasted only one inning before Manager Lefty Phillips benched him.

It didn't seem to affect his teammates as they went on to beat the San Diego Padres 7-5 in exhibition baseball.

Home runs highlighted many of the other games, along with two sterling mound performances by Joe Niekro of Detroit and John Strohmeyer of Montreal.

Rookie Bobby Brooks hit two three-run homers as Oakland beat Cleveland 10-6, Minnesota slashed four homers for a 4-3 triumph over Houston and Art Shamsky stroked a grand slam to boost the New York Mets past Boston 5-4.

Montreal stopped Washington 5-3 on homers by Coco Laboy and John Bocabella and Roger Freed and Greg Luzinski homered in Philadelphia's 5-3 decision over Pittsburgh.

Elsewhere, Atlanta beat Baltimore 2-1, Cincinnati halted St. Louis 5-2, the New York Yankees eneded a 12-game losing streak with a 3-2 victory over Detroit, Milwaukee downed the Chicago Cubs 4-2, the Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 6-5, an All-Star team defeated Los Angeles 6-1 and San Francisco edged the Tokyo Orions 5-4 in 14 innings.

Johnson reportedly was fined for not hustling in Saturday's game, and after he jogged to first base after hitting a grounder Sunday Phillips took him out. He said he feared Johnson might be suffering from an injury.

TRJC Places Fourth

HUTCHINSON, Kan. Ellsworth of Iowa Falls won the championship of the National Junior College basketball tournament Saturday night by defeating Southern Idaho of Twin Falls 80-71.

Ellsworth was never behind after halftime when they led 39-31 and rode along easily behind the dazzling play of Bennie Clyde, who scored 28 points in the game and was high for the tournament with 103.

Ellsworth was ahead 65-57 when they went into their delay game with four minutes to play.

Clyde was named the tournament's outstanding performer and his coach, Jim Carey, was acclaimed coach of the year.

Robert Morris of Carthage took third place in the tournament, defeating Hutchison 93-74.

Fourth place went to Three Rivers of Poplar Bluff, Mo. The Missourians defeated Columbia, Tenn., 102-99 in overtime. Columbia State was awarded seventh place in the double elimination tourney behind Hutchison.

Three Rivers exploded for 16 points in the overtime period. Their top pointmaker was Roy Fields with 21 but Harry Gilmore of Columbia was high for the game with 35.

TRJC trailed 50-44 at half and at one time trailed by as much as 14 points.

Coach Gene Bess' crew rallied to tie the game 86-86 at the end of regulation time and then proceeded to post the win with the large Hutchinson crowd yelling encouragement.

The Raiders finished 27-10 on the season.

Casper, Wyo., defeated Robert Morris of Pittsburgh, Pa., 63-58 in the first game of the day, and wrapped up fifth place. Pittsburgh's Robert Morris finished eighth.

Ellsworth's title-winning victory over favored Southern Idaho also brought Coach of the Year honors to Jim Carey and the Most Valuable Player award to Benny Clyde.

The all-tournament team selected by sports writers and broadcasters included Clyde, Tim Bassett and Ron Behagen of Southern Idaho; Roy Field of fourth place Three Rivers College at Poplar Bluff, Mo., Abe Stewart of fifth place Casper, Wyo.; Stan Brackmon of sixth place Hutchinson, Kan.; Ron Hockenous of Niagrara Falls, and Jim Dashield of Robert Morris of Pennsylvania.

Dashield won the tournament's sportsmanship trophy.

Big Ten Rejects Bears' Bid to Play at N' Western

CHICAGO (AP) — The Big Ten has rejected for a second time Northwestern University's proposal to allow the Chicago Bears to play in Dyche Stadium.

The action Sunday doomed for the foreseeable future the Bear's hopes of moving their National Football League home games to Dyche Stadium and did nothing to lessen the financial plight of Northwestern. Northwestern asked for approval to sign a three-year contract with the Bears, hoping that the athletic directors and faculty representatives who earlier this month rejected a five-year proposal, would relent.

Marcus Plant, Michigan faculty representative and spokesman for the group, said Northwestern's proposal was rejected by a "divided vote."

He added that Sunday's action "does not forclose future consideration of the subject of pro use of Big Ten facilities, but no appeal can be made from Sunday's decision."

In Palm Beach, Fla., George Halas, owner of the Bears, said the Big Ten ruling was "a giant step backwards."

NIT Quarterfinals Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Providence dives into the North Carolina pressure cooker tonight with a wounded guard and a worried coach.

"We can't be destroyed by that North Carolina pressure," Providence Coach Dave Gavitt said prior to the Friars' game against the deepest basketball club in the National Invitation Tournament.

Gavitt admitted he was concerned by the balance of the Atlantic Coast Conference team.

Dave Lewis is Providence's tough little guard and rebound power despite his 5-foot11 stature. Lewis, who twisted his ankle March 1, isn't certain for tonight although "he's running better on the ankle now," said Gavitt.

The North Carolina-Providence contest is the second game of a tripleheader at Madison Square Garden that starts the quarterfinals of this 34th annual classic. Tennessee meets Duke in the third game.

Hawaii, making its first NIT trip, and Oklahoma, which was rubbed out in the early rounds last year, wind up first-round action in tonight's opening game.

Michigan, the first Big Ten conference club ever to paly in this tournament, trimmed Syracuse 82-76 and St. Bonaventure grabbed a 94-79 decision from Purdue, another Big Ten club, in Sunday's first-round action.

The victories shot Michigan into Wednesday night's quarterfinal with Georgia Tech and St. Bonaventure into a meeting with the winner of the HawaiiOklahoma game.

Gavitt, whose Friars gained the quarterfinals by slugging Louisville 64-58 Saturday, admitted his club might have a little more trouble with North Carolina. Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina, who was once worried, isn't any more after Saturday's opening-round 90-49 conquest of Massachusetts.

BOB KARSTENS - MAN WHO INTEGRATED TROTTERS

Man Who Integrated Trotters Says They Make Game Enjoyable

If there's anyone wanting to know when the Harlem Globetrotters plan to integrate, they're a little late.

They did that almost 30 years ago, with ex-lowan Bob Karstens, who now lives in Costa Mesa, Calif., and still holds a special place in his heart for the Globetrotters' brand of basketball.

Karstens was the first and only white athlete to play under contract for the Trotters.

For the record, however, he was the third white man to wear the star-spangled togs of the "Magicians of Basketball" and there could be others in the future.

The late founder of the team, Abe Saperstein, filled in during the early days, and Bunny Levitt, who gave free throw exhibitions at halftime, played a few games. But Karstens was the only one in 44 years signed to a playing contract.

This happened in 1942--five years before Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier in major league baseball and nine years before Sweetwater Clifton of the Trotters did the same in the National Basketball Association.

"A shortage of players developed during World War II when Goose Tatum was called into service," Karstens recalled in an interview with Maury White, sports columnist of the Des Moines Register. "Abe asked me to dinner late in the 1941 season and said, 'I need a showman for the Trotters. Would you consider playing?'

"I couldn't find a pen fast enought. The Globetrotters were considered world champions at the time. I played all the 1942 season and about half of 1943 before Goose came back."

Being the only white guy on the team was never a problem, he insists. "You'd be surprised how few people even asked about it, and I was never conscious that my being white was a problem," Karstens told Maury White.

"If you can do the job and the tricks, you're accepted by other athletes. I had skills no one else had, after Tatum left, and we were just perfecting the 'circle' and Sweet Georgia Brown in those years."

Karstens is now involved with building construction in southern California but he is available to give ball-handling exhibitions. He still sings the praises of the Globetrotters.

"Dr. James Naismith invented the game but Abe Saperstein showed how it should be enjoyed," he said. "Basketball is lucky he came along."

Would the Harlem Globetrotters sign a white player today?

"Why not," replies George Gillett, general manager of the club, "if we find the type of player that fits our style of play."

OU's Athletic Director Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Although stunned by the sudden death of athletic director Gomer Jones, the University of Oklahoma's basketball team will go through with this evening's game in the National Invitation Basketball Tournament because "we feel that would be Gomer's wish...

Jones, 57, football coach at Oklahoma in 1964-5 and in his sixth year as director of athletics, collapsed and died on a subway platform Sunday night while waiting for a train. He and other members of the Oklahoma party, including his wife, Jeannette, were en route to the theater.

Coach John MacLeod, who was standing next to Jones when he died, said, "We're going to play the game beecause we feel that would be Gomer's wish."

Oklahoma is scheduled to meet the University of Hawaii at 5 p.m., EST, in a first-round game.

Dr. Pete Kyle [illegible]er, acting president of the university, issued the following statement:

"Coach MacLeod, the Oklahoma team and our entire official party are stunned. The world of intercollegiate athletics has lost one of its finest leaders, but we at the university are also overcome with a great sense of personal loss. It is our sincerest judgment that it would be in accordance with Mr. Jones' desires that the game go forward."

Jones was a familiar football name dating back to the mid1930s. A native of Cleveland, Ohio, he was a star lineman for three years at Ohio State.

He coached at John Carroll University and Martins Ferry, Ohio, High School prior to three years of Navy service during World War II. After spending the 1946 season as an assistant at the University of Nebraska, he moved to Oklahoma and served as line coach for 17 years under Bud Wilkinson.

He succeeded Wilkinson as head coach and his 1964 team posted a 6-4-1 record, including a 36-19 Gator Bowl loss to Florida State. The next year Oklahoma's record was 3-7, climaxed by a 17-16 loss to Oklahoma State in the finale, the first time in 20 years the Sooners had lost to their intrastate rival.

He stepped down as coach shortly after the season although his contract had two years to run.

Academy Dedicated

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Orestes Minoso-Arrieta is a broad-shouldered teenager with a burning desire to follow in his father's footsteps—against formidable odds.

If the son of Minnie Minoso, former sparkplug of Chicago's White Sox, achieves his goal he'll have baseball's first playas-you learn venture to thank for it. And the Kansas City Royals will have another major league ball player.

"I want very much to make it to the majors," said Minoso-Arrieta, one of 35 student-athletes enrolled and employed at the Royals' unique baseball academy, during Sunday's formal dedication ceremonies. "I have a great deal to learn. But it will work out."

The 17-year-old first baseman, a three-sport standout at Evanston, Ill., High School last year, was overlooked in the majors' free agnt draft.

But E&wing M. Kauffman, owner of Kansas City's American League expansion club, is betting $1.5 million—the production cost of the program—that the scouts were wrong.

"We see ourselves as the best of the expansion teams," Kauffman said. "But, under the rules of the game it takes a long, long time for an expansion team to build a winner."

Unable to get quick results through drafts, trades or purchases, Kauffman hit upon the idea of investing in the development of young talent, regardless of their prior baseball experience. And he decided to throw in free college education along with their baseball schooling.

Thus was born the academy, a picturesque, 121-acre campus complex with five playing fields and plush living quarters. It opened last Aug. 10, with 42 athletes selected from the 7,682 who attended tryout camps throughout the United States and Canada.

The tryouts consisted of demanding tests in vision, reaction time, depth perception, running speed, throwing strength and eye-hand coordination, among others.

The 35 survivors, due to complete the 10-month program in May and go on to the Gulf Coast rookie league as a unit, attend classes at nearby Manatee Junior College three mornings each week and do additional schoolwork at the complex.

They also spend at least 25 hours a week on the practice field or in competition with Florida college and semi-pro teams. They receive monthly salaries of $100 to $200, plus free room and board.

"I've been swinging at a lot of bad pitches and I have to work on my defense," said MinosoArrieta, who spurned football and basketball scholarship offers from several Big Ten schools. "But I really feel confident playing the game.

"I like to think I'm an exciting player. I was very young when I saw my father play in Chicago, but I guess what impressed me most was his hustle. He was always diving head-first into the plate. That's the way I like to play baseball. That's the fun way to play it."

"The coaches thought homesickness would be the biggest problem," said 19-year-old outfielder Rufus Caruthers of Kansas City, Kan. "But it's just like seventh heaven here. It's like home—only some of the guys think it's better than home."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Joe Cronin were among the luminaries at the dedication ceremonies. They heard a congratulatory telegram from President Richard M. Nixon read from the stage and they heard Sal Balderrama, a 22-year-old shortstop from Sacramento, Calif., speak movingly in behalf of his classmates.

"When you finish high school and the scouts haven't come knocking on your door, a 7year-old's dream can become a 17-year-old's disappointment," Balderrama said. "But six months ago the impossible happened for me. It's the dream of a lifetime come true.

"We hope that when a pennant is flying over Kansas City someday, some of us will be there."

Villanova, Western Ky. Advance

RALEIGH, N. D. (AP) — Villanova's Wildcats, riding a surging crest after their stunning 90-47 victory over Penn, placed three of their players on the NCAA Eastern regional alltournament team.

Next stop for the Wildcats is Houston, where they will take on Western Kentucky Thursday night in the NCAA semifinals. Villanova's Howard Porter, Hank Siemontkowski and Chris Ford were chosen for the all-tourney team by writers and sportscasters who covered the event. Porter, who was also chosen outstanding player of the tournament, was a unanimous choice.

The Wildcats' rout of Penn Saturday was powered by Porter, who paced Villanova with 35 points. Porter, a 6-8 senior, pulled down 15 rebounds against previously unbeaten Penn.

Looking toward Western Kentucky Thursday night, Porter said, "We'll probably be underdogs. But we were underdogs against Fordham and Penn."

In the consolation round, Fordham defeated South Carolina 100-90.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — "I think we've got our horseshoe in our back pocket now," says Coach Johnny Oldham of Western Kentucky, "but I sure hope it's not the same one Joe Hall had."

The seventh-ranked Hilltoppers marched past Jacksonville, Kentucky and Ohio State in the NCAA Mideast regional play to reach the semifinals in the battle for college basketball's 1971 national championship.

The game with Kentucky—first ever between the schools—was a one-sided affair, with Western rolling to a 107-83 victory.

Hall, an assistant coach at Kentucky, tossed a worn horseshoe on a table after the Thursday night game, saying it had come off Kentucky Derby winner Proud Clarion. "I kissed it, I did everything, but it didn't help," Hall said.

Oldham's good luck charm in the regionals was a 6-foot-8 lad named Clarence Glover of Horse Cave, Ky., 35 miles from the Bowling Green campus.

Glover sparked Western to the Mideast title Saturday when he grabbed three crucial rebounds and scored four points in the final minute of an 81-78 victory over Ohio State.

The previous week, Glover scored the winning basket in the final seconds in a 74-72 triumph over Jacksonville, last year's national runner-up.

Grandstand Destroyed

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — The main grandstand of Joplin's Joe Becker Stadium, a field that sired many outstanding baseball careers when it was known as Miners Park, was destroyed Sunday by fire.

Given to the city in 1955 by the Joplin Miners after the Western Association Baseball League folded, the park has been used in recent years, in addition to baseball for Shrine circuses and other outdoor events.

Cause of the blaze, which started in a small room beneath the grandstand, had not been determined and no estimate of the loss had been made, Dwight Vaugh, fire chief, said.

The fire broke out while the Memorial High School baseball team was practicing and was out of control for about two hours.

The facility was known as Miners Park for more than 50 years.

Most notable of the stars to emerge from its shadows was Mickey Mantle, who played for the 1950 Miners, one year before his debut at Yankee Stadium.

Harry Craft, Mantle's manager at Joplin, later managed the Kansas City Athletics.

Among other baseball notables who played here were Norm Sieburn and Jerry Lumpe. The late Charles (Gabby) Street, who was pilot of the St. Louis Browns and the St. Louis Cardinals, began his managing career at Joplin.

"We'll rebuild something," Robert Metzinger, city manager, said, "but it's obvious it would never be like it was in the golden days of minor league baseball."

In 1954 the park was renamed Becker Stadium in honor of the baseball scout who made Joplin his home.

Placekickers in the NFC had a field goal success percentage of .611 in 1970, a record for a professional league or conference, according to the NFL's official statisticians, the Elias Sports Bureau.

DOUBLE TROUBLE--Three Rivers, Poplar Bluff, has a solid 1-2 rebounding punch in Roy Fields (35), 6-foot-5, and Steve Reynolds, 6-foot-4. Here Reynolds grabs the ball in National Junior College basketball tournament action against Niagra County, Niagara Falls, N.Y. The Missouri Raiders won, 100-75, and proceeded to claim fourth place in the 16-team event with a 102-99 overtime win Saturday over Columbia State of Columbia, Tenn. Fields was named to the all tournament team.

Coaching Switch

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Harry Miller, 44-year-old head coach at North Texas State, will switch to Wichita State the next four years.

Miller was named Wichita State coach Saturday. Athletic Director Cecil Coleman said Miller was given a four-year contract at $18,500 a year.

Miller succeeds Gary Thompson, fired March 3 after the Shockers posted a 10-16 record and finished last in the Missouri Valley Conference. It was Wichita State's fourth straight losing season.

Coleman said Miller was "the only person who was considered for the iob."

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, March 22, the 81st day of 1971. There are 284 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1765, the English Parliament passed the Stamp Act to raise revenue in the American colonies.

On this date:

In 1622—some 350 Virginians were killed in the first Indian massacre of European colonists in America.

In 1794—The U.S. Congress passed a law prohibiting U.S. vessels from supplying slaves to another country.

In 1820—An American naval hero, Stephen Decatur, was mortally wounded in a duel with Commodore James Barron near Washington.

In 1917—The United States became the first nation to recognize a new provisional government in Russia.

In 1933—President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a bill legalizing beer and wine with 3.2 per cent alcohol content.

In 1941—Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River began producing electrical power.

Ten years ago — President John F. Kennedy asked Congress for authority to make long-term development loans to the countries of Latin America, Africa, the Middle East and Asia.

Five years ago—The British Archbishop of Canterbury, Arthur Michael Ramsey, arrived in Rome for a meeting with Pope Paul VI.

One year ago—Many postal workers in key U.S. cities continued to strike despite a presidential warning.

30 Teachers to Be Chosen for 2-Week Seminar

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)--The Missouri bar and the State Department of Education announced today a two-week seminar for 30 selected school teachers on "the rights and responsibilities of citizenship in a free Society."

The seminar will be conducted at the Missouri Bar Center in Jefferson City June 14-25 and for participation each teacher will receive $150 a week toward expenses.

The pilot program will be financed by a grant from the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council. The first 30 participants will be chosen from the faculties of both public and private schools. Applications must reach the Missouri bar in Jefferson City by April 1.

FAVORITE NAMES

TUEBINGEN, Germany (AP) — Most popular names given to infants born during 1970 in West Germany were Nicole for girls and Andreas for boys, a public opinion institute reports.

The Wickert Institute said its survey showed five per cent of the boys were named Andreas and an equal percentage of the girls were named Nicole. The survey covered 2,024 parents.

Big Turnout Expected for Primary

Tomorrow is primary election day in Sikeston with 13 candidates contesting for three city council positions.

The election will reduce the field to six, who will compete in the April 6 general election.

City Clerk John Vaughn said this morning that voting is expected to be heavier than previous primaries due to the large number of candidates. More than 1,500 are expected to cast votes Vaughn said.

A field of eight candidates are running for the one-year unexpired term vacated by Sam Harbin who resigned to devote more time to preparations to become superintendent of schools.

Six hopefuls will be eliminated by tomorrow's voting narrowing the field to two. Those two will face each other in the April election.

The eight candidates are Harold Depro, Mrs. Anita Hope, Mrs. Nadean Dickerson Glenn W. Milligan, Robert Jenkins, Kenneth Bridger, William "Webb" Edwards, and Vernon Morris.

Five candidates have filed for two three-year term positions on the council.

They are incumbents Taylor Noles and Chuck Grant and newcomers James S. Woods, Don Fulton, and Dr. Howard Johnson, a dentist.

One man will be eliminated from this race. The other four oppose each other in the general election.

Clear to partly cloudy weather is forecast for election day with high temperatures in the 40s. There is only a slight possibility of rain.

This will mark the first runoff in city council elections in three years.

The 13 filing candidates are the most to run since September of 1960 when 15 ran for five positions. This was the first election in the city manager form of government.

All absentee ballots must be submitted to the city clerk's office by 4 p.m. today to be eligible for the primary.

Absentee ballots for the general election may be obtained next Monday at the city clerk's office and must be returned to the clerk's office by 4 p.m. April 5.

Voting tomorrow from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. will be in eight precincts:

Ward one, precinct one police station; ward one, precinct two, Ethridge Tire Co.; ward two, precinct one, Presley Chevrolet Co.; ward two, precinct two, Lincoln school; ward three, precinct one, fire station one; ward three, precinct two, Lewis Furniture Co.; ward four, precinct one, Armory; ward four, precinct, two, Imperial Bowling Lanes.

There is no primary election for the five candidates, who have filed for the school boards. The two receiving the highest number of votes April 6 will be elected.

Tape recorder sales are expected to pass the $10-million mark this year.

In Scott County

Court Approves Food Stamps

The county court this morning unanimously approved a food stamp program for Scott county to replace the commodities program.

Court officials said it will be a minimum of eight months before food stamps are begun.

Scott county will join Dunklin, Pemiscot, New Madrid and Mississippi counties in adopting the food stamp program.

Action came before the court last week when a group of grocers from Chaffee, Oran, Charleston, Sikeston and Scott City meet with the court urging the adoption of the program.

A formal written request will now go to Proctor Carter, director of the state office for the program.

The waiting list of counties requesting adoption of the stamps includes 12 to 14 counties. Each of these counties will be considered before Scott county.

The stamp program is a federally financed outlet designed for people on welfare, elderly people and persons who have inadequate funds to feed their families.

The existing commodities program has come under attack recently for its wastefulness. Presiding judge Les Lankford estimated last week that 30 per cent of the commodities are thrown away.

There are 1,941 families in Scott county that are eligible for the commodities program.

Under the food stamp program a family of four earning $360 a month could buy $106 worth of food stamps (redeemable at any store) for $82; a family of six earning $360 could buy $144 worth of stamps for $96; a family of seven could buy $162 for only $104; a family of eight could buy $180 worth of stamps for $106.

A complete chart outlining the food stamp program will be published later.

Senate Takes Up Remap Issue

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Congressional redistricting and pressing revenue problems highlight the Missouri legislative week starting today.

The Senate Apportionment Committee headed by Sen. Omer H. Avery D-Troy, was to start work this afternoon, 2 p.m. on the redistricting problem that is one of the 1971 session's "must" jobs.

Pending is a bill Avery introduced as a starter to keep Missouri's 10 districts in line with the U.S. Supreme Court's one man-one vote requirement.

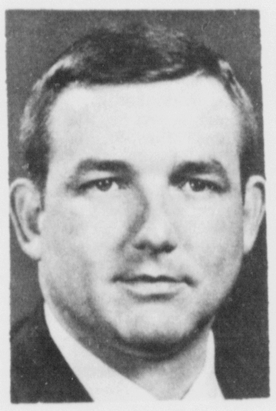
It puts two Democrats — Rep. William Randall of Independence and Rep. Richard Bolling of Kansas City — in the same district.

It has also drawn opposition from supporters of Rep. William L. Clay, the 1st District Democrat who is Missouri's first Negro congressman. Many more white votes would be added to his district by including parts of northern St. Louis County.

The 2nd District of St. Louis County, now represented by Rep. James W. Symington, son of Sen. Stuart Symington, would lose some Democratic votes in the change.

The House has three Congressional redistricting bills pending but Speaker James E. Godfrey, D-St. Louis, has not yet appointed an apportionment committee.

The House starts discussing the state's revenue problems Tuesday at 10 a.m., when it takes up, as a special order of business, a bill to make the present one-year income tax rates permanent.



E. E. Grant

Grant Seeks Council

E. E. "Chuck" Grant has filed for re-election to the city council for a three-year term.

Grant is a life-long resident of the Sikeston area and is a graduate of Sikeston high school. He attended Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau.

He completed his military obligation after serving six years with the national guard, and received an honorable discharge in 1968.

Grant is assistant vice president of Security National Bank. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the Breakfast Optimist club, where he has served on community projects. He is also chairman of the Sikeston Activity Center.

He and his wife, Joan, a teacher at Sikeston high school, have a five-year old son, Chip. They live at 501 Sikes Ave. and attend the Tanner Street Church of God.

After serving one year on he city council, Grant says he feels that he is well acquainted with the issues and hopes that the citizens will again place their confidence in him and elect him for the three-year term.

He says he believes that with the cooperation of the city council, Chamber of Commerce, and all of Sikeston's citizens "our fine city will grow and progress in an orderly fashion."

Thieves Take $1.5 Million Silver Display

MIAMI (AP) — Bandits tricked a guard at the Dade County Art Museum today and escaped with a silver collection worth an estimated $1.5 million, police said.

The pieces of silver, dating back to 1815, once belonged to Napoleon Bonaparte and his brother, Jerome of France, said R. K. Preston, business manager of the museum, Villa Vizcaya.

One youthful bandit pounded on the door of the museum and shouted: "Can you help me, I've got a boat broken down in the bay and I need a pair of pliers," said Harry Bjork, 62, a security guard.

Bjork said he left his basement office to accompany the youth to nearby Biscayne Bay when two others sprinted from the darkness and one stuck a pistol to his head.

The guard was bound and gagged in his office. Then the bandits loaded the loot in Bjork's van and vanished. The van, minus the silver, was found abandoned an hour later, police said.

Preston said the silver was owned by Samuel Kirk and Son, a Baltimore Jewely firm. It was on display at the museum since Feb. 23, under the sponsorship of Balogh Jewelers of Miami Beach.

The theft occurred hours before the collection was to be shipped back to Baltimore.

Wind Fans Grass Fires

High winds were blamed for grass fires this weekend.

Fire Chief Dolph Webb said that the fires were attributed to high winds and "people not paying special attention while burning their trash."

Firemen were called to 323 Alabama St. Saturday afternoon when a grass fire was reported. Almost an hour later firemen were called to the address again when the fire continued to threaten surrounding buildings.

Other grass fires were reported at 212 Alabama and 223 Felker.

Sunday night firemen were called to 217 South Kingshighway when a tree was reported on fire.

Webb said the fire resulted when debris from a trash barrel blew into a hollow elm tree.

First Wreck at Four-Way

The first traffic accident was recorded this weekend at a newly installed four-way stop sign at the intersection of Murray Lane and South Kingshighway.

A car driven by Oscar Cronk, 27, of 601 South West stopped at the four-way stop and proceeded to cross when it was struck by a vehicle driven by Cheryl Clark of Bell City, police reported. Miss Clark was charged with careless driving while running a stop sign.

A second weekend accident occurred yesterday when a car driven by Woodrow Glass Jr., 20, of Sikeston struck a car driven by Leo Schade of 205 West Wakefield.

The Glass car, according to police reports, was making a left turn off of Hunter Street and the Schade car was turning right from the El Capri parking lot. Apparently both cars started their turns at the same time and collided.

A two-car accident was reported at the corner of West Gladys and School Street.

A car driven by Elizie Pollard of 835 Tanner had stopped at the corner of West Gladys and School when it was struck in the rear by a car driven by Robert Morrow of 203 South Handy, police reported.

U.S. Planes Pound North Viet Sites

SAIGON (AP) —U.S. fighterbombers made heavy raids today on North Vietnam for the second successive day as more South Vietnamese forces retreated from Laos under heavy enemy attack.Saigon announced that 10,000 men had been pulled back across the border.

Informed sources indicated that scores of planes made the raids and that they were the heaviest against North Vietnam since last November.

The U.S. Command said the American pilots hit surface-toair missile—SAM—sites, antiaircraft gun positions and supply depots from the demilitarized zone at the 17th parallel to the 19th parallel, a distance of about 175 miles.

A South Vietnamese spokesman, Lt. Col. Tran Van An, said 12,000 government troops were still in Laos and that they nowhold three fire bases.

Field reports said the drive was nearing and end and that the strength actually was below 12,000 troops.

An said the westernmost South Vietnamese units in Laos are now eight miles from the Vietnamese border,more than 17 miles from their point of deepest penetration.

The Saigon command claimed that more than 12,000 Hanoi troops have been killed in the six-week-old drive to cut the Ho Chi Minh trail network. But the South Vietnamese admitted heavy losses themselves: 1,031 killed, 219 missing and 3,985 wounded, a total of 5,325 casualties, or about 25 per cent of the 22,000-man invasion force.

As the South Vietnamese returned to South Vietnam by U.S. helicopter or made their way overland, artillery duels raged across the border and U.S. warplanes exchanged missiles with batteries in North Vietnam.

Two South Vietnamese infantry battalions hurrying to the border ran into strong North Vietnamese forces south of Highway 9 and suffered 52 men killed and 80 wounded, field reports said. A South Vietnamese communique issued in Saigon claimed 245 North Vietnamese troops killed.

Low clouds fog and enemy artillery slowed down U.S. helicopters trying to lift South Vietnamese forces out of Laos.

There were still stragglers to be picked up south of Highway 9. Most of the South Vietnamese paratrooper division was pulled out along Route 9 but four battalions were moving eastward along the highway with an armored column and remnants of two other battalions.

Routes and Schedules Announced for Railpax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Railroad Passenger Corporation announced today its decision on routes and schedules between 21 pairs of cities for the new Railpax Passenger System, beginning May 1.

The corporation said that the route system would use the best of 1,500 out of 3,000 existing railroad passenger cars now operated by 22 different railroads.

David W. Kendall, chairman of the Board of Incorporators of the corporation said the 22 railroads now are losing more than $235 million annually and the initial objective will be to cut these losses by more than half.

The routes outlined include the following: Chicago to Cincinnati by way of Indianapolis and Lafayette, Ind., one train a day in each direction.

Chicago to Seattle by way of Milwaukee, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Willmar, Minn., Fargo, N.D., Grand Forks, N.D., Minot, N.D., Williston, N.D., Glacier Park, San Point, Idaho, Spokane, Pasco, and Yakima, Wash., one train a day in each direction with three additional trains each way between Chicago and Milwaukee.

Chicago to St. Louis by way of Bloomington and Springfield, Ill., two trains a day in each direction.

Chicago to Detroit by way of Jackson and Kalamazoo, Mich., two trains a day each way.

Chicago to New Orleans by way of Centralia and Carbondale, Ill., Memphis, Tenn. and Jackson, Miss., one train per day in each direction with an additional train between Chicago and Carbondale.

Chicago to Houston by way of Fort Madison, Kansas City, Wichita, Oklahoma City, Fort Worth and Temple, Tex. to be shifted to Dallas as soon as possible, one train a day each way.

Chicago to Miami, Tampa, and St. Petersburg, Fla., by way of Lafayette and Indianapolis, Ind., Louisville, Ky., Nashville, Birmingham, Montgomery, Bainbridge and Waycross, Ga., Jacksonville and Orlando. The train will split at Auburndale to serve both Miami and Tampa areas, one train a day in each direction.

Chicago to Los Angeles by way of Galesburg, Ill., Fort Madison, Iowa, Kansas City, Ottawa and Newton, Kan., Hutchinson, Kan, La Junta, Colo., Albuquerque and Flagstaff, one train per day in each direction.

New York to New Orleans by way of Washington, Lynchburg, Va., Charlotte, N.C., Atlanta, and Birmingham, daily between New York and Atlanta and continuing to New Orleans three times weekly.

NEW MADRID— Two persons are dead from a shooting that occurred at 11 p.m. Saturday at the Harlem Cafe, 601 Russell.

Shot were Charles Edward Triplett, 23, and Lorane Lane, 34, both from Malden.

Horace Cobb, proprietor of the cafe, was alleged to have shot Triplett after Triplett placed a knife against Cobb's thoat and threatened him.

Triplett was reported to have been causing a disturbance and had been called down by Cobb several times during the night. When Triplett advanced on Cobb with the knife, authorities said Cobb fired six shots with a .22 caliber revolver, five striking Triplett and one stray bullet hitting the woman.

Officer Billy Carter, who had been called to the scene, was outside radioing for assistance to Officers Gene Lyles and Russell Cobb when the shots were fired.

Triplett was pronounced dead on arrival at Missouri Delta Community hospital in Sikeston. The Lane woman, who was with her husband, was first thought to have fainted. She was taken to Pemiscot County Memorial hospital in Hayti where it was disclosed she had been shot in the back. She was dead on arrival.

No charges have been filed against Cobb pending a corcner's inquest at 1 p.m. today.

STATEMENT TO THE STUDENT BODY — from Howard R. Bennetts, Assistant Principal Waterford-Kettering High School, Linton, Indiana:

Last Thursday, Rick Thornton got up to get ready for school. He kidded with his mother who was busily getting breakfast of bacon and eggs. When breakfast was being served, his best friend came in and sat at the table. Kidding with his mother, Rick said: "I don't feel like going to school today" His mother responded, "You had better go to school unless you are sick. Don't you feel well?" Rick laughed it off, and the two boys left for school.

When they reached school, they decided to skip school for the day. As they made their plans, Rick said he wanted to "take a trip." Rick went into the boys' lavatory in the main lobby and allegedly made a buy of LSD for $2.00. Soon afterward, he took the pill, turned to his best friend and said, "So long, friend. See you later."

The boys left the school and walked toward a house in a nearby subdivision. They sat around talking during the morning hours, but it was apparent that Rick was extremely ill. He thought the best thing to do was to go home and get his mother to take him to the hospital. Rick insisted on going home alone. Apparently, finding no one at home, Rick went up to his room and lay on the bed. About 12:30 he descended from his room, picked a .22 calibre rifle from his dad's gun case, went out on the back patio ....

Rick's death is not fully attributed to the fact that he pulled the trigger. His death was staged when he made a $2.00 purchase in our school. It was staged when some big-wheel supplier contacted students in our school.

Many of you know more of the story than I but are afraid. I plead with you now; tell us before others are also dead like Rick. Somewhere in this student body there must be those who have the courage to be heroes - and we need those heroes now. Let us not sit back under some fake code which tolerates and encourages the destruction of the lives of our friends. Let us not say Rick Thornton died for nothing.

GO-AROUND AGAIN
ON THE AIR BAGS

There may be sound engineering reasons why inflatable air bags, which the government is insisting be installed in the front compartments of new cars beginning in 1974, are impractical. But if there are, Detroit has been strangly reticent about publicizing them.

Instead, here are some of the arguments advanced by the automakers (along with counterarguments that come to mind):

1. The bags might either fail to inflate or inflate accidentally.

(According to federal safety experts, General Motors' own analysis shows that the chances of either happening are five times in every 100 million operations.)

2. An accidentally inflating bag could obscure a driver's vision and interfere with his control of the car, thus possibly causing a crash.

(The bags inflate with an inert gas and deflate automatically within hundredths of a second, just long enough to cushion a forward-moving body. The whole operation is over before the human brain has registered it. Also see answer above.)

3. The bags wouldn't give protection if a car rolls over or is hit from the side.

(Neither would they give protection from the cornice of a building falling on a car.)

(Seriously, the bags are a "passive restraint" system requiring no positive action by a driver or passenger. They are designed to help save the lives and health of those three out of four Americans who absolutely refuse to wear seat or shoulder belts. But belts would still be necessary in case of rollovers. As for side collisions — well, what do you propose, Detroit?)

4. The bags would inflate when one car strikes a second car, but if the first car bounced into a third car, no further protection would be available.

(That's another reason why belts would still be necessary.)

5. A passenger could still be thrown into a windshild during the panic braking that precedes a crash and before bag inflation is triggered.

6. The force of an inflating bag could pop out car windows or spring door latches.

(So could the force of a collision. Also see answers to 4 and 5.)

7. Occupants could "submarine" under a bag and thus not be protected by it.

(See answers to 4, 5 and 6.)

8. Children sitting or standing on the car floor might be injured when the bag pops out at close range.

(Would this injury be greater than the injury they might receive by being thrown against or under a dashboard? Anyway, parents should not permit their children to sit or stand on the floor, expecially in the front compartment.)

What the antiinflation bag arguments seem to boil down to is that this safety device would not guarantee perfect safety in every conceivable contingency.

Unfortunately, perfection is not to be had this side of heaven, which is where 55,000 motorists last year found themselves, permanently.

The Wisconsin Power & Light Company reports that, "The sun has been used as a source of electrical energy by orbiting satellites for years; but now the National Physics Lab of Isreal has come up with a device which they claim can convert the sun's rays into electricity at a rate cheap enough for everyday use. The cadmium sulphite unit looks like a pane of black glass with attached wires. It is designed to absorb solar energy by day and release electrical power at night. Already in use on the Tel Aviv-Jerusalem highway powering a flashing amber light, the device will also be used to feed electricity to a lighthouse in the Titan Strait on the Red Sea.

SPEAKING OF JUSTICE

The professional hand - wringers are at it again.

Discussing the skyrocketing crime rate and the need for law and order at a press conference the other day, J. Edgar Hoover was asked about justice by one of the reporters. The FBI chief suggested that justice was incidental.

Whatever amount of carping may be made about the observation will not provide justice for those who are murdered, raped or robbed and denied the protection they have paid for through taxation and to which they are entitled. Is it justice that statutory punishemnt is jullified through legalistic legerdemain? Is it justice that a man who admits his crime should escape its penalty?

We have heard a great deal in recent years about poverty being responsible for crime. Some ofthe chief exponents of that theory have wrapped themselves in a cloak of alleged humanitarianism and urged that they be given access to the public treasury with the assurance that they could buy the bandits off. They haven't put it quite that bluntly, but it is the burden of their appeal.

The record, however, doesn't seem to confirm their representations. During a period when steadily increasing amounts of public money have been devoted to alleviation of poverty — and that in a period hailed as one of great prosperity — the rate of crime has accelerated beyond belief.

Great Britain has had a similar experience, according to Lord Justice John Passmore Widgery, of that nation.s Court of Appeals. Addressing the American Bar Association, in Philadelphia, he admitted he had accepted the view that, with the welfare state established in his country, crime would taper off. Somewhat ruefully, he conceded that, in spite of all that had been done to eliminate slums and wipe out poverty, the evidence revealed that crime is continuing to rise in Britain about as fast as it is here.

And when another speaker suggested that we must rely more on public housing and more handouts to combat crime, Judge Widgery commented: "anyone here who believes that relief of poverty will bring a decrease in crime is in for some kind of disappointment."

We've known a lot of poor people; and they weren't criminals. But no one encouraged them to believe that they could get — or take — something for nothing.

SOLD. When NATO - connected U. S. forces moved out of France, sales of excess military equipment and material whose acquisition cost wqs $3.2 million, brought in $139,000, according to the General Accounting Office. Among the items: $25,000 metal pins that cost $64,000, went for $801; medical and dental equipment in "poor condition" that originally cost $31,000, went for $229; five 115 volt generators, "good, unused," originally costing $21,000, went for $102.

HUNTER SAFETY

Nineteen years ago, the state of New York passed a law requiring previously unlicensed hunters under the age of 16 to take a course in safe gun handling before getting a hunting license. But, no instructors or standardized course in safety existed at that time. At the request of the state, the National Rifle Association, using information from its newly - established Uniform Hunter Casualty Report as a means of analyzing the causes of hunting accidents, created a basic course in safe hunting practices. The NRA prepared an instructor's guide, developed a method of certifying instructors in the course and was designated to administer the program to young hunters in the state of New York.

Today, 40 states and 7 Canadian Provinces administer Hunter Safety Training Programs. One - fourth of some 15 million licensed hunters in this country are graduates of the NRA Hunter Safety course. The results have been dramatic, with official figures showing a drop of 15 per cent in U.S. hunting fatalities during the period from 1950 to 1965. The purpose of the program has been described as not to turn out sharpshooters but rather "... to instill in the beginner a fundamental knowledge of guns and ammunition, proper gun handling under field conditions, a grasp of the hunter.s responsibilities to landowners and other hunters, and attitude that makes him put his knowledge into practice."

Some 52,000 dedicated individuals throughout the 50 states, as instructors in Hunter Safety, are devoting their time and energy to getting this message across. In the interests of preserving and bettering the enjoyment and experience of hunting for present and future generations of Americans, every hunter should participate in this program. It deserves the commendation and support of every one of us, hunter and nonhunter alike.

THE GREAT ALASKA QUAKE

The Good Friday earthquake that rocked Alaska in 1964 was quickly classified as the strongest ever recorded in North America, but scientists are still learning just how massive it was.

The U.S. Coast and Geodetic Survey has published a third volume on the earthquake, reporting the latest findings. A few of them:

. The Chugach and Kenai Mountains, about 80 miles from Anchorage, apparently shifted to the south a distance of approximately 50 feet. Other mountains sank 10 feet into the earth.

. Three islands in Shelikof Strait shifted to the east and south.

. Montabue Island at the edge of Prince William sound southeast of Anchorage, where the earthquake was centered, was lifted more than 30 feet. The unpopulated island, which about 50 miles long and 10 miles wide, tilted, with one side rising more than 10 feet above the other.

. The ocean floor between Kodiak and Montague Islands rose approximately 50 feet, the greatest uplift ever recorded.

Only because it occurred in an area of low population density does th Alaskan earthquake not rank as one of the greatest human and financial, as well, as well as geological, catastrophes of all time.

EUNUCHS EUCHERED

The Indian government's intense efforts to encourage family planning have run into an unusual kind of opposition. It's reported that eunuchs inthe state of Uttar Pradesh are campaigning against birth control.

With so few harems to guard these days, it seems that eunuchs in India earn their living by singing and dancing at weddings and at the births of children. The government, of course, is trying to cut down on the frequency of the latter.

"We cannot tolerate it," says a eunuch leader. "Singing and dancing to mark the birth of boy babies is our main source of oncome. We have launched our campaign atainst family planning to protect our very existence."

Officials complain that, in at least two areas, eunuchs have been singing antisterilization songs.

The consternation of family planning authorities is understandable. Who could have foreseen that eunuchs would contribute to the population problem?

NEED FEDERAL LAW
FOR INTERSTATE TAXES

There ought to be a law setting federal standards for taxation of companies which do business in several states, according to the National Association of Manufacturers. The Association says one firm in Maryland with neither assets nor employees outside its Maryland location, but wishing to make an effective selling effort to customers in Alabama, is called on to file, in addition to required state returns, more than 110 separate local sales tax and use tax forms.

Our friend was rather taken aback by this exchange and he turned to his fellow passenger and said: "Pardon me, sir, but I couldn't help overhearing your conversation. Did I understand you to say that you enjoyed sleeping with your friend's wife?"

"Well," said the fellow passenger, "I didn't really enjoy it. But Sam is a hell of a nice guy."

SENATOR FULBRIGHT

Last November, Senator Fulbright sent two staff members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, James Lowenstein and Richard Moose, to Cambodia to report on U.S. Military assistance to its government. In view of Fulbright's anti-war position, most observers expected a report which would corroborate these ideas.

But the opposite occured. The report states that the North Vietnamese launched an "unprovoked invasion" and that U.S. assistance has prevented a Communist takeover.

According to the report, the Cambodian government welcomes U.S. support: "They point out that they are asking not for troops and advisers, but for material assistance, and that this help is needed not to fight a guerrilla war but to meet an unprovoked invasion by foreign forces, which are occupying parts of their country and are attempting to subjugate others."

The report concludes that U.S. support of Cambodia is essential if Vietnamization is to succeed: "As a practical matter, Vietnamization is now tied to the survival of the (Cambodian) government."

In view of the significance of this support, it deserved wide publicity. But Senator Fulbright, to whom the report was delivered, apparently made every effort to prevent even committee members from seeing it. When he finally did release the report, it was not through the usual means of publication. Instead he quiely inserted it in the Congressional Record amid statements condemning the action in Cambodia.

Whether Senator Fulbright likes it or not, the citizens of this country are entitled to know the results of this report, which supports U.S. military assistance to the Cambodians as they defend themselves against Communist aggression. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The bee is nature's hardest working philanthropist. It has to visit 2,000 flowers to make a single tablespoonful of honey.

Who was the world's most prolific inventor? Probably Thomas A. Edison rates this honor. He has 1,093 patents credited to his name.

Education, like almost everything else, is getting more expensive. The expenditure per pupil in America has more than tripled in less than 20 years. It rose from a national average of $209 in 1949-50 to $659 in 1967-68.

Does it shock you to learn that some 60,000 persons a year are bitten by rats in the United States? One of the reasons it is so difficult to reduce the rat population--estimated at 100 million—is that a female can also eat or destroy from $5 to $10 worth of food in its brief lifetime.

When it came to giving euqal rights to women, New Jersey was something of an Indian giver. It gave women the right to vote in 1776, but about 30 years later passed laws taking it away again.

Quotable notables: "Tradition does not mean that the living are dead but that the dead are alive."—G.K. Chesterton.

Wonder how Edward Gibbon would feel at the overnight success of some present day authors? It took Gibbon, an 18th century historian, 15 laborious years to write his famous work, "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire."

Great shakes: The first recorded U.S. earthquake occurred at Plymouth, Mass., on June 1,1638.

Lighs on: We may or may not be the brightest people on earth, but we are certainly the most lit up. We consume more than 1.443 trillion kilowatt hours of electricity annually— and that's more than a third of the world's production.

Worth remembering: "Many a marriage turns into a triangle because someone didn't know where to draw the line."

Our affluent young: Almost 75 per cent of America's college students now have charge accounts or credit cards in their own name. That would appear to refute the generalization that the younger generation is one not to be trusted.

It was Marcus Aurelius who advised, "Adapt yourself to the things among which your lot has been cast, and love sincerely the fellow creatures with whom destiny has ordained that you shall live."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--Our negotiators in Paris have been restricted to the most routine intelligence about the war they are supposed to be settling. This has led to some grumping inside the delegation over the difficulty of negotiating in the dark.

The Paris delegation receives only a routine intelligence digest dealing with the Vietnam War. The top-secret stuff-battle plans, position papers, contingency plans and policymaking documents--aren't sent to Paris.

The air strikes at missile sites, anti-aircraft emplacements and other tactical targets in North Vietnam in late November, for example, caught Ambassador David K.E. Bruce completely by surprise. He received his first word of the attacks from the North Vietnamese.

This left him poorly prepared to handle the North Vietnamese delegation's protests in Paris. The communist negotiators let loose a propaganda blast, threatening to stonewall the talks.

Ambassador Bruce asked urgently for more details about the raids. He needed the background information to help him respond to the communist charges. His request was forwarded by his military liaison man, Lieut. Gen. Julian Ewell, in a "Flash" message to the Pentagon.

Admiral Thomas Moorer, the Joint Chiefs chairman, sent back a detailed account of the raids from the Washington Post. The reply was regarded in Paris as an insulting message to Bruce that he should be satisfied with what he reads in the newspapers.

POET'S NEW QUEST

Beat poet Allen Ginsberg, the unhappy hippie, has embarked upon the new role of investigative reporter in pursuit of evidence that the Central Intelligence Agency is supporting the opium racket in Laos.

Ginsberg, sandalled and balding, his long beard streaked with white hairs, has even managed to interview the seclusive CIA director Richard Helms, about the CIA's suspected opium smuggling.

Helms vigorously denied his agents are flying opium out of Laos. But Ginsberg has collected a thick packet of contrary evidence from ex-CIA men, State Department informants and classified UN documents.

The poet's theory is that the CIA has been compelled to help the opium farmers in the mountains of northern Laos in order to keep them fighting the communists. The CIA has raised a 10,000-man army from these Meo tribesmen. Without their opium trade, they might require massive U.S. economic aid.

Informants have told Ginsberg that the renegade Chinese Nationalists in northern Laos and Thailand also make their living from opium The CIA would like to keep these Chinese active, too, against the communists.

Ginberg prophesied his own startling switch from poet to protagonist more than a decade ago. In his collection, "Reality Sandwiches" he wrote: "I know I am a poet--in this universe--but what does that do..... There is an interior image of divinity beckoning me out to pilgrimmage.....How painful to be born again wearing a fine beard, reentering the world a bitter wreck of a sage."

POET'S TRANSFORMATION

We discovered Ginsberg's transformation from poet to muckraker when he came to our office, clad in his hippie garb, seeking proof of his opium story. To our surprise, his detailed files and probing questions were thoroughly professional.

He asked us for a copy of a letter that has disappeared from the files of a Senate Government Operations Subcomittee. The letter, written by a former CIA employee named S.M. Mustard, charges that South Vietnam's Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky once flew opium out of Laos.

The New York Times and Ramparts magazine, which are also working on the opium story, had called us about the letter. But Ginsberg came to our office and pressed in person for the missing evidence.

We dug a photostat of the letter, addressed to former Sen. Ernest Cruening, D-Alaska, out of our files. It told how Ky, during his missions as an Air Force colonel, "took advantage of this situation to fly opium from Laos to Saigon."

My associate, Les Whitten, verified several details in the letter but could come up with no additional evidence that Ky engaged in opium smuggling. The colorful South Vietnamese Vice President also denied the charge.

But the ragged, bearded Ginsberg tucked acopy of the letter into his impressive portfolio and strode off for an interview with Walter Pincus, a former Senate Foreign Relations investigator with inside information on Indochina.

MID EAST PEACE?

The Big Four were all set to issue a communique approving Egypt's offer to negotiate a Middle East settlement and calling upon Israel to respond by agreeing to a pullback.

But Egypt's President Sadat, under pressure from some of his fiery generals, went to Moscow and argued that it was impossible politically for him to extend the cease-fire. The Russians reluctantly agreed to support Egypt's refusal to continue the cease-fire agreement. This, of course, killed the Big Four communique and set back the Middle East peace effort.

There still is flickering hope, however, for peace in the Middle East. The battlefront is still relatively quite. The new Egyptian leaders seem genuinely anxious to turn their attention to internal problems. Israel also can't afford the drain of continued fighting. The hot-head Palestinian guerrillas are in disarray. And the Russians would like to open the Suez Canal and link up their naval forces in the Arabian waters.

Apparently everyone wants peace--if the way could be found to overcome the distrust that divides the Arabs and Israelis.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

EXCLUSIVE: Special Justice Dept. Strike Force Created To X-Ray Organized Crime by Tracing Lansky's Millions:

WASHINGTON: -- There is no more agile artful dodger than Meyer Lansky, reputedly the underworld's investment counselor; allegedly the financial consort of old Murder, Inc.; reportedly the "connection" between the combine, of which the late Vito Genovese was boss of bosses, and the man who bankroll the "other" mobs.

There have been reputable estimates that Meyer Lansky is worth the equal of the Kennedy family fortune -- about $400 to $500 million But the specialists scoff.They say he's a poorer multimillionaire -- about $35 million. What does he do with his money? Where did he make it? Why did he know virtually all the gory characters of a grim underworld? Is he really their financial wizard? Is he truly the combination's specialist in infiltrating legitimate business?

Is this gentle, 68-year-old, grandfatherly "little man," who hasn't touched a gun in 40 years, if ever, the nearest thing to an untouchable, a national Mr. Big? Or is he just a real estate operator, an angle guy, a New York businessman who retired to Florida and hit some lucky jackpots?

That's all uncertain. But there is one very definite thing about Meyer Lansky -- he is the first man, to my knowlege, ever to rate a full-fledged, special Justice Dept. coordinated anti-crime strike force all to himself.

There are 17 federal strike forces. The first began in Buffalo, N.Y. The last one set up shop some weeks ago in Kansas City, Mo. They are geographic. The Lansky strike force is subject-oriented. It operates out of Washington. It is headed by a razor-sharp special attorney. And it has its full complement of Internal Revenue agents -- for it is digging deeply into Mr.Lansky's financial empire.

This strike force operation is a phantom force. Its operatives don't report to any one city at any one time. They are, for example, watching the Miami Grand Jury which had Lansky subpended in Tel Aviv about two weeks ago. He was requested to show at 9:30 a.m. in Miami on March 11.

Of course he didn't. He rarely does. And why should he? He's a tourist now, some 8,000 miles distant. But that grand jury is only one of the strike force's tools. It also is seeking his connections and possible monies "earned" from the old Flamingo Hotel in Las Vegas.

However, that's just a probe into alleged skimming. The phantom strike force here wants to unravel Lansky's intricate books; his holdings, his hotels, his real estate developments; his connections with Wall Street operations, with some labor leaders and with the units of organized crime.

If this can be done, if his holdings -- in trucking; in transportation, even of old, in mines; in factories; in the juke box business; the television set production and distribution field, just to name a few endeavors -- can be traced to the beginning, the Justice Dept. may, for the first time, get to the hard core of "the organization."

It's a very daring concept. Certainly there are few others as diversified as Lansky. Or as capable of producing millions of dollars instantaneously. Not too long ago he was negotiating with a French firm for rights to a jukebox-TV combination.

The French businessmen said, fine, but really can you produce, what about putting up $5 million as a guarantee? Lansky left quietly. The next day he tossed a banker's check for $5 million on the table. It was drawn on a Swiss bank. Hundreds of millions of dollars could be at his fingertips.

If he wants money he does not need to call conferences as would some others of the combine to parcel out pieces of the action. He has it. And he is the one who can go to a politico, be it in Nassau, B.W.I., or any major American City, and say this is what you will get, this is your cut -- and the money will come.

Across his quite path have come men such as Carlos Marcello of Louisiana, allegedly a member of the crime combine's National Commission, old Frankie Costello, the late "Dandy" Phil Kastel, and mobsters so powerful that they've been able to keep their anonymity through the years.

Lansky, who has been in everything from coal mining to electronics and lush gambling houses, has worked in tandem with the 66-year-old Vincent (Jimmy Blue Eyes) Alo of a posh Manhattan, West Side street just off Fifth Ave. Jimmy Blue Eyes is in the combine once headed by Vito Genovese. Which means that there is deep influence in some unions, much business, considerable politics and heavy investments.

The word from the wise is that if you want to make a connection with the Mafia combines you get to Lansky to get to Jimmy Blue Eyes. If you want to make it from the other side you get to Alo and he sits down with Lansky and the meet is made. It could be in an East 41st St. spot in New York or somewhere in San Francisco or Geneva, Switzerland.

Vincent Alo (According to such dedicated probers as New York State Senator John Hughes, head of the Joint Legislative Committee on Crime) took over from Frankie Costello as the reported "coordinator" of the national syndicate.

So the anti-crime strike force, devoting itself to just one man and his millions, may yet hit pay dirt. And we may yet understand the nature, in depth of that crawling thing called organized crime.

MISSOURI'S 1971 HOMEMAKER OF TOMORROW is Lucy Lair Tompkin of Smith-Cotton high school, Sedalia. She will receive a $1,500 scholarship on the basis of her performance in the annual Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow educational program. A total of 16,006 senior girls in 488 of the state's high schools were enrolled in this year's search.

Sedalia Girl is Betty Crocker Winner

MINNEAPOLIS--Missouri's Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow for 1971 is Lucy Lair Tompkin of Smith-Cotton high school, Sedalia. She will receive a $1,500 college scholarship and is eligible for national honors.

Named runner-up for Missouri, and a recipient of a $500 educational grant, was Deborah Gail Skinner of Marshfield high school.

Scholarship and honorable mention winners took their first step toward state honors by scoring highest in their schools on a written knowledge and attitude examination administered across the nation on December 1, 1970. This examination provided the springboard for their move through state-level judging.

From April 18-23, Miss Tompkin, accompanied by a school advisor, will tour Washington, D.C., and Colonial Williamsburg, Va., with Homemakers of Tomorrow and advisors from each of the other states and the District of Columbia.

The tour will culminate with the naming of the 1971 All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow. To be chosen through personal observation and interviews during the tour, the national winner will have her scholarship increased to $5,000. Three runner-ups will be awarded scholarships increased to $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000. All judging and selection of Homemakers of Tomorrow in the program is conducted by Science Research Associates, Chicago, which constructed and scored the original written examination.

A total of 650,000 young women were enrolled in this year's Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow, the 17th in the program's history. The only national scholarship program exclusively for high school senior girls, the search has enrolled almost seven and three-quarters million girls since its inception. Scholarship awards, with the 1971 grants, will total more than $1¾ million. Each year, schools of state Homemakers of Tomorrow receive a complete set of Encyclopaedias.

Lucy Lair is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Tompking, Sedalia. She has been a member of the National Honor Society for three years, a semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition, and recipient of a certificate of recognition from the Missouri School-College Relations Commission.

World War I Veterans Meet

The Veterans of World War I met last Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Heritage House with 12 present. A potluck dinner was served at 6 p.m.

John W. Murphy, commander, presided over the meeting. C. L. Campbell, N. G. Kindred and Hugh Garrison were elected delegates to the state convention in Sikeston in May. L. I. Fluelling, Harvey Ward, and Edward Lee are alternate delegates.

The committee on registration and ticket sales will be Fred M. Forbis, Hugh Garrison and C. L. Campbell. The committee on advertising and publicity consists of John W. Murphy, N. B. Kindred, Garrison, Sam Wilcox and Lee.

The reception committee is composed of Carl Wilkerson, Tanner C. Dye, Harry E. Blanton, Charles Blanton, John W. Murphy, W. U. Myers, and Paul H. Slinkerd.

In Defense of Women

THE TRANSVALUATION OF VALUES

The gradual emancipation of women that has been going on for the last century has still a long way to proceed before they are wholly delivered from their traditional burdens and so stand clear of the oppressions of men. But already, it must be plain, they have made enormous progress — perhaps more than they made in the ten thousand years preceding. The rise of the industrial system, which has borne so harshly upon the race in general, has brought them certain unmistakable benefits. Their economic dependence, though still sufficient to make marriage highly attractive to them, is nevertheless so far broken down that large classes of women are now almost free agents, and quite independent of the favour of men. Most of these women, responding to ideas that are still powerful, are yet intrigued, of course, by marriage, and prefer it to the autonomy that is coming in, but the fact remains that they now have a free choice in the matter, and that dire necessity no longer controls them. After all, they needn't marry if they don't want to; it is possible to get their bread by their own labour in the workshops of the world. Their grandmothers were in a far more difficult position. Failing marriage,they not only suffered a cruel ignominy, but in many cases faced the menace of actual starvation. There was simply no respectable place in the economy of those times for the free woman. She either had to enter a nunnery or accept a disdainful patronage that was as galling as charity.

Nothing could be plainer than the effect that the increasing economic security of women is having upon their whole habit of lifeand mind. The diminishing marriage rate and the even more rapidly diminishing birth rate show which way the wind is blowing. It is common for male statisticians, which characteristic imbecility, to ascribe the fall in the marriage rate to a growing disinclination on the male side. This growing disinclination is actually on the female side. Even though no considerable body of women has yet reached the definite doctrine that marriage is less desirable than freedom, it must be plain that large numbers of them now approach the business with far greater fastidiousness than their grandmothers or even their mothers exhibited. They are harder to please, and hence pleased less often. The woman of a century ago could imagine nothing more favourable to her than marriage; even marriage with a fifth-rate man was better than no marriage at all. This notion is gradually feeling the opposition of a contrary notion. Women in general may still prefer marriage to work, but there is an increasing minority which begins to realize that work may offer the greater contentment, particularly if it be mellowed by a certain amount of philandering.

There already appears in the world, indeed, a class of women, who, while still not genuinely averse to marriage, are yet free from any theory that it is necessary, or even invariably desirable. Among these women are a good many somewhat vociferous propagandists, almost male in their violent earnestness; they range from the man-eating suffragettes to such preachers of free motherhood as Ellen Key and such professional shockers of the bourgeoisie as the American prophetess of birth-control, Margaret Sanger. But among them are many more who wake the world with no such noisy eloquence, but content themselves with carrying out their ideas in a quiet and respectable manner. The number of such women is much larger than is generally imagined, and that number tends to increase steadily. They are women who, with their economic independence assured, either by inheritance or by their own efforts, chiefly in the arts and professions, do exactly as they please, and make no pother about it. Naturally enough, their superiority to convention and the common frenzy makes them extremely attractive to the better sort of men, and so it is not uncommon for one of them to find herself voluntarily sought in marriage, without any preliminary scheming by herself —surely an experience that very few ordinary women ever enjoy, save perhaps in dreams or delirium.

The old order changeth and giveth place to the new. Among the women's clubs and in the women's colleges, I have no doubt, there is still much debate of the old and silly question: Are platonic relations possible between the sexes? In other words, is friendship possible without sex? Many a woman of the new order dismisses the problem with another question: Why without sex? With the decay of the ancient concept of women as property there must come inevitably a reconsideration of the whole sex question, and out of that reconsideration there must come a revision of the mediaeval penalties which now punish the slightest frivolity in the female. The notion that honor in women is exclusively a physical matter, that a single aberrance may convert a woman of the highest merits into a woman of none at all, that the sole valuable thing a woman can bring to marriage is virginity — this notion is so preposterous that no intelligent person, male or female, actually cherishes it. It survives as one of the hollow conventions of Christianity; nay, of the levantien barbarism that preceded Christianity. As women throw off the other conventions which now bind them they will throw off this one, too, and so their virute, grounded upon fastidiousness and self-respect instead of upon mere fear and conformity, will become a far more laudable thing than it ever can be under the present system. And for its absence, if they see fit to dispose of it, they will no more apologize than a man apologizes today.

Grant Dambach

Dambach Outstanding Sophomore

LILBOURN — Grant Dambach, son of Mayor and Mrs. Jimmy Dambach, has been chosen for the sophomore pilgrimage from Lilbourn high school.

Each year an outstanding sophomore is sponsored by the Civic Improvement Club for this honor. He is chosen by the faculty from the upper one-fourth of the class scholastically.

Dambach has been an honor student. He is a member of the basketball and baseball teams, the band, and a member of the student council.

He is an Eagle Scout and a member of the United Methodist church, church choir, Youth Fellowship, and holds the God and Country Scouting award.

The trip to the state capitol in Jefferson City will be April 12-13.

Student Makes Honor Roll

SPRINGFIELD--One student from Scott County was on the fall semester honor roll at Southwest Missouri State College.

She is Jane K. Miller from Chaffee with a 3.60 grade point.

The honor roll was announced by Lyle B. Leisenring, director of admissions and records. To be listed on the honor roll, a student must compile a grade point of 3.50 to a possible 4.

Mrs. Hearnes To Sing in Charleston

Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes, a member of the Charleston Junior Study Club, will appear as a soloist in the 23rd spring show presented by the club. "MISS-ouri, Her History (a hysterial Pageant)" is the title.

One hundred fifty years of women's liberation, will be its theme, featuring famous women in Missouri's history, including pioneer women, Belle Starr, Calamity Jane, heroines of the Civil War, suffragettes, and Rosie the Riveter from World War II. Even Sally Rand is scheduled for an appearance.

The curtain rises at 8 p.m., Thursday and Friday in the Junior high school auditorium. General admission tickets will be available at the door. Reserved seat tickets are available in advance from Study club members.

Meetings and Things

The executive meeting of the junior high school PTA will be next Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the school.

Camp Latonka open house is scheduled Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Leaders not familiar with Latonka and interested mothers are invited to bring a sack lunch and tour the camp.

Ann Landers

Widow Doesn't Perform

Dear Ann Landers: My husband passed away after a long illness. He suffered a great deal. Since he was a private person who disliked public displays of emotion, I was determined to control myself at the funeral. With difficulty I managed to keep my head up and my eyes dry. Perhaps I had done so much weaping in my pillow during his illness there were no tears left when he died.

Dozens of callers gathered at my home after the funeral and I accidently overheard two women talking in the kitchen. They were saying how strange it was that I didn't seem at all shaken by my husband's death. One woman said, "This is the first time I've ever seen a widow who didn't go to pieces."

Did I do my husband an injustice by concealing my emotions? Would it have been better to have displayed my broken heart to the world? The women in the kitchen were not trying to hurt my feelings. They had no idea I was behind the door listening to every word. Tell me please. -----A Single Rose

Dear Rose: Your husband would have been proud of you. But you certainly disappointed the town busybodies by depriving them of the show they had come to see. They will not forgive you easily. My condolences to you and heartiest congratulations for your non-performance.

Dear Ann Landers: Occasionally you print material by others. I hope you will do so again. Here's a poem by Veda Ponikvar of Chisolm, Minn. It's one of my favorites. ---L.A. of Wash, D.C.

Saints And Sinners

"When some fellow yields to temptation
And breaks a conventional law,
We look for no good in his makeup,
But, Lord, how we look for the flaw.
No one asks, "Who did the tempting?"
Nor allows for the battles he's fought.
His name becomes food for the jackals,
The saints who have never been caught.
I'm a sinner, O Lord and I know it.
I am weak, and I blunder and fail.
I am tossed on life's stormy ocean
Like a ship that is caught in a gale.
I am willing to trust in thy mercy,
To keep the commandments thou'st taught,
But deliver me, Lord, from the judgment
Of the saints who have never been caught."

Dear Ann Landers: My husband hired a new assistant several weeks ago. Last week the man's family moved here. His wife is a pleasant person, attractive and sweet, but she makes me uncomfortable because she laughs all the time -- at nothing. At the end of every sentence she gives out this little "ha ha ha ha." I had an aunt who did the same thing. We called her "The Hyena." Why do certain people have such and odd sense of humor? --New Mexico

Dear N.M.: This type of laughter has nothing to do with humor. It is a mechanism for releasing tension. Let's hope that when the woman becomes more comfortable in her new surroundings she will do less ha ha ha-ing.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents... if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gourmet Corner:

Practice and Precise Timing Can Make a Feathery Souffle

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

Everyone who likes to cook dreams of making the perfect souffle, but many hesitate for fear of winding up with a fallen failure.

The irony of it is you don't need to know too much about the culinary art to learn how to make a fine, fluffy souffle.

The secret lies in precise timing when the souffle is cooking and in serving at once when the dish is ready.

The egg whites which make the souffle puff up are beaten to incorporate as much air as possible, before they are blended into the rest of the souffle mix. The oven heat makes the air globules expand and gives the souffle its feathery texture.

There are two general categories of souffle: one made from meat, fish, cheese or vegetables which often serves as the main course of the meal. And the dessert souffle: made from pureed fruits or nuts or with liqueur.

There are a few basic rules to follow in making a souffle which should guide you past the pitfalls.

The souffle dish can be the classic French one with fluted sides, but a glass, over-proof casserole will do nicely. Just make sure you chill the receptacle in the refrigerator first and rub the inside well with butter.

A souffle should be cooked in a preheated oven set at 375 degrees F., and certainly no more than 400 degrees.

Most French cooks prefer their souffles with the inside almost liquid so that it will serve as a sauce for the firmer outer edges. But Americans prefer theirs cooked evenly through.

For a French souffle cooked American-style, try this recipe, made with pureed chestnuts and chocolate.

SOUFFLE AUX MARRONS

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 cup pureed chestnuts unsweetened
½ cup sugar
2 squares (2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
4 egg yolks
4 egg whites
1 tablespoon vanilla extract

Melt butter in saucepan. Stir in flour. With a rotary beater, beat milk with chestnut puree and sugar until smooth and well blended. Slowly combine chestnut mixture with melted butter and flour to make a sauce. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly until thickened. Melt chocolate and stir into chestnut sauce. Beat egg yolks. Gradually stir hot sauce into egg yolks. Cool, beat egg whites until stiff. Fold egg whites and vanilla into chestnut mixture. Pour mixture into a heavily buttered 1½ quart souffle dish sprinkled with granulated sugar. Place souffle dish in a pan of hot water. Bake in a preheated moderate oven (375 degrees) for about 40 minutes. Serve immediately. Serves 6 to 8 persons.

Women Need to Be Held

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A Vanderbilt University psychiatrist says "Women have a wish, or a need, to be held."

Dr. Marc Hollender told the Dallas Southern Clinical Society, "Some women will barter sex interest for the purpose of being held."

Men, he said, don't feel the cuddling urge quite as strongly and usually interpret such advances as a desire for sex

Misinterpeting a woman's desire to be held -- and held only -- often creates friction in a relationship, he said, which can cause serious marital discord.

Pageant to Be Held June 5

MALDEN--The annual Miss Southeast Missouri Pageant will be on June 5 at the high school gymnasium. This event is sponsored by the Malden Jaycees.

The winner will receive a $250 scholarship, plus an all expense paid trip for her and her chaperone to Mexico, Mo., to the Miss Missouri finals. First runner-up will receive a $100 savings bond and second runner-up a $50 savings bond.

Contestants will compete in talent, bathing suit competition, and evening gown presentation. Contestants must be 18 by September, and no older than 28, single, never married.

Entries are being accepted by the Malden Jaycees. Write to Dr. Larry Webster, 110 West Main, Malden, Mo., 63863 or call 276-3893.

Deadline date for entries is May 10.

Fire Truck Takes Expectant Mother To Hospital

WAUKESHA, Wis. (AP) — When Jesse Ybarra telephoned Friday for an ambulance to take his expectant wife to a hospital, the city disspatched a fire engine.

Officials explained that a 10-inch snow fall had made streets too hazardous for anything smaller than a truck during an emergency run.

Mrs. Ybarra rode in the cab to the hospital, where she gave birth to a 7-pound, 6-ounce boy.

Her husband, who said he was "kind of shocked" when the fire engine pulled up at his door, rode the truck's cold, wind-swept rear deck.

44 Graduate from Licensed Practical Nursing Program

HAYTI--Jack W. Tipton, administrator of the Pemiscot County Memorial hospital, addressed the eighth graduating class of Licensed Practical Nurses in the gymnasium.

To the 41 women and three men graduates, Tipton said:

"This is only the beginning in their education, and from here on you should keep abreast of the times, and knowledge in today's rapidly changing world of medicine. The methods you once learned may quickly become obsolete."

The welcome address was given by Sam Wallace, Hayti school superintendent. Diplomas were awarded by Clem Beal, president of the Sikeston board of education. The course was given at Missouri Delta Hospital in Sikeston.

Clare Eisenbach, registered nurse, supervisor, of the class, presented school pins.

Bruce Gobbell offered the invocation and the Rev. Carl Brandt gave the benediction

The graduates will take their state board examinations in Jefferson City, March 22.

Woman Seeks Mayor's Job At Chaffee

CHAFFEE — Women's lib has struck Chaffee's political life with the entry of the first woman candidate for mayor in the city's history. So far her candidacy has drawn no opposition.

Mrs. W. H. Wehmeyer is among nine candidates who have filed today for offices in the city election April 6. Since most present office holders have not filed for reelection, Chaffee stands to have nearly a new group of city hall personnel.

"I've always been interested in government," said Mrs. Wehmeyer, who has served on the city council for four years.

Asked what she thinks her chances are of becoming Chaffee's first lady, she said: "I really can't say because I'm new at this. I guess you would say I'm a housewife, but I'm one of those who helps out when needed."

The two-term councilwoman and her husband, an osteopath, have lived here since 1963.

Mrs. Wehmeyer is the only mayoral condidate to date. Mayor Robert H. Capshaw said he will not seek reelection.

Parts Manager Wins Award

J. R. Hei Jr., 704 Mimosa, manager of the Sikeston Motor Company's parts department was named a sliver medallion award winner, and has received a trip to Nassau.

The medallion manager program is sponsored by the Autolite- Ford parts division in Atlanta, for outstanding customer service and sales and management ability.

He was among 540 service managers to receive a gold or silver award.

Hei is now eligible to be named a gold medallion manager, the program's top honor, next year.

J. R. HEI, JR., Sikeston Motor Company parts manager, holds silver medallion award he won for service and sales.

JEFFERSON CITY — The Rev. Fr. Wally Ellinger, New Madrid rectory, was one of 11 appointed by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to the governor's advisory council for comprehensive health planning.

The council consists of 31 members who meet once each month to aid in finding solutions and defining priorities in the problem areas of accessibility to health services, emergency pollution abatement laws and the need for a Missouri Center for health statistics.

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico Secretary of State Mrs. Betty Fiorina said an analysis indicates there are 99,395 New Mexico citizens in the 16-20 year age group.

She said these people could become qualified to vote for national officials for the first time in the 1972 elections.

The present New Mexico voter registration of nearly 406,000 could be increased by nearly 25 per cent if most of the 16-20 age group registers.

Mrs. Fiorina said the analysis was prepared by the University of New Mexico Bureau of Business Research.

Dear Charlie:

Thank you very much for sending me a copy of your Progress edition. It is a beautiful job and all those ads really make my mouth water.

I was sorry that you did not manage to make that European trip last summer. If you had, you would have enjoyed it. As it was all the hell-raising was left to Max Thomas and myself--and that is too much of a chore for just the two of us--especially as our wives were along.

Congratulations on the excellent reproduction you are getting. Most commendable and I hope that people of your community appreciate the fine product you are producing. Take care of yourself so we can get together one of these days and solve some of the world's problems -- no one else seems to have the answers.

best regards

Dear Editor:

NOTE: A reader of the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH wrote in a letter to the editor that "the MASSACRE OF A NATION" should be framed and hung on the wall of every home in America! Since I subscribe to the daily but not to the Sunday edition, I wrote asking for a tear sheet. It arrived promptly. To my surprise, I discoverd that the author, Stephen Ambrose, is Eisenhower Professor of War and Peace at Kansas State University. As has been by wont for the past six years, I'm making mimeographed copies to pass on to others. SHOULD A READER wish to have copies made to pass on in turn, thus working toward the goal of a copy in every American home--the stencils are at the A-1 Steno Service, 508 West 8th, Topeka, Kansas. This could prove a chain letter of genuine worth!

Slowdown Cited In Price Climb

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government reported today what the White House called "encouraging news" for consumers, a two-tenths increase in the cost of living last month.

It follows January's increase of one-tenth of one per cent, and remains below the monthly increases of from three-tenths to six-tenths of one per cent that prevailed for all but one month of last year. Last August the increase also was twotenths of one per cent.

"This is good news," Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson said at the White House. "This is encouraging news," White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

"We still think we've got the economy headed in the right direction," Hodgson said, predicting further improvements later in the year.

The two-month increase of three-tenths of one per cent was the smallest since February and March of 1967, when prices rose by one-tenth and two-tenths of one per cent respectively.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics, issuing the monthly report, attributed the February increase to higher food prices and increases in cost of apparel and most consumer services. These were moderated by declines in mortgage interest rates and prices of used cars and gasoline.

The February increase means it cost $119.40 to buy what $100 did in 1967.

February's cost of living was 4.8 per cent higher than a year earlier, for the smallest 12month rise since February 1969. The February rise, on a seasonally adjusted basis, also was two-tenths of one per cent.

In a departure from past practice, the cost of living figures were released without the customary briefing by BLS officials.

The department, in a 10-line statement on the departure, said it wimit earlier release of the data and "avoid the awkwardness of subjecting the professional staff of the Bureau of Labor Statistics to policy implications."

Children To Exhibit Art Work

CAPE GIRARDEAU--An exhibit of art works by children in grades 1-6 will be on display March 25-31 in the Art-Home Economics Building at Southeast Missouri State College.

The opening of the exhibit, which will be on the first and second floors of the building, coincides with the first day of the 95th meeting of the Southeast Missouri Teachers Association.

Five elementary teachers are responsible for the exhibit, which will show how elementary pupils progress in the field of art during their first six years of schooling, according to Roy Schoenborn, associate professor of art at Southeast Missouri State.

Schoenborn said the show will consist of a variety of media including graphics,paintings, drawings, and possibly collages.

Teachers arranging the exhibit are Mrs. Charlotte Slinkard and Mrs. Marion Weiss, both of the Cape Girardeau school system; Miss Pat Heath and Miss Susan Hoffman, both of Jackson school system; and Mrs. Joyce Miller of the Sikeston school system.

The exhibit may be viewed by the public from 8 a.m. 5 p.m. weekdays.s

Youth Shot By School Crossing Guard

CARUTHERSVILLE The Caruthersville City Council took under advisement the matter of whether or not Mrs. Bessie Mae Whitfield, a school crossing guard, should be retained with the same privileges at a meeting last night here.

A spokesman for the city hall today said Mayor Bill Inman was planning to call representative groups from the council members to probe the matter, "and give her an opportunity to explain why she did what she did" the spokesman said. The meeting is expected to be held within the next few days

Mrs. Whitfield, who is employed by the school as a crossing guard, was sworn by the city in recent months "giving her the same privileges to perform the same law duties as any officer" the spokesman said.

Mrs. Whitifield's specific duties were questioned last week when she shot a 16-year-old youth she reported seeing steal some soft drinks from a truck. The shooting occurred in midafternoon Thursday on Best Avenue, and left Corzet Wiley with a gunshot wound in the hip.

State Students To Take Break

CAPE GIRARDEAU--Southeast Missouri State College students take a break from the books next week, and for once spring vacation actually coincides with the beginning of spring.

Spring officially arrives on Sunday while the college's spring break begins after classes on Friday. Classes will resume at 8 a.m. March 29.

The 95th annual meeting of the Southeast Missouri Teachers Association will be held on the campus March 24-25.

This marks the second year for the spring vacation at Southeast Missouri State to fall at the mid-point in the semester rather than at Easter.

The changes was approved by the board of regents with the provision that if the break did not come at Easter students would still get a holidy on Good Friday. Good Friday this year is on April 9.

Previously spring break was built around Easter and students were given holidays on the dates of the annual teachers' meeting.

By Editorial Research Reports

LONDON – Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty were created to broadcast the truth to the people of the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. However, these stations were themselves based on the fiction that they were non - governmental organizations supported entirely by private contributions. In fact, these twin services were funded by the C.I.A. to the tune of about $30 million a year. Now President Nixon has ordered a study of alternative methods of financing these stations to remove the taint of an undercover operation.

Few Americans realize how invaluable a source of information these two services are. When Poles talk about "The Radio," they mean R.F.E. To many Czechs, R.F.E. represents their only means of learning what is happening inside Czechoslovakia. As one writer told Editorial Research Reports in Prague last summer: "R.F.E. is far better than the Voice of America." While the propaganda content of the Voice annoys the Czechs, he said, R.F.E. "tells us things about our own leaders which we cannot hear elsewhere."

When the Polish riots broke out in the port cities of Gdansk and Gdynia last December, it was the pressure of the broadcasts by R.F.E. and other western news media which forced the Gomulka government to admit that police fired on the workers. Where the Polish regime tried to suppress the truth, R.F.E. objectively attempted to reconstruct events. Similarly, when the 24th Soviet Party Congress convenes on March 30, Radio Liberty will be broadcasting more news about the meeting than the Russian people will obtain by newspapers or television.

The idea of using radio to penetrate the iron curtain with news from the West grew out of discussions held in 1948 between former Ambassador to Moscow George F. Kennan and State Department officials. R.F.E. began broadcasting on July 4, 1950, and Radio Liberty went on the air in March 1953.

In the early days of the cold war, the effort was widely hailed. But with the Hungarian uprising in 1956, R.F.E. was accused of leading thousands of Hungarian patriots to their death by inciting them to stand up to Russian tanks. It was purported that R.F.E. raised false hopes that the West might intervene.

Radio Free Europe now broadcasts 20 hours a day to Czechoslovakia, 19 hours each to Poland and Hungary, 12 hours to Romania, and 7 ½ hours to Albania. Radio Liberty, on the other hand, broadcasts 24 hours a day in the 17 principal languages of the Soviet Union. Most of the programming is news and political commentary leavened by lighter fare such as rock and pop music directed at the younger generation.

In an effort to live down R.F.E.'s reputation, Nathan Kingsley, the news director, points out that objectivity is stressed to such a degree that the news is "overly bland and even sterile by Western standards." Kingsley makes sure no fact is reported unless it can be attributed to a specific source. In most cases, no story is used on the air unless it can be cross-checked with another source.

The regimes in Eastern Europe, as well as the Kremlin, have for a long time been campaigning to see R.F.E. and Radio Liberty closed down. An estimated 31 million people regularly listen to the broadcasts in Eastern Europe, and perhaps as many tune in in the Soviet Union. Radio Liberty has already been forced to reduce its visibility, and the Kremlin is applying pressure to move R.F.E. out of Munich. The continued jamming, harassment and denigration of these two stations by Communist regimes are themselves the best testimonial to their worth.

Teachers Want to Keep Assistant Principal

MALDEN– A petition was circulated this week among teachers in the Malden junior high school asking the Board of Education to reconsider it's recent action whereby it demoted Assistant High School Principal Bill Pogue to the status of a classroom teacher effective at the end of the current school year.

A meeting of teachers with the Board of Education scheduled for Monday afternoon was concelled and it is not known whether or not it will be rescheduled.

The uproar among the teachers came after a recent action by the Board of Education whereby they abolished the position of assistant high school principal and established the position of junior high school principal for the 1971-72 school year. Pogue, who had been serving in the position, but in reality had been in charge of the junior high department was not offered the position of junior high principal. He has been offered a position as a full time math teacher.

Some of the teachers became more upset when it was rumored that the Board was considering employing a junior high principal from another school whom they do not like.

Wilbur Thornton, president of the Malden Board of Education, said that the Board had decided not to retain Mr. Pogue in an administrative position for several reasons. Among these reasons was that Mr. Pogue had been called before the Board twice for allegedly using a paddle too severely on a couple of students. However, Thornton said that this was only part of the reason.

It was learned that Mr. Pogue expressed his opinion to members of the Board in regard to a recent candidate being considered for the position of superintendent of schools. He is alleged to have stated that if that particular person was employed as superintendent that he would resign. The Board took this as a threat and resented it.

Teachers, who have voiced their opinion on the matter, say that Mr. Pogue is an excellent administrator and is respected by teachers and students.

Members of the Board of Education in addition to Thornton are James Darnell, James McConnell, Otto Green, Raymond Santie and Dr. Wayne Croom.

COLLEGE REOPENS

CANTERBURY, England (AP) — St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, which closed as the central college of the Anglican Communion in 1967, has now re-opened as a theological college for students in their fourth year at King's College, London. The wives and families of married students can be accommodated and there will also be a small group of Roman Catholic Franciscans living at the college.

Hurley on Comeback Trail

It is a slow comeback for Bobby Dale Hurley, 18, following long hospitalization after a highway accident Easter Sunday.

It was late in the afternoon and Hurley was returning from Charleston. Near Bertrand a car was driven onto the highway and to avoid striking it Hurley turned his vehicle quickly, lost control, went off the road and struck a tree and was pinned in the car.

He had three broken vertebrae and a bruised spinal cord.

He was in a Memphis hospital and then entered the Jewish hospital in St. Louis.

Hurley has shown improvement. He will continue visits to hospitals for physical therapy treatments and home assistance from the Easter Seals program.

He and his family live with his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sisk, 813 Pine.

Ozark Meeting Site Moved

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)–The March 18 meeting of the Ozarks Regional Commission, originally scheduled to be held in Little Rock, Ark., has been re-scheduled for Springfield, Mo., Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said Monday.

Hearnes, state co-chairman of the commission, said the federal co-chairman, E. L. Stewart, and Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers and Oklahoma Gov. David Hall are expected to attend. Kansas Gov. Robert Docking has reported he cannot attend.

Among projects to be voted on are a $450,000 grant to the city of Springfield toward its $1.5 million airport improvement plan and $200,000 toward expansion of the Phelps County Memorial Hospital at Rolla.

Cuba Adopts Strict Anti-Loafing Law

MIAMI (AP)–Cuba passed Friday a new law imposing strict penalties on working-age people without jobs or chronically absent from work or school, Havana radio reported.

The "anti-loafing law" has been under discussion for six months and is believed aimed primarily at dissident youths who Prime Minister Fidel Castro says "have failed to find a place in our revolution."

It goes into effect April 1.

The new law decrees that all males between the ages of 17 and 60 and all females between 17 and 55 have a "sovial duty" to work. It labels malingerers and bums as "parasites" of the revolution and provides penalties ranging from six months to two years of forced labor in "rehabilitation centers."

$45,400 Planning Grant Awarded

WASHINGTON (AP) – A grant of $45,400 to the Southeast Missouri Regional Planning Commission in Perryville, Mo., for planning water and waste disposal services in rural areas has been approved by the Farmers Home Administration.

The plans will concern developments in Cape Girardeau, Bollinger, Iron, Madison, St. Francois and Ste. Genevieve counties.

Bedridden Man Soon Will Have Two-Way Radio

A two-way radio will soon be a reality for Luther Murphy, 39, 114 Northwest St., who has been bed-ridden 22 years from rheumatoid arthritis.

"Big Ed" Schuerenberg of Kewanee today reported area radio enthusiasts have collected $70 in a drive to obtain a radio for Murphy, less than a week after Murphy's desire for one was mentioned in a story in the Daily Standard.

"We would like to get Luther a good radio," Schuerenberg said, "and more donations are needed." An antenna has been donated.

Persons, who would like to contribute to the Luther Murphy radio fund, may do so by mail or by contacting Schuerenberg at Kewanee.

Installation of the radio and antenna at Murphy.s home will be made by radio friends, Schuerenberg said.

Property Tax Relief Urged For Elderly

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Mayor A.J. Cervantes announced his endorsement Monday of a bill that would give elderly home owners and renters relief from property taxes.

The House Ways and Means Committee will hold a public hearing in Jefferson City today on the "circuit breaker" measure submitted by Reps. Jack Schramm, D-University City, and Joseph W. Hill, R-Kansas City.

"The reason I feel this is so important," Cervantes said, "is that so many elderly people who are on set incomes no longer can afford additional property taxes."

The legislation would give cash rebates or income credits to persons over 65 who either own or rent their homes.

Morris Reveals Revenue Operation Speedup Plan

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Lt. Gov. William S. Morris has revealed a plan to speed up operations of the Department of Revenue by contracting with private industry for a data processing system.

He said the specifications could be drafted by Aug. 1, bids received by Oct. 1 and a contract awarded by Dec. 1.

Morris, asked by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes to investigate methods of speeding up departmental operations, said the plan was patterned after one in operation in Indiana.

He said there were eight bidders in Indiana and the successful one save the state money on the data processing procedure.

"If this plan is inaugurated with the support of the Legislature," Morris said in a statement, "and works here as it has in Indiana, then next year we will not have the kind of problems which were experienced in the past and which to some extent we will have to endure again this year.

"At either the same or reduced costs, this plan will offer to Missourians a smoothly functioning system of computerized records for driver's license, motor vehicle titles and licenses, sales and income tax records and the numerous other documents handled by the Department of Revenue."

Required from the Legislature would be a change that would allow the appropriation for the department's present data processing system to be transferred for contractual costs.

Under the proposed system, the firm making the successful bid would bring in its own computers and other equipment and use its own employes to process records. Present data processing operation amounts to little more than a training ground for key punch operators, programmers and others in the data processing field. As soon as they become proficient they go to private industry where better salaries are paid.

The lieutenant governor said it has been proposed that outside experts would be employed to examine the bids and recommend a contract for the best bidder.

Post Office Lease Renewed

MATTHEWS--Postmaster Kestner E. Story announced Thursday that the lease for the post office has been renewed.

The owner of the building, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace F. Waters, will continue to lease it to the United States Postal Service for five years, with renewal options running through 15 years.

Seismograph Records Any Quiver at Hayti

HAYTI—The lead guitar of a rock group known as "The White Light" was throbbing its way through a "Soul" song at a talent contest at Hayti high school, and the youngsters in the gymnasium were screaming and stomping their approval.

Down the hallway in the physics lab, the needle on the school's newest piece of scientific equipment was doing a wiggly dance as it picked up the vibrations from the rock session.

Physics teacher Charles W. Guarr looked at the crooked line the nervous needle was etching on the seismograph.

"This machine is so sensitive that if an earthquake registering 6.5 on the Richter Scale occurred anywhere in the world, we would pick it up," he said.

The seismograph, Guarr said, is on loan to the school from the University of Mississippi and was installed about three weeks ago, "shortly after the California earthquake."

The university, for some time, according to Guarr, had been wanting to install a seismograph at a site near what geologists call the New Madrid fault.

The fault was formed by the giant 1811 and 1812 earthquakes near New Madrid, that created Reelfoot Lake in Western Tennessee.

Seismologists expect that within the next 10 years an earthquake "of major proportions" is going to occur along the New Madrid fault, Guarr said, "and the university wanted to set up a seismometer as close to the fault as they could, to monitor any acitivity going on.

"And Hayti," he said, "is the geological center of the fault. We're directly in the middle of it."

While he hasn't recorded any major activity, "We did have some very minor activity on March 9 at 7:10 a.m. and 7:49 a.m.," he said, studying a sheaf of red-inked graphs.

Each Friday Guarr sends a week's worth of the graphs to Dr. Fred E. Followill, head of Ole Miss' Seismological Observatory, where the data on he sheets is studied and then recorded.

If a major quake occured in the area, Guarr said, the seismograph at Hayti would join with machines set up at the university, at Rolla, MO., and at Knoxville, Tenn., to pinpoint the epicenter of the quake.

On a day-to-day basis, however, he said, the highly sensitive device is being put to practical use in the Hayti High physics lab.

Motioning to a particularly heavy set of markings that the seismograph had scratched three days before, Guarr said the device is being used to illustrate the "Doppler effect of sound waves."

"Have you ever noticed that you can hear a freight train approaching a much longer time than you can hear it after it has passed you?" he asked.

"Well, that's due to the Doppler effect of sound."

Turning to the graphs again, he pointed to seperate sets of squiggles, one longer than the other.

"The shorter line indicates that the train was traveling very fast," he said. "The longer line here shows that this train was going very slowly."

Using the graduations on the graph, the physics instructor said, "I can show the students how to calculate when the train came through the city, and another effect on the 25 students that Guarr teaches. Not exactly how fast it was going."

The seismograph has had only is their attention more rapt, he said, "but several of them said that their parents went out and bought earthqauke insurance when they heard we had a seismometer in town."

Alice C. Cates accepts an outstanding performance certificate. The presentation was made by A.W. West, director of civilian personnel for the Army Strategic Communications Command at Ft. Huachuca, Ariz. Mrs. Cates was commended for her work as his secretary. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Underwood, of Sikeston. Her husband, Captain Ronnie L. Cates, of Bloomfield, is stationed here as an instructor with the combat surveillance and electronic warfare school.

Scientists Says SSTs May Hike Skin Cancer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three scientists said Wednesday that supersonic jetliners could increase skin cancer. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., charged that the White House gagged a fourth.

The three experts agreed at a news conference called by Proxmire that scientific evidence supports the possibility that SST's could increase U.S. skin cancer cases by 10,000 a year, although there is no proof.

Proxmire charged that Dr. Gio Gori of the National Cancer Institute —who said the increase would range from 23,000 to 103,000 skin cancer cases in the United States alone—was prevented by White houintervention from appearing at the news conference.

Proxmire said the three who appeared were among 24 scientists who supported the theory of Dr. James E. McDonald, a member of the National Academy of Scientists, that 500 SSTs could reduce the stratosphere's ozone shield against ultraviolet radiation and increase skin cancer cases.

Dr. Thomas Fitzpatrick, chief of dermatology at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, said there is no question that increased radition would increase skin cancer cases.

Selective Service Board Locations Reduced to 26

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Jack Merrick, director of Selective Service, announced Friday the number of locations of Selective Service boards will be reduced from 121 to 26.

These locations are:

St. Louis city, Kansas City, Springfield, Joplin, Crystal City, Sikeston, St. Joseph, St. Charles, Columbia, Hannibal, West Plains, Jefferson City, Cape Girardeau, Sedalia, Farmington, Carrollton Trenton, Lebanon, Union Kennett, Osceola, Kirksville, Mexico, Poplar Bluff, Rolla and Maryville.

The consolidation is part of a national economy move by the Selective Service administration.

Southeast Will Add Hospital Beds

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Trustees of Southeast Missour Hospital here have announced plans for a $1,600,000 addition to add from 60 to 64 beds to the present 209.

Architects and mechanical and structural engineers have been retained for the addition, which will wrap around the existing building, integrating and connecting with each of the present four floors.

Francis F. Lewis, president of the trustees, said the expansion is principally dictated by the need for additional maternity beds. There presently are 18 in the hospital and these will be increased to 30.

Southeast Hospital for several years has handled the majority of births in the Cape Girardeau area since St. Francis Hospital converted its maternity section to general hospital use. Other area hospitals, while continuing to take obstetric cases, have de - emphasized maternity care.

IT DOESN'T TAKE MUCH to attract attention in a city—or does it? In this case, the street scene is in London where four generous-hearted volunteers from a night-club parade King's Road in fashionable Chelsea for a good cause, raising funds for charity and also the eyebrow of a passing lady.

National Kite Flying Contest Set April 10

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution is inviting cities of the nation to send someone to Washington to go fly a kite.

The venerable institution, along with National Capital Parks, announced Wednesday a national kite flying contest on the grounds of the Washington Monument April 10.

Washington has had its own contest for years, but it had to be held with special permit or outside the city because of an 1882 law against kite flying. Now that law has been repealed, and the Smithsonian figured it calls for a celebration.

Smithsonian Associates have written chambers of commerce across the country informing them of the great kite flying fling and also to groups who they know hold such local contests.

As in the local contest, to be held March 27, kites will be scored on the basis of design, craftsmanship, decoration and performance.

Under Twenty

When a picture takes off the way "Love Story" has done, it's soundtrack can usually be counted on to do well. But the soundtrack for the RYAN O'NEAL-AL(MacGRAW film is on the way to setting records for a non-musical film. It has already sold over 1,100,000 copies, and is selling at a rate over 100,000 copies a week. Previous record was held by the soundtrack album of "Dr. Zhivago"....Talking about "young" films, one now in the making, "To Find A Man," promises to be a winner by combining a today story line with two new stars who have never appeared before a camera. They're 16-year-old DARREN O'CONNOR and 17-year-old PAMELA MARTIN. Watching them work on the set, there's little doubt that PAMELA has real future star quality...Two new British groups are beginning to make a big reputation for themselves on the U.S. personal appearance circuit. They are DADA, in the jazz vein, and SAVOY BROWN, who travels the blues-rock route...JOE COCKER'S "Mad Dogs and Englishmen" album, recorded live at the Fillmore East, cut recording costs to such an extent that ther's a swing towards more "live" recordings. Among those going the live route are JUDY COLLINS, THE WHO, SANTANA, THE DOORS, NEIL YOUNG and CHICAGO...JERRY BUTLER, who has always been interested in young people, has a successful youth musical workshop going in Chicago. So successful in fact, that some of the work is finding its way into world-wide recording. Emphasis is in the rhythm and blues area.....BLOOD, SWEAT AND TEARS always score well in their personal appearance. They just rounded out a sellout three performances at New York's Carnegie Hall...."Riots and tension have resulted in cancellations of concerts by LED ZEPPELIN and SLY AND THE FAMILY STONE at the Universtiy of Arizona in April.

Fund Shortage Delays Exams For Physicians

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — A shortage of funds has forced a two-month delay in scheduling examinations for physicians, the State Board of Healing Arts reported Monday.

John A. Hailey, executive secretary of the state board, said it had been planned to hold examinations April 1 and 2 for an estimated 175 applicants, most of them foreign educated. But because the emergency appropriation bill is still tied up in House-Senate conference the examination dates have been pushed back to May 28-29.

By that time, Hailey said, it is expected that more than 700 applicants will be ready for the examinations. The emergency appropriation bill carries $27,000 for the board's operations the rest of this fiscal year.

Whosoever will be great among you, let him be your minister; and whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant. (Matthew 20:26-27)

PRAYER: O Lord, we pray that our "cross clinging" may not be so selfishly motivated that we have no thought or concern for others. Grant us compassion of heart that we may be more like the Master, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven. . . .Amen."

Armed Forces

SOUTH RUISLIP, England—Air Force M/Sgt. Gerald W. Watkins, son of Mrs. Alma Watkins of Bell City, Mo., has arrived for duty at South Ruislip Air Station.

Sergeant Watkins, a medical services technician, is assigned to the 7520th USAF hospital. He previously served at Udorn Royal Thai AFB, Thailand.

The sergeant is a 1945 graduate of Vandozen, Mo., high school. His wife is the former Iva L. Schlegih.

U.S. Army, Taiwan (AHTNC) March 11 -- Stanley H. Skelton, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Imogine Caldwell, route 2, East Prairie, Mo., was promoted to Army Specialist Four while serving as a supply specialist in the U.S. Army strategic communications command near Taiwan.

Chu Lai, Vietnam -- Army Specialist Four Gary Craft, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Opal Borders, 515 Ruth St., Sikeston, Mo., received the Army Commendation Medal while serving with the Americal Division near Chu Lai, Vietnam.

The medal was awarded for Meritorious service. Such service can be over an extended period of time or for outstanding achievement in a single situation. In either case, the recipient must have demonstrated skills and dedication far above the average.

Specialist Craft received the award while assigned as a driver in headquarters company, 1st Battalion, 6th infantry of the Divison's 198th Infantry Brigade.

The soldier's father, Virgil Craft, lives in St. Charles, Ill.

BLYTHEVILLE, AFB, ARK., ---- Among the 97th Bomb wing laurels now stands 97th Avionics Maintenance Squadron which was selected the Best in Second Air Force of all units rated in January.

Some of the reasons for the honor included the Outstanding Resources Conservations record accumulated by 97th AMS. The squadron's established goal was $43,000. Of this goal, $63,000 was validated for 146 per cent.

Outstanding Avionics system aboard the B-52 Stratofortress aided in the successful launch of the "Old Rover" missile in January.

When the 97th Bomb Wing was evaluated during the Operational Readiness Inspection last year, the bomb reliability of the squadron was rated outstanding along with the Electronic Countermeasures Branch. Target defense run reliability was rated outstanding, fire control reliability an excellent and Precision Measurement Lab received an excellent rating.

Six squadron personnel were selected Wing Maintenance Man of the Month in the last 12 months. Due to no reportable incidents in the last three quarters, 97th AMS received a Ground Safety Trophy. Wing Squadron Management League honored the maintenance squadron with the Squadron of the Quarter award, first quarter, 1970.

It's The Law

Leroy's Case Heard Twice

Leroy's fate couldn't have looked more dismal had he been a cat in a dog pound. Standing trial for having committed a serious crime, the testimony against him made him slink in his seat. But then, his chances suddenly became brighter when someone just happened to realize that no one had taken the trouble to swear in the jury.

"Hey! That's right," beamed Leroy's attorney as he jumped to his feet. "They haven't been sworn in. And, "he added gleefully, "since my client can't be tried twice, for the same crime, I demand his immediate release."

"Not so fast," responded the district attorney. I"Acturally, if the jury wasn't summoned nothing's been ventured and nothing's been gained. Therefore, there's no reason why we shouldn't simply be allowed to start all over again with a new jury. That would be the fair thing to do."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you let hopeful Leroy off the hook because the jury hadn't been properly sworn?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that in criminal cases the failure to swear in the jury renders the trial fatally defective; that, consequently, since Leroy's trial was not a legal trial, he can be tried anew.

Travel Ban Lifted to Red China

WASHINGTON (AP)—The State Department lifted Monday 20-year-old restrictions on the travel of American citizens to Communist China.

Following up earlier measures which loosened restraints, Secretary of State William P. Rogers ordered that passports would no longer carry a stamp stating they could not be used for travel to the Chinese mainland.

Such a restriction is being continued, however, on travel by Americans to North Vietnam, North Korea, and Cuba.

State Department officials said past experience indicates that authorizing use of passports in the case of mainland China will make little or no difference in actual travel by Americans there because the Chinese Communist regime has allowed very few Americans to enter the country.

The move is in line, however, with President Nixon's pledge last month to see what more might be done "to create broader opportunities for contacts between the Chinese and American peoples."

You can't live on love forever.

Okay, you're young. You've got all the love in the world and you're doing your best to live on it. Retirement? That's for when you're old, right?

It's for when you're old if you can afford it.

The kind of retirement you're after isn't the typical rocking-away-on-the-front-porch variety. You probably picture yourself taking extended vacations, pursuing hobbies, or buying that forty acres and living off the land. Pipe dreams? Not if you prepare now.

There's an easy, painless way to make your retirement dreams a reality. Join the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. That way, an amount you specify will be set aside from each paycheck and used to buy U.S. Savings Bonds. It's an easy way to save.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5½%, when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra ½%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

Now is the time to start saving. Money's a nice thing to have while you're living on love forever.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Gourmet Corner:

Belgium: The Land Where Beer Gives Meat a Third Dimension

By TOM HOGE
Associated Press Writer

My one and only stay in Belgium came at a time when that picturesque country, squeezed between Germany and France, was still recovering from the ravages of World War II, but even then its cuisine was memorable.

Belgian cooking is a marriage between the culinary arts of the Flemish and the Walloons, the two peoples who make up the bulk of the country's population.

These French and Flemish-speaking lingual groups have been at bitter odds for decades over the two-language problem which became so acute a couple of years back that it brought down a national government.

But Belgian cooking has survived the national strife and blended into a thing of harmony and beauty.

We especially recall the Belgian custom of simmering meat in beer, garlic and spices until it is reduced to a toothsome delight. Until that time, we had thought of beer as something to quaff from a goblet or use with caution and forebearance in a Welsh Rarebit. Since then, we have encountered beer and ale in everything from soup to savory sausage, but that was years later.

Beer stew is said to be a contribution of the Flemish half of Belgium's population, although it seems uncertain whether they actually invented it or got it from some other source.

The national drink in Belgium is beer in many shades, varieties and strengths. People are so fond of the creamy brew that they like it in their food as well as their goblets, whether partaking of lunch or dinner. In fact they even cook with beer at breakfast time, making a hearty eyeopener known as Gaufres Bruxelloises, or Brussels Beer Waffles.

The steady diet of Brussels Sprouts that filled the mess kits of U.S. troops in Europe during World War II did little to enshrine Belgian cookery in many American minds. But after the war, that much maligned vegetable faded from memory, as Americans became acquainted with dainty Belgian asparagus, lush Belgian endives and other bits of greenery. In fact once they sampled a dish of Brussels sprouts that hadn't been worked over by a G.I. cook, many Americans found it pretty good.

Meat has always ranked high on the Belgian menu, from the pungent smoked hams associated with the Ardennes to the chicken stewed in cream and duck stuffed with sweetbreads, bacon and mushrooms for which the country is noted. Not to mention the rich variety of fish and other types of seafood, such as eel, mussels and oysters.

But beer and meat make up the classic combination; to wit the pork flammande and the beer carbonnade which grace tables in Ghent and all through Flanders. Here is a recipe for the pork dish.

PORK FLAMANDE

3 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 pounds pork tenderloin cut into 2-inch cubes
salt and pepper
one pint beer
four oz. boiling water
1 teaspoon rosemary
2 onions sliced
2 leeks cut up
1 pint beef bouillon (chicken if preferred)
2 cups cooked sliced potatoes
2 cups cooked sliced carrots
1/4 cup flour
one oz. water

Heat oil in large kettle and brown pork cubes therein. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add beer, and boiling water and rosemary and simmer covered for one hour. Add onions and leeks and cook another 20 minutes. Stir in bouillon and simmer a couple of minutes. Add potatoes and carrots. Blend flour with one oz. water and fold into pork mixture stirring until thickened.

Serves about 6 people. Good with a cold rose wine.

Educator Wants Technology Given Place in Higher Learning

By RICHARD ZAHLER
Associated Press Writer

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Most people probably think of a college president as one with a string of graduate degrees and a reputation for achievement in at least one academic field. But that image doesn't fit Edward B. Lindaman, the new president of Whitworth College, a small liberal arts institution in Spokane.

EDWARD B. LINDAMAN — The newest president of Whitworth College in Spokane, Wash. is Edward B. Lindaman, a former aerospace executive who thinks modern technology must be given an integral place in the curricula of higher education.

Lindaman doesn't have the usual academic credentials. His highest earned degree is an associate of arts from a Minnesota junior college. And his field is a combination of electronics, mechanics and technological management.

Less than a year ago he was in his 27th year with North American Rockwell Corp., as a high-ranking executive in management planning, working in the space program.

Lindaman believes the transition from his former field to the academic one is both natural, because the respective jobs demand allied skills, and necessary to the future of education because of the overwhelming importance technology has assumed in modern society.

Because of what he reluctantly called the "closed" nature of academic communities, Lindaman says the movement of non-academicians into education will be slow, but his own experience at Whitworth leads him to believe it will become more accepted.

"Mankind is literally making his own world — not creating — but putting together that which is already created," Lindaman says. "Technology is a product of man, but either he uses it for the benefit of humanity or he lets it run away from him. Education must be on the forefront of this interface, teaching man to befriend technology, to ride with it rather than on it."

He believes a college education should impart knowledge consisting of equal and interrelated parts of the traditional liberal arts, advancing science and technology and some sort of spiritual framework.

"There is a need in college education to emphasize the technological element in relationship to the other two, as opposed to a simple emphasis on science," Lindaman says. "Someone coming from my field has a stronger grasp of that element, and part of my task is to bring it into combination with the other two."

Lindaman is quick to point out that he is not a scientist but a technologist, a man who "combines and recombines the discoveries of science into novel groupings." His view of the task facing education is, not surprisingly therefore, that of a technologist.

"Education has rightfully divided the world into pieces, into the academic disciplines," he says. "The time has come to put these pieces together again in novel regroupings which will be more relevant to our world."

If education can bring space age science into the traditional curricula Lindaman feels the resulting combination may offer mankind the "mid-course correction" it needs in learning to live beneficially with its snowballing technology.

Educational leadership, he says, calls upon the same abilities to marshal men and materials that are needed in industrial and technological production, the same abilities to forsee needs and consequences that are required in the space program.

State Seeks to Stop Orton Re-election Bid

JEFFERSON CITY — Attorney General John C. Danforth is moving to prevent oustied Pemiscot County Sheriff Clyde Orton from seeking re - election.

Orton said last week he would be a candidate in a special election since the Missouri Supreme Court ordered him removed from office.

Danforth is asking the court to amend its order by adding a provision that Orton can not legally seek re-election during the current term, Orton's lawyer said.

The supreme court ousted Orton March 8 because of "willful misconduct and neglect of duty" and "willful oppression and abuse of authority."

The court ruled the sheriff had not enforced certain gambling and liquor laws, and had threatened state liquor control agents from Mississippi.

Orton's attorney told a reporter he will file a motion for a rehearing of the case.

That motion, he said, would stay the court order removing Orton from office.

The motion will be filed with the Supreme Court here Monday or Tuesday, Reeves said.

A mandate, or final order, in the case normally would be issued by the court Wednesday — 15 days after the ruling was made.

That mandate would make the ouster final and would be the basis for the county court to call a special election.

Reeves also disclosed he will file a motion opposing Danforth's request.

Orton was re - elected in November 1968 and the term expires Dec. 31, 1972.

Reeves said Danforth had learned from the news media that Orton announced he would be a candidate in a special election "and is asking the court to forbid him from running."

The attorney general's office informed Reeves by mail Thursday of the latest step, he said.

A check with Danforth's office showed that a motion in the Orton case has been prepared, but it is not to be filed with the court until Friday pending final approval.

Craftsmen To Exhibit Products

CAPE GIRARDEAU–Two hundred craftsmen from Southeast Missouri and Southern Illinois, and from as far away as Tennessee, will be in Cape Girardeau Saturday and Sunday to exhibit their products. The Christian Arts Council of Cape Girardeau will host craftsmen representing 16 different craft areas at its first regional crafts fair at the arena building.

Exhibiting craftsmen include both youngsters and adults. Those exhibiting have a wide range of expertise. The dabbler, serious hobbyist and professional will all be represented.

The fair, to be established on an annual basis, provides craftsmen with an opportunity to exhibit their work for the enjoyment of others and to meet other craftsmen with whom they have common interests.

Demonstrations by some of the exhibitors are also planned, such as paper tearing, rock cutting and polishing, and candle making. The craftsmen will also display the raw materials used in their crafts, as well as tools and reference books used by them.

The craft areas represented include traditional favorites such as pottery, woodworking and metalworking, as well as more modern or unusual crafts such as photography, tin can art, and gem cutting.

The products of all the craftsmen will be exhibited by craft categories, in order to facilitate viewing by the public.

The exhibits will be open to the public Saturday from 1 p.m.—9:00 p.m. and Sunday, 1 p.m.—5:00 p.m. An admission will be charged.

Two Environment Proposals Criticized

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Senate Public Health, Welfare and Environment Committee took a somewhat critical view of two proposals Tuesday night which could improve environment.

One measure would authorize the Division of Health to set rules and regulations for a state solid waste management program.

The other would allow the Missouri Public Service Commission to add environmental measures to its rules and regulations for building public utility facilities.

No action was taken on either measure.

Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, chairman of the committee, said a bill sponsored by Sen. Robert A. Young, D-St Ann, would make strip mining impossible as it now reads.

The proposal is similar to a measure approved by the House Committee on Environment. The House bill is one of five known as the "Schramm ecology package," sponsored by Rep. Jack J. Schramm, D-University City.

The proposal is based on a study of solid waste disposal made by Robert M. Robinson, sanitary engineer of the Division of Health.

Robinson told the Senate committee the bill would, among other things, allow small cities which cannot afford to operate expensive sanitary land fills to establish cooperative land fills.

Sen. Maurice Schechter, DCreve Coeur, said the proposal, sponsored by Cason, to add environmental regulations to the Missouri Public Service Commission's duties was a duplication of regulation since the Water Pollution Board and Air Conservation Commission already has such authority.

The utilities supporting the bill said it would make it a "one stop" action for them since they already must come to the PSC for the okay on construction of new plants.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—How many of our presidents died on July 4?

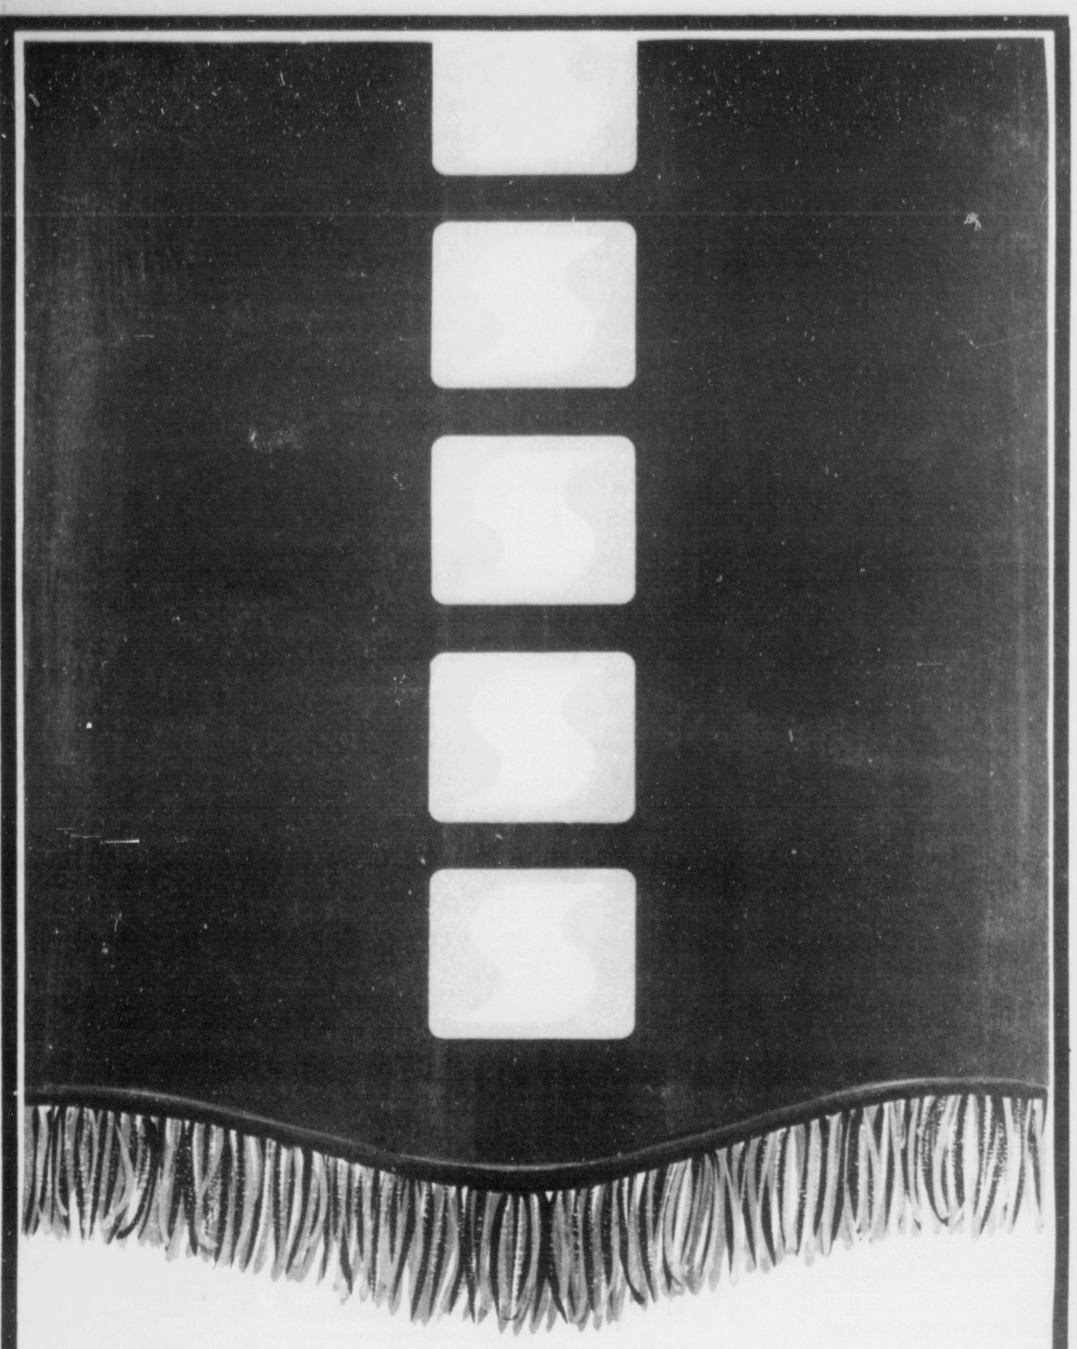
A—Three — John Adams and Thomas Jefferson in 1826, and James Monroe in 1831.

Q—In symbolism, what does the bluebird stand for?

A—Happiness.

Q—What is distinctive about the Hawaiian language?

A—The alphabet has only 12 letters. Every Hawaiian word and syllable ends with a vowel.



We're raising the curtain on a new symbol.

Here's what it symbolizes to you!

The dictionary defines a symbol as "a sign by which one infers something."

So what's inferred and what's so great about the Bank of Sikeston's new symbol?

Well we could get rather pompous and say . . . "Oh, our new symbol stands for a modern interpretation of 75 years of financial safety, security, stability and service to the folks and businesses of Sikeston!" And perhaps a lot of other nice sounding words beginning with the letter s.

But we'd rather you look at it as simply a new and visual sign of our promise . . . "Come to where the answer is."

It's sort of what we stand for.

Come to where the answer is.

Key Clashes at Houston

'BABE' and BOOG. Sadaharu Oh of the Tokyo Giants, Japan's Babe Ruth, compares notes—and muscles—with Baltimore's Boog Powell.

UCLA, the No. 1 team in college basketball, plays at the Astrodome in Houston Thursday night for the first time in three years. That could be a bad omen for the Bruins in their bid for a fifth straight national championship.

It was at the Astrodome on Jan. 20, 1968 that the Bruins' 47-game winning streak was snapped by the Houston Cougars 71-69 before an all-time paid basketball crowd of 52,693.

It was UCLA's only defeat that season and it kept the Bruins from breaking San Francisco's all-time collegiate winning streak of 60 in a row since they won 41 straight after that.

The occasion for UCLA's return to the Astrodome is the semifinals of the NCAA championship tourney. The Bruins play the Kansas Jayhawks and the Villanova Wildcats take on the Hilltoppers of Western Kentucky.

UCLA, Kansas and Western Kentucky had to rally to win their quarter-final games last Saturday. Villanova, to the surprise of virtually everyone, enjoyed a 90-47 romp over presviously unbeaten Penn, which had won 28 straight.

UCLA wiped out an 11-point deficit in the second half to beat Long Beach State 57-55 on four free throws by Sidney Wicks in the last 25 seconds.

Kansas, also down by 11 at one point, rallied to defeat Drake 73-71 and Western Kentucky came from 14 points back to trip Ohio State 71-68 in overtime.

Dave Robisch, 6-foot-11 Kansas star who may be paired against the 6-8 Wicks, sparked the Jayhawks against Drake with 27 points, including the goahead basket at 63-61.

The 7-foot Jim McDaniels scored 31 points for Western Kentucky, but it was Rex Bailey who saved the Hilltoppers from defeat by Ohio State in regulation time. He sank a 15footer with 12 seconds left for a 69-69 tie.

The Ohio Valley Conference champs won in the overtime on Clarence Glover's four points and three vital rebounds in the last 59 seconds.

Villanova opened a 25-point lead early and hit a blazing 62 per cent from the field in its romp over Penn. Howard Porter led the attack with 35 points.

Thursday's winners meet for the NCAA championship in Houston Saturday, March 27 at 4 p.m., EST. The consolation game precedes the title game, beginning at 2 p.m. EST.

"We did nothing right," lamented Penn Coach Dick Harter.

The NCAA championship final at the Astrodome will be played Saturday at 4 p.m. EST, between Thursday's winners and will be nationally televised by NBC.

Marquette, Fordham, Houston and Pacific won the four NCAA regional consolations while North Carolina, Providence, Duke, Tennessee and Georgia Tech won the vive first-round games that marked the opening Saturday of the National Invitation Tourney in New York.

Marquette trimmed Kentucky 91-74, Fordham downed South Carolina 100-90, Houston whipped Notre Dame 119-106 and Pacific shaded Brigham Young 84-81.

North Carolina overwhelmed Massachusetts 9-49, Providence beat Louisville 64-58, Duke overcame Dayton 68-60, Georgia Tech held off LaSalle 70-67 and Tennessee shaded St. John's of New York in overtime 84-83.

Two more first round games in the NIT were played Sunday with Michigan beating Syracuse 82-76 and St. Bonaventure downing Purdue 94-79.

The NIT continues with a tripleheader tonight, a doubleheader Wednesday and the semifinals Thursday. The final Saturday at 1 p.m. EST, will be nationally televised by CBS.

Former Cardinal Having Problems

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Alex Johnson, former St. Louis Cardinal, and the American League batting king last season, is off to a bad start this spring and it has nothing to do with his hitting.

Rather it is Johnson's hustle that presents the problem, and it already reportedly has cost the morose outfielder $100.

Johnson, who has had runs ins with newsmen and teammates before during his career at Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cincinnati and now the California Angels, lasted only one inning before Manager Lefty Phillips benched him.

It didn't seem to affect his teammates as they went on to beat the San Diego Padres 7-5 in exhibition baseball.

Home runs highlighted many of the other games, along with two sterling mound performances by Joe Niekro of Detroit and John Strohmeyer of Montreal.

Rookie Bobby Brooks hit two three-run homers as Oakland beat Cleveland 10-6, Minnesota slashed four homers for a 4-3 triumph over Houston and Art Shamsky stroked a grand slam to boost the New York Mets past Boston 5-4.

Montreal stopped Washington 5-3 on homers by Coco Laboy and John Bocabella and Roger Freed and Greg Luzinski homered in Philadelphia's 5-3 decision over Pittsburgh.

Elsewhere, Atlanta beat Baltimore 2-1, Cincinnati halted St. Louis 5-2, the New York Yankees eneded a 12-game losing streak with a 3-2 victory over Detroit, Milwaukee downed the Chicago Cubs 4-2, the Chicago White Sox beat Kansas City 6-5, an All-Star team defeated Los Angeles6-1 and San Francisco edged the Tokyo Orions 5-4 in 14 innings.

Johnson reportedly was fined for not hustling in Saturday's game, and after he jogged to first base after hitting a grounder Sunday Phillips took him out. He said he feared Johnson might be suffering from an injury.

TRJC Places Fourth

HUTCHINSON, Kan. Ellsworth of Iowa Falls won the championship of the National Junior College basketball tournament Saturday night by defeating Southern Idaho of Twin Falls 80-71.

Ellsworth was never behind after halftime when they led 39-31 and rode along easily behind the dazzling play of Bennie Clyde, who scored 28 points in the game and was high for the tournament with 103.

Ellsworth was ahead 65-57 when they went into their delay game with four minutes to play.

Clyde was named the tournament's outstanding performer and his coach, Jim Carey, was acclaimed coach of the year.

Robert Morris of Carthage took third place in the tournament, defeating Hutchison 93-74.

Fourth place went to Three Rivers of Poplar Bluff, Mo. The Missourians defeated Columbia, Tenn., 102-99 in overtime. Columbia State was awarded seventh place in the double elimination tourney behind Hutchison.

Three Rivers exploded for 16 points in the overtime period. Their top pointmaker was Roy Fields with 21 but Harry Gilmore of Columbia was high for the game with 35.

TRJC trailed 50-44 at half and at one time trailed by as much as 14 points.

Coach Gene Bess' crew rallied to tie the game 86-86 at the end of regulation time and then proceeded to post the win with the large Hutchinson crowd yelling encouragement.

The Raiders finished 27-10 on the season.

Casper, Wyo., defeated Robert Morris of Pittsburgh, Pa., 63-58 in the first game of the day, and wrapped up fifth place. Pittsburgh's Robert Morris finished eighth.

Ellsworth's title-winning victory over favored Southern Idaho also brought Coach of the Year honors to Jim Carey and the Most Valuable Player award to Benny Clyde.

The all-tournament team selected by sports writers and broadcasters included Clyde, Tim Bassett and Ron Behagen of Southern Idaho; Roy Field of fourth place Three Rivers College at Poplar Bluff, Mo., Abe Stewart of fifth place Casper, Wyo.; Stan Brackmon of sixth place Hutchinson, Kan.; Ron Hockenous of Niagrara Falls, and Jim Dashield of Robert Morris of Pennsylvania.

Dashield won the tournament's sportsmanship trophy.

Big Ten Rejects Bears' Bid to Play at N' Western

CHICAGO (AP) — The Big Ten has rejected for a second time Northwestern University's proposal to allow the Chicago Bears to play in Dyche Stadium.

The action Sunday doomed for the foreseeable future the Bear's hopes of moving their National Football League home games to Dyche Stadium and did nothing to lessen the financial plight of Northwestern. Northwestern asked for approval to sign a three-year contract with the Bears, hoping that the athletic directors and faculty representatives who earlier this month rejected a five-year proposal, would relent.

Marcus Plant, Michigan faculty representative and spokesman for the group, said Northwestern's proposal was rejected by a "divided vote."

He added that Sunday's action"does not forclose future consideration of the subject of pro use of Big Ten facilities, but no appeal can be made from Sunday's decision."

In Palm Beach, Fla., George Halas, owner of the Bears, said the Big Ten ruling was "a giant step backwards."

NIT Quarterfinals Tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Providence dives into the North Carolina pressure cooker tonight with a wounded guard and a worried coach.

"We can't be destroyed by that North Carolina pressure," Providence Coach Dave Gavitt said prior to the Friars' game against the deepest basketball club in the National Invitation Tournament.

Gavitt admitted he was concerned by the balance of the Atlantic Coast Conference team.

Dave Lewis is Providence's tough little guard and rebound power despite his 5-foot11 stature. Lewis, who twisted his ankle March 1, isn't certain for tonight although "he's running better on the ankle now," said Gavitt.

The North Carolina-Providence contest is the second game of a tripleheader at Madison Square Garden that starts the quarterfinals of this 34th annual classic. Tennessee meets Duke in the third game.

Hawaii, making its first NIT trip, and Oklahoma, which was rubbed out in the early rounds last year, wind up first-round action in tonight's opening game.

Michigan, the first Big Ten conference club ever to paly in this tournament, trimmed Syracuse 82-76 and St. Bonaventure grabbed a 94-79 decision from Purdue, another Big Ten club, in Sunday's first-round action.

The victories shot Michigan into Wednesday night's quarterfinal with Georgia Tech and St. Bonaventure into a meeting with the winner of the HawaiiOklahoma game.

Gavitt, whose Friars gained the quarterfinals by slugging Louisville 64-58 Saturday, admitted his club might have a little more trouble with North Carolina. Coach Dean Smith of North Carolina, who was once worried, isn't any more after Saturday's opening-round 90-49 conquest of Massachusetts.

BOB KARSTENS - MAN WHO INTEGRATED TROTTERS

Man Who Integrated Trotters Says They Make Game Enjoyable

If there's anyone wanting to know when the Harlem Globetrotters plan to integrate, they're a little late.

They did that almost 30 years ago, with ex-Iowan Bob Karstens, who now lives in Costa Mesa, Calif., and still holds a special place in his heart for the Globetrotters' brand of basketball.

Karstens was the first and only white athlete to play under contract for the Trotters.

For the record, however, he was the third white man to wear the star-spangled togs of the "Magicians of Basketball" and there could be others in the future.

The late founder of the team, Abe Saperstein, filled in during the early days, and Bunny Levitt, who gave free throw exhibitions at halftime, played a few games. But Karstens was the only one in 44 years signed to a playing contract.

This happened in 1942--five years before Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier in major league baseball and nine years before Sweetwater Clifton of the Trotters did the same in the National Basketball Association.

"A shortage of players developed during World War II when Goose Tatum was called into service," Karstens recalled in an interview with Maury White, sports columnist of the Des Moines Register. "Abe asked me to dinner late in the 1941 season and said, 'I need a showman for the Trotters. Would you consider playing?'

"I couldn't find a pen fast enought. The Globetrotters were considered world champions at the time. I played all the 1942 season and about half of 1943 before Goose came back."

Being the only white guy on the team was never a problem, he insists. "You'd be surprised how few people even asked about it, and I was never conscious that my being white was a problem," Karstens told Maury White.

"If you can do the job and the tricks, you're accepted by other athletes. I had skills no one else had, after Tatum left, and we were just perfecting the 'circle' and Sweet Georgia Brown in those years."

Karstens is now involved with building construction in southern California but he is available to give ball-handling exhibitions. He still sings the praises of the Globetrotters.

"Dr. James Naismith invented the game but Abe Saperstein showed how it should be enjoyed," he said. "Basketball is lucky he came along."

Would the Harlem Globetrotters sign a white player today?

OU's Athletic Director Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — Although stunned by the sudden death of athletic director Gomer Jones, the University of Oklahoma's basketball team will go through with this evening's game in the National Invitation Basketball Tournament because "we feel that would be Gomer's wish...

Jones, 57, football coach at Oklahoma in 1964-6 and in his sixth year as director of athletics, collapsed and died on a subway platform Sunday night while waiting for a train. He and other members of the Oklahoma party, including his wife, Jeannette, were en route to the theater.

Coach John MacLeod, who was standing next to Jones when he died, said, "We're going to play the game beecause we feel that would be Gomer's wish."

Oklahoma is scheduled to meet the University of Hawaii at 5 p.m., EST, in a first-round game.

Dr. Pete Kyle [illegible]er, acting president of the university, issued the following statement:

"Coach MacLeod, the Oklahoma team and our entire official party are stunned. The world of intercollegiate athletics has lost one of its finest leaders, but we at the university are also overcome with a great sense of personal loss. It is our sincerest judgment that it would be in accordance with Mr. Jones' desires that the game go forward."

Jones was a familiar football name dating back to the mid1930s. A native of Cleveland, Ohio, he was a star lineman for three years at Ohio State.

He coached at John Carroll University and Martins Ferry, Ohio, High School prior to three years of Navy service during World War II. After spending the 1946 season as an assistant at the University of Nebraska, he moved to Oklahoma and served as line coach for 17 years under Bud Wilkinson.

He succeeded Wilkinson as head coach and his 1964 team posted a 6-4-1 record, including a 36-19 Gator Bowl loss to Florida State. The next year Oklahoma's record was 3-7, climaxed by a 17-16 loss to Oklahoma State in the finale, the first time in 20 years the Sooners had lost to their intrastate rival.

He stepped down as coach shortly after the season although his contract had two years to run.

Academy Dedicated

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Orestes Minoso-Arrieta is a broad-shouldered teenager with a burning desire to follow in his father's footsteps—against formidable odds.

If the son of Minnie Minoso, former sparkplug of Chicago's White Sox, achieves his goal he'll have baseball's first playas-you learn venture to thank for it. And the Kansas City Royals will have another major league ball player.

"I want very much to make it to the majors," said Minoso-Arrieta, one of 35 student-athletes enrolled and employed at the Royals' unique baseball academy, during Sunday's formal dedication ceremonies. "I have a great deal to learn. But it will work out."

The 17-year-old first baseman, a three-sport standout at Evanston, Ill., High School last year, was overlooked in the majors' free agnt draft.

But E&wing M. Kauffman, owner of Kansas City's American League expansion club, is betting $1.5 million—the production cost of the program—that the scouts were wrong.

"We see ourselves as the best of the expansion teams," Kauffman said. "But, under the rules of the game it takes a long, long time for an expansion team to build a winner."

Unable to get quick results through drafts, trades or purchases, Kauffman hit upon the idea of investing in the development of young talent, regardless of their prior baseball experience. And he decided to throw in free college education along with their baseball schooling.

Thus was born the academy, a picturesque, 121-acre campus complex with five playing fields and plush living quarters. It opened last Aug. 10, with 42 athletes selected from the 7,682 who attended tryout camps throughout the United States and Canada.

The tryouts consisted of demanding tests in vision, reaction time, depth perception, running speed, throwing strength and eye-hand coordination, among others.

The 35 survivors, due to complete the 10-month program in May and go on to the Gulf Coast rookie league as a unit, attend classes at nearby Manatee Junior College three mornings each week and do additional schoolwork at the complex.

They also spend at least 25 hours a week on the practice field or in competition with Florida college and semi-pro teams. They receive monthly salaries of $100 to $200, plus free room and board.

"I've been swinging at a lot of bad pitches and I have to work on my defense," said MinosoArrieta, who spurned football and basketball scholarship offers from several Big Ten schools. "But I really feel confident playing the game.

"I like to think I'm an exciting player. I was very young when I saw my father play in Chicago, but I guess what impressed me most was his hustle. He was always diving head-first into the plate. That's the way I like to play baseball. That's the fun way to play it."

"The coaches thought homesickness would be the biggest problem," said 19-year-old outfielder Rufus Caruthers of Kansas City, Kan. "But it's just like seventh heaven here. It's like home—only some of the guys think it's better than home."

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and American League President Joe Cronin were among the luminaries at the dedication ceremonies. They heard a congratulatory telegram from President Richard M. Nixon read from the stage and they heard Sal Balderrama, a 22-year-old shortstop from Sacramento, Calif., speak movingly in behalf of his classmates.

"When you finish high school and the scouts haven't come knocking on your door, a 7year-old's dream can become a 17-year-old's disappointment," Balderrama said. "But six months ago the impossible happened for me. It's the dream of a lifetime come true.

"We hope that when a pennant is flying over Kansas City someday, some of us will be there."

Villanova, Western Ky. Advance

RALEIGH, N. D. (AP) — Villanova's Wildcats, riding a surging crest after their stunning 90-47 victory over Penn, placed three of their players on the NCAA Eastern regional alltournament team.

Next stop for the Wildcats is Houston, where they will take on Western Kentucky Thursday night in the NCAA semifinals. Villanova's Howard Porter, Hank Siemontkowski and Chris Ford were chosen for the all-tourney team by writers and sportscasters who covered the event. Porter, who was also chosen outstanding player of the tournament, was a unanimous choice.

The Wildcats' rout of Penn Saturday was powered by Porter, who paced Villanova with 35 points. Porter, a 6-8 senior, pulled down 15 rebounds against previously unbeaten Penn.

Looking toward Western Kentucky Thursday night, Porter said, "We'll probably be underdogs. But we were underdogs against Fordham and Penn."

In the consolation round, Fordham defeated South Carolina 100-90.

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — "I think we've got our horseshoe in our back pocket now," says Coach Johnny Oldham of Western Kentucky, "but I sure hope it's not the same one Joe Hall had."

The seventh-ranked Hilltoppers marched past Jacksonville, Kentucky and Ohio State in the NCAA Mideast regional play to reach the semifinals in the battle for college basketball's 1971 national championship.

The game with Kentucky—first ever between the schools—was a one-sided affair, with Western rolling to a 107-83 victory.

Hall, an assistant coach at Kentucky, tossed a worn horseshoe on a table after the Thursday night game, saying it had come off Kentucky Derby winner Proud Clarion. "I kissed it, I did everything, but it didn't help," Hall said.

Oldham's good luck charm in the regionals was a 6-foot-8 lad named Clarence Glover of Horse Cave, Ky., 35 miles from the Bowling Green campus.

Glover sparked Western to the Mideast title Saturday when he grabbed three crucial rebounds and scored four points in the final minute of an 81-78 victory over Ohio State.

The previous week, Glover scored the winning basket in the final seconds in a 74-72 triumph over Jacksonville, last year's national runner-up.

Grandstand Destroyed

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — The main grandstand of Joplin's Joe Becker Stadium, a field that sired many outstanding baseball careers when it was known as Miners Park, was destroyed Sunday by fire.

Given to the city in 1955 by the Joplin Miners after the Western Association Baseball League folded, the park has been used in recent years, in addition to baseball for Shrine circuses and other outdoor events.

Cause of the blaze, which started in a small room beneath the grandstand, had not been determined and no estimate of the loss had been made, Dwight Vaugh, fire chief, said.

The fire broke out while the Memorial High School baseball team was practicing and was out of control for about two hours.

The facility was known as Miners Park for more than 50 years.

Most notable of the stars to emerge from its shadows was Mickey Mantle, who played for the 1950 Miners, one year before his debut at Yankee Stadium.

Harry Craft, Mantle's manager at Joplin, later managed the Kansas City Athletics.

Among other baseball notables who played here were Norm Siebum and Jerry Lumpe. The late Charles (Gabby) Street, who was pilot of the St. Louis Browns and the St. Louis Cardinals, began his managing career at Joplin.

"We'll rebuild something," Robert Metzinger, city manager, said, "but it's obvious it would never be like it was in the golden days of minor league baseball."

In 1954 the park was renamed Becker Stadium in honor of the baseball scout who made Joplin his home.

Placekickers in the NFC had a field goal success percentage of .611 in 1970, a record for a professional league or conference, according to the NFL's official statisticians, the Elias Sports Bureau.

DOUBLE TROUBLE--Three Rivers, Poplar Bluff, has a solid 1-2 rebounding punch in Roy Fields (35), 6-foot-5, and Steve Reynolds, 6-foot-4. Here Reynolds grabs the ball in National Junior College basketball tournament action against Niagra County, Niagara Falls, N.Y. The Missouri Raiders won, 100-75, and proceeded to claim fourth place in the 16-team event with a 102-99 overtime win Saturday over Columbia State of Columbia, Tenn. Fields was named to the all tournament team.

Coaching Switch

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Harry Miller, 44-year-old head coach at North Texas State, will switch to Wichita State the next four years.

Miller was named Wichita State coach Saturday. Athletic Director Cecil Coleman said Miller was given a four-year contract at $18,500 a year.

Miller succeeds Gary Thompson, fired March 3 after the Shockers posted a 10-16 record and finished last in the Missouri Valley Conference. It was Wichita State's fourth straight losing season.

Coleman said Miller was "the only person who was considered for the iob."

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, March 22, the 81st day of 1971. There are 284 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1765, the English Parliament passed the Stamp Act to raise revenue in the American colonies.

On this date:

In 1622—some 350 Virginians were killed in the first Indian massacre of European colonists in America.

In 1794—The U.S. Congress passed a law prohibiting U.S. vessels from supplying slaves to another country.

In 1820—An American naval hero, Stephen Decatur, was mortally wounded in a duel with Commodore James Barron near Washington.

In 1917—The United States became the first nation to recognize a new provisional government in Russia.

In 1933—President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed a bill legalizing beer and wine with 3.2 per cent alcohol content.

In 1941—Grand Coulee Dam on the Columbia River began producing electrical power.

Ten years ago — President John F. Kennedy asked Congress for authority to make long-term development loans to the countries of Latin America, Africa, the Middle East and Asia.

Five years ago—The British Archbishop of Canterbury, Arthur Michael Ramsey, arrived in Rome for a meeting with Pope Paul VI.

One year ago—Many postal workers in key U.S. cities continued to strike despite a presidential warning.

30 Teachers to Be Chosen for 2-Week Seminar

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)--The Missouri bar and the State Department of Education announced today a two-week seminar for 30 selected school teachers on "the rights and responsibilities of citizenship in a free Society."

The seminar will be conducted at the Missouri Bar Center in Jefferson City June 14-25 and for participation each teacher will receive $150 a week toward expenses.

The pilot program will be financed by a grant from the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council. The first 30 participants will be chosen from the faculties of both public and private schools. Applications must reach the Missouri bar in Jefferson City by April 1.

FAVORITE NAMES

TUEBINGEN, Germany (AP) — Most popular names given to infants born during 1970 in West Germany were Nicole for girls and Andreas for boys, a public opinion institute reports.

The Wickert Institute said its survey showed five per cent of the boys were named Andreas and an equal percentage of the girls were named Nicole. The survey covered 2,024 parents.
